RAIL CHIEF SLAIN, AIDE NEAR DEATH

Two Officials Had Been at Odds Over Litigation of Company

SCENT MURDER, SUICIDE

Vice President Found Unconscious in Road's Executive Office

Baltimore—(AP)—Maxwell C. Byers, president of the Western Maryland railway company, was found shot dead and Dudley G. Gray, vice president, seriously wounded, in the railway executive offices today shortly after employes heard sound of firing.

The doors of the president's office were locked. Police advanced a tentative theory of murder and suicide, after discarding the initial explanation that the two had locked themselves in the room and engaged in a gun battle.

On the floor were found both men, Byers dead from a bullet wound through the heart and Gray unconscious from one bullet wound in the back and one in the chest. Two other superficial wounds were on Byers' body.

On the floor beside Gray was an automatic pistol with five exploded shells.

A clerk was taken to a hospital suffering from severe cuts received when he broke the glass of a door to gain entrance to the executive office. Sight of him with blood streaming from his arm at first led to the report that a third man had been involved in the shooting.

ALL DOORS LOCKED

This theory was dispelled with the arrival of Patrolman Arthur H. Block, who forced one door and found others into the office locked.

Detectives said they learned the two had been at odds over litigation in which the company was engaged.

Gray was rushed to a hospital and placed immediately on an operating table in an effort to save his life after last rites had been performed by a priest. Physicians held little hope the vice president could recover, the two bullets having passed dangerously close to his heart.

The police made some effort at the hospital to question the wounded survivor, but he was semi-conscious.

Mr. Gray, 61 years old, came to Baltimore in 1914, one year after he became connected with the railroad. Previously, he had started his railroad career with the Baltimore and Ohio after attending public schools in his native state, Ohio and attending Ohio State university.

When he resigned from the service of the Baltimore and Ohio in 1913, Mr. Gray was general freight agent of the company at Pittsburgh.

Mr. Byers, who was 52 years old, was elected president of the Western Maryland on March 1, 1920, and in 1926 he became also chairman of the board of directors.

He succeeded to the presidency when Carl R. Gray was elected president of the Union Pacific. He was then Gray's assistant.

The executive offices are on the fifth floor of the building, which is on the edge of the downtown section, on St. Paul-st.

U. S. DOCTOR TO FIGHT CHINESE BUBONIC PLAGUE

Northfield, Minn.—(AP)—Dr. Percy T. Watson will respond to the plea of Chinese authorities to return to China to fight an outbreak of the bubonic plague, he announced today.

He said he would leave in about three weeks for Shensi and Shansi provinces of northern China. The trip will take about three weeks.

His services will center upon an effort to prevent the spread of the plague in an area 140 miles northwest of Fengchow. The bubonic plague, according to the doctor, originates among rats and is transmitted to humans by the rat flea. It is about 96 per cent fatal, he said and no attempt is made to cure persons affected. He will use vaccination in his campaign to restrict the dissemination of the disease.

Drop Prayers From Ritual, Vets Asked

Legion Constitution Offers Loophole to Objectors, Pastors Point Out

Milwaukee—(AP)— While objecting to certain prayers in the American legion ritual, a joint Lutheran pastoral conference of the Milwaukee area, Wisconsin and Missouri synods today indicated that a solution existed in rules amending the prayers when there is conscientious objection.

In a formal statement, the pastors deplored "certain prayers and religious ceremonies" and said "participation in Christless prayers and ceremonies offering a false hope of salvation is a denial of our Savior."

"According to the manual of ceremonies," however, the statement said, "the conscientious objection of any post member compels the omission of prayers from post functions, and we assume that the application of the principle acknowledged by this provision will extend also to state and national functions.

"Should the legion at any time deny a member the right to object, or overrule this objection, it would thereby officially make such non-essential prayer and religious exercises a public confession of a Christless and unionistic religion, violate its own constitution, and cease to be a non-religious, purely civic and patriotic organization, thereby practically forcing every consistent Lutheran to sever his connection with the legion."

PASTOR PRESENTS VIEWS

Their statement follows in part: "In view of the fact that the relation of Lutherans belonging to the synods of Missouri and Wisconsin to the American legion has of late been

BRIAND PLAN UP FOR LEAGUE DISCUSSION

European Group Holds Secret Session as Special Committee

Geneva—(AP)— European representatives in the league of nations met this afternoon to constitute themselves as a special committee for the study of Artistide Briand's project for a federation of European states. The meeting was behind closed doors.

Dr. Walter Riddell, Canadian delegate, explained to the economic committee how a depression in highly industrialized countries like Canada and the United States has especially severe results.

"You must remember," Dr. Riddell declared, "that a highly industrialized agriculture is operated entirely upon a price basis; it cannot live unless it can sell its products at a profit. What happens in such a country? The farmers become bankrupt; they must abandon their land. After the depression of 1921-22 investigation in the United States showed that more than 2,000,000 people had to leave the land. That does not usually occur in a peasant agriculture country."

Dr. Riddell opposed the idea of a conference for preferential rate on European agricultural products in Europe, saying, "we are asked to come here and agree to something in a world organization which amounts to shutting out our products from free competition in the markets of the world. That is the unvarnished truth about the matter."

GIVES NO HINT OF DEFENSE AS COURT OPENS

Lyall T. Wright Accused of Murdering Clinton G. Price at Mauston

Mauston— (AP)—Lyall T. Wright's two attorneys started their legal battle this afternoon to save him from a possible life sentence for killing Clinton Price, district attorney of Juneau-co.

Wright was sheriff. He and Price became involved in a liquor ring. Price was acquitted of federal charges of conspiracy to defeat the prohibition laws. Wright was convicted. Price was killed shortly afterwards, as he stood in the basement doorway of his home, a trail of blood was traced to Wright's home.

The two attorneys attempting to sweep aside this circumstantial evidence are Frank Hansen, long Wright's counsel in the liquor cases and Lawrence Brody, LaCrosse.

Henry C. Rohan, appointed district attorney when Price was slain, joined with Carl N. Hill, Madison, employed by Mrs. Price; O. S. Loomis, Mauston, a special attorney appointed for aid to the prosecution and Donald M. Perry, Black River Falls, in pleading before Judge Emory Crosby of Neillsville for a conviction.

A panel of 36 jurors was drawn, court attaches anticipated that further draftings would be necessary.

Price was ambushed by a shotgun assailant at his home here last April. A few hours after Price died, Wright was arrested and charged with murder.

Investigators said they discovered a trail of blood leading from bushes at the rear of the Price home to the Lemonweir river. At the river, they said, they found a rowboat with blood-stained gunwales. Additional stains were reported on the sides of a boathouse. Picking up the blood-trail on the other side of the river, officers said it led to the Wright house. Later, a shotgun, its serial number filed off, was retrieved from the river. Ballistic experts said it was the gun used in the killing.

HAD WOUNDED HAND

At the time of his arrest, Wright presented a wounded hand. He said he received the hurt accidentally and that blood from it accounted for the stains in his house. Wright was convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws along with others in connection with the operation of a huge still near Kilbourn. Price, charged with the same offense, was acquitted. Wright received a six months sentence to the Milwaukee House of Correction.

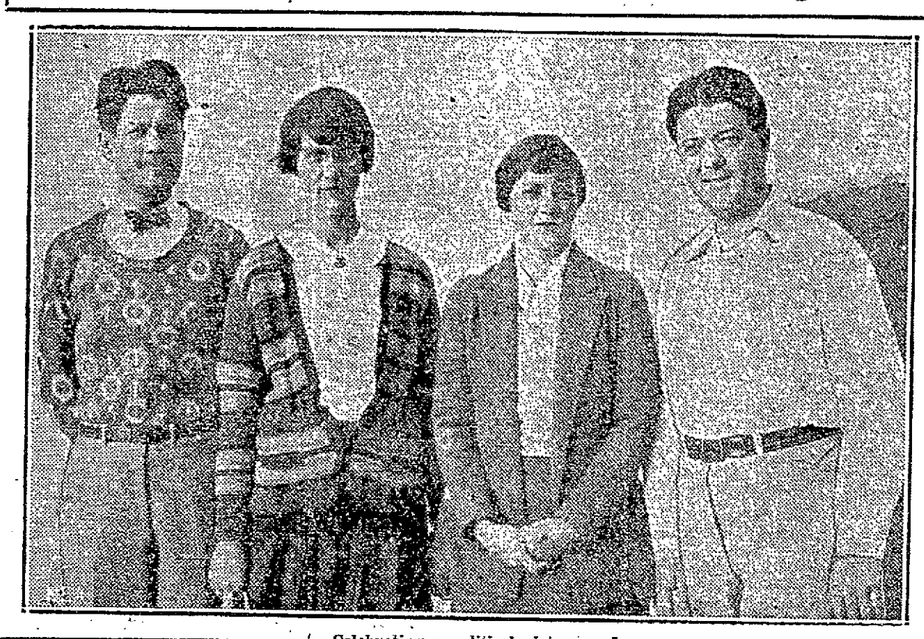

BOBBY JONES CAPTURES GOLF QUALIFYING MEDAL

Merion Cricket Club, Ardmore, Pa.—(AP)—Bobby Jones, setting the pace all the way, won the qualifying medal of the National Amateur Golf championship today with record equalling figures of 69-73—142 for the two-day 36-hole preliminary test.

George Von Elm of Los Angeles, former champion, shot a brilliant 70, even par, today. He had a 36-hole two-day total of 143, one stroke short of the record.

Celebrate Victory And Wedding

Celebrating a political victory and a wedding, Wisconsin's two LaFollette brothers and their wives are shown here, photographed near Hayward, Wis., as they enjoyed a brief vacation. Hindenburg Has No Fear Of Radicals

Berlin—(AP)—President Paul von Hindenburg, through his chancellor, Dr. Hermann Bruening, today made known to the Associated Press his confidence in Germany's continued stability and tranquillity in the face of radical successes in the Reichstag election of Sept. 14.

President von Hindenburg's attitude, not only as chief executive of the Reich but as commander-in-chief of the army and navy and supreme guardian of the Republican constitution, was confirmed by Chancellor Bruening in an exclusive interview after a conference with the president.

The chancellor himself assured the correspondent that he foresaw no danger whatever of a "putsch" in any section of Germany.

Dr. Bruening had received the correspondent last Saturday for a frank discussion of the situation but had at that time refrained from giving him the interview, but agreed to see him again after a conference with the president. In accordance with the promise he summoned the Associated Press representative at noon today and authorized publication of the following statement:

"Reichspresident von Hindenburg has been requested by different representatives of North American publications to make known his position on alarmist reports that have been spread in the last two days, especially in the United States, on the situation in Germany.

"The Reichspresident, in according with his custom, has given no direct reply. He was, however, in conversation with me yesterday, authorized me to say that he is in complete agreement with the survey of the situation I gave you last Saturday.

"The president fully shares the opinion that no danger whatever of a 'putsch' exists in any part of Germany and that the existing forces of law would be wholly adequate to restore peace and order within the shortage period.

"Furthermore, President von Hindenburg, in his conversation with me yesterday, gave to me explicit approval of the government's intention to employ all efforts to bring to a conclusion the financial remedial arrangements initiated some considerable time ago for the benefit of the country's economic system and of the German nation.

"In so doing the Reichspresident places his confidence in the sound common sense of the German people and he expects that, despite the unusually difficult internal and external political situation of the Reich, these great tasks can be accomplished on the basis of the existing constitution."

WRIT DEMANDED IN MICHIGAN RECOUNT

Groesbeck Attorneys Claim Rulings Prejudicial to Their Client

Lansing, Mich., —(AP)— A petition asking for a writ of mandamus to compel the state board of canvassers to count or refrain from counting certain ballots in the re-check of Republican votes for governor was filed in the supreme court today by attorneys for Alex J. Groesbeck, defeated candidate.

The petition alleges that the board made rulings prejudicial to Groesbeck, and contends many ballots were not counted because they were not properly sealed, while others were counted despite the fact they bore distinguishing marks and other errors.

A stay to halt the recount until a judicial ruling could be made, was asked. The court, taking prompt action, arranged to hear arguments this afternoon.

Meanwhile, the count continued. In 1,211 precincts Groesbeck had a net gain of 162. In 30 counties Groesbeck picked up 268 and in 17 Wilber M. Brucker gained 206.

PHILADELPHIA OUSTS NEW YORK GANGSTER

Philadelphia — (AP) —Jack (Legs) Diamond, New York gangster, who was deported from Germany and arrived yesterday on the steamer Hanover, was today ordered to leave the city.

Diamond was arrested yesterday as a suspicious character and given a hearing today before a police magistrate, who gave him an hour to leave town. As he left the court room flanked by two New York lawyers, Diamond announced that he was leaving for New York.

Wife Drinks Poison, But Will Recover

Leaving a note asking that her children be taken care of, Mrs. Maybelle Potter, 38, 2003 N. Appleton-st, drank an ounce and a half of caurlatic acid at her home about 4 o'clock this morning. However, her husband called a doctor immediately and after first aid was administered the doctor said he thought the woman would not suffer any ill effects.

Officer Albert Deltgen was called to the home by the husband, Warden Potter. Mr. Potter said he came to Appleton with his family last Friday from Ladysmith.

In the note left by Mrs. Potter she said:

"If anything happens I am sorry but I did it because I knew no other way. Please take care of my poor helpless children."

The woman said she took the poison in moment of despondency. The acid was purchased at a drug store in Ladysmith.

COMET OBSERVED FROM WILLIAMS BAY LOOKOUT

Williams Bay, Wis.—(AP)—There's a new tenant—a comet—in the vacant apartment across the celestial court room the earth today, according to Dr. Edwin B. Frost, director of Yerkes observatory.

Last night there was a light in the window, and Prof. Grooso Van Biersbroeck, looking through the telescope, knew right off it was Temple's second comet—the same chap who moved in for a little while in the summer of 1925 and then got into the van again and left.

Dr. Van Biersbroeck "picked it up" close to the boundary between the constellations of Scorpio and Ophiuchus.

The amateur astronomer can find the place where the comet was seen by identifying Scorpio, conspicuous in the southern evening sky because of the red star Antares and the curved row of stars forming the tail of the scorpion, now low in the southwest just after sunset.

Senator Norris Digs Into Affairs Of His Namesake

Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)—Political skeletons rattled in Nebraska yesterday as Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, chairman of the campaign funds investigating committee, dug back into the recent Republican senatorial campaign.

And when the day ended George W. Norris of Enid, Okla., the former Broken Bow, Neb., grocer candidate for Senator George W. Norris' togs, had undergone a period of "verbal" research at the hands of the veteran solon.

He first dug into the Oklahoma man's financial affairs, eliciting from him the information that he had not paid his attorney his fee for representing him before two tribunals seeking to establish the validity of the belated Norris number two filing which was subsequently ruled out, and then he delved into the motives back of that filing in the senatorial contest.

"Just how can you say your filing in the senatorial contest was in good faith when both of us would have been erased from the picture if both names had been permitted to stay on the ballot?" Senator Norris queried.

To this his erstwhile opponent replied, "I explained that this morning," but this answer only aroused the veteran senator to say:

"You didn't explain that this morning, and what's more you can't explain it—you only filed in an attempt to eliminate us both from the race."

Senator Nye and the Grocer Norris parried words throughout the afternoon but the former's ire descended upon Victor Seymour of Lincoln now assistant to the chairman in charge of Republican affairs in western states with headquarters in Denver.

Throughout the day Seymour's name was injected by various witnesses as having engaged counsel for Norris number two when his filing was opposed.

BODY OF MISSING JURIST BELIEVED FOUND IN BAY

New York—(AP)—A body answering the description of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater in numerous details, including a mutilated right index finger, was recovered from the upper bay today and taken to a Staten Island morgue. Justice Crater has been missing since Aug. 6.

The body answered the description of the missing jurist in height and weight and seemed to be that of a man of about the judge's age. District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, who has been conducting a grand jury investigation of the disappearance, was immediately notified.

Thousands At Opening Of Eucharistic Congress

Omaha—(AP)—The Holy Eucharist, around which all Catholic faith is centered, was the object of solemn adoration and devotion here today as unestimated thousands flocked here for impressively colorful opening of the sixth national Eucharistic congress.

The eyes of Catholic America were turned toward St. Cecilia's cathedral here this morning as Archbishop Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, papal delegate to the United States, lifted up the host at the elevation of a solemn pontifical votive mass and repeated the words, in Latin:

"This is my body," signifying the presence of Jesus Christ in the Eucharist.

At the solemn opening service of the three day congress, Archbishop Fumasoni-Biondi, read to the assembled thousands, dignitaries, clergy, and laity, a personal letter of greeting from his holiness, Pope Pius XI, reigning pontiff of the Catholic church.

In the cathedral at the opening of the mass were bishops and archbishops from every section of the United States, garbed in their ferrailo or robes of cardinal red, hundreds of priests and abbots, and more thousands than the massive building could seat.

"If all the priests will take part in the congress at Omaha," the pope's letter read in part, "stir up one another to follow those holy exhortations and examples in such wise that later they will strive to carry into effect with greater energy, day by day, what is resolved in their sessions, then beyond doubt the congress will have a happy outcome and be fruitful in abundance."

Pope Pius in his epistle to the congress thousands particularly commended Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland, patron of the congress and Bishop Joseph Rummel of Omaha, for the parts they played in completing plans for the congress, the first national meeting in 19 years in the United States. The congress in Chicago in 1926 was an international affair.

CHILE HOLDS HUNDREDS IN REVOLT PLOT

Doubt Administration's Assurance That Quiet Prevails in Nation

Mendoza, Argentina —(AP)— Hundreds of persons are known here to have been placed under arrest in southern Chile the government's attempt to suppress the revolutionary movement which developed Sunday at Concepcion, third city of the republic.

While administration sources reiterated assurances that complete quiet prevailed and that the situation was completely in hand, reports persisted that it was far more serious than represented, and that the government has it difficulties to overcome.

President Colonel Carlos Ibanez, at whose regime the movement has been directed, was understood to be in constant telephonic communication with Concepcion, while for persons outside his immediate official family use of the telephone and communication with that area was denied.

Advices received here from Concepcion today said it was by mere chance that two military men and three civilians who landed there Sunday from the Argentine intending to bring about rebellion of the Chacabuco regiment failed of their purpose, or at least met so untimely a check.

While they discussed their pronoup with officers of the regiment General Jose Maria Barcelo Lira appeared and shown in upon the conference. The commandant sized up the situation and drawing his pistol fired three times at Colonel Marmaduke Grove, one of the conspirators.

REPLIED TO FIRE

Colonel Grove replied with his own gun and perhaps six shots were exchanged. The revolutionaries then fled to a room in the garrison and prepared to defend themselves, but General Barcelo placed a piece of artillery in command of the location and they surrendered.

One of the three civilians connected with the attempted coup, Pedro Leon Uglade, was known here to have fled and made his escape, leaving but four of the five who landed in the airplane from the Argentine, and the plane's two American pilots, under arrest. About 20 officers of the regiment are understood to have been implicated in the movement.

All those arrested were later transferred aboard the cruiser destroyer Uribe, anchored near Talcahuano, where they were held strictly incommunicado.

Well informed sources here express the belief today that unexpected events may take place across the Andes. They give little credit to the official dispatches that all is quiet. The attempted coup is thought to have received strong support from Chilean naval and military forces.

CHICAGO MAYOR SEEKS RENOMINATION, REPORT

Chicago—(AP)— The Daily News said today that Mayor William Hale Thompson had launched a campaign for renomination to the executive chair he has occupied through three terms.

The drive for the Republic nomination was launched, the newspaper said, at a conference of attorneys in the city's employ yesterday at which John G. Drennan, assistant corporation counsel, presided.

"All of you are working for the city," the News quoted Mr. Drennan. "That means you are working for Mayor Thompson and for his renomination in February."

Samuel A. Ettelson, corporation counsel, chief advisor to the mayor and acting executive in Mr. Thompson's absence, pooh-poohed the published report. He asserted the meeting was a legal conference and that politics was not discussed.

Mayor Thompson's cryptic answer to inquirers concerning his fourth term aspirations today was: "One election at a time."

DANE-CO JAIL CALLED UNFIT FOR PRISONERS

Madison — (AP)—On recommendation of L. G. Foley, federal prison inspector, three federal prisoners held in the Dane-co jail have been ordered transferred to the Sauk-co jail on charges that the local jail is "verminous."

County officers said the action by federal authorities was hasty and ill-advised. They maintained new mattresses had been ordered to comply with federal demands after Foley's inspection and that the place was in "fine shape." Sheriff Harold Smedal said the jail had recently been inspected by State Inspector Matt Tappins and that Tappins said the institution was in good condition.

FIVE BANDITS ESCAPE WITH OVER $20,000

CUSTOMERS ON FLOOR

Assistant Cashier Clubbed After He Opens Vault for Bandits

Five men held up the Bank of Kaukauna, 102 W. Wisconsin-ave, Kaukauna, at about 2:15 this afternoon and escaped with cash and negotiable securities estimated at between $20,000 and $25,000.

Between $12,000 and $15,000 in cash and from $5,000 to $8,000 in negotiable securities comprised the loot, it was believed. The exact loss had not been determined this afternoon.

Entering the bank with drawn revolvers, four of the men herded the customers and bank employes into the cages and ordered them to lie down on the floor. One of the bandits remained just inside the door with a gun in each hand, cursing at everybody in the bank and warning them not to make any unnecessary moves. The other three dashed into the cages and scopped up all the money in sight.

After satisfying themselves that there was no more cash in the cages they ordered G. S. Mulholland, assistant cashier, to get up off the floor and open the vault. Apparently dissatisfied with the small amount of cash they discovered in the vault, they demanded that Mulholland tell them where the rest of the money was.

"Tell us where it all is, or we'll drill a bullet through you," they snapped at Mulholland.

The assistant cashier pleaded with them that there was no more money in the building. After repeated threats brought no more information one of the bandits struck Mulholland over the head with a gun, knocking him unconscious.

Amy Bayorgeon, a teller, also was struck on the head when the bandits decided that he was not getting down on the floor fast enough.

more more

The robbers showed consideration for an old, feeble woman who was among the customers. Instead of herding her back into the cages with the rest of the people, they ordered her to lie down on the floor where she was, directly in front of one of the windows.

Herman Baier, a customer, also was struck on the head with a gun because he did not comply rapidly enough with the orders to lie down.

As the bandits were leaving the bank, Carl Runte, a Kaukauna business man, entered. He was greeted with oaths and was knocked down.

The fifth bandit had been left in the automobile, which was parked just outside the front entrance, with the motor running. His four companions dashed out of the building, into the large blue sedan, which was either a Packard or Cadillac, and sped away.

The car proceeded one block south and then turned to the right, leaving the city on Desnoyer-st. Before getting out of the city limits, however, they could have turned either toward Appleton or Green Bay, it was pointed out.

The leader, who stood by the door covering everybody in the bank, appeared to be about 30 years old. He was short, heavy set man, of dark complexion, and wore a mustache. His companions also appeared to be young men. All were well dressed.

Runte, despite the heavy blow, was only stunned by the force of the blow and recovered almost immediately. He spied the car carrying the bandits away, jumped into his own car and gave pursuit. He did not get any trace of the robbers, however.

Herman T. Runte, president of the bank, said the loss is covered by insurance.

Besides Mulholland and Bayorgeon, other officers in the bank were C. D. Towsley, cashier; Miss Barbara Kramer, assistant cashier; Miss Edna Sager, teller; and Clarence Zastrow, teller.

The sheriff's department and the Appleton police department were notified at once and police officers and a special posse were soon combing the roads throughout the county. George T. Prim, chief of police, and Officers Carl Radtke and Gus Herskorn left for Kaukauna a few minutes after the robbery took place.

PUT IN PRISON TO FORESTALL MOB VIOLENCE

Two Confessions Kept Secret Until Prisoner Is Lodged Behind Bars

South Bend, Ind. —(AP)— George Sherman Myers, 40 year-old ex-convict, was held under close guard at Michigan City, Ind., prison today for the kidnaping and slaying Aug. 27, of 8-year-old Marverine Appel.

Authorities here said that Myers made two complete confessions of the assault and slaying, one to prosecutors who questioned him repeatedly following his arrest last Saturday and another to Sheriff Thomas A. Goodrick. If convicted, Myers will face the death penalty.

Because of fear of mob violence, the authorities issued denials of the confessions when word of Myers' admissions first got abroad. Then Myers was rushed by automobile to the state prison, with shotgun squads preceding and following his car, as a precaution to insure his safety.

Later it was learned that Myers had been trapped in conflicting statements and officers said he had suddenly broken down and dictated the confessions.

Walking from his own home four blocks away, Myers admitted often passing the Appel residence, officers said, making the acquaintance of the girl. He stopped to talk to her on the night of Aug. 27, officers said and lured her to the barn where she was strangled with a piece of wire, because, his confession said, he feared exposure if she left the barn alive.

He decided the next day, according to his confession, that he would be safer if the body were discovered at once, so he returned to the barn. Then, according to his admissions, he carried the body down an alley and left it where the first passing motorist would discover it.

Myers was arrested by Constable Basil Surup, who after all clews failed, learned that Marverine had recently made the acquaintance of a man named George. The Appel girl was playing with her brother, Otis and some other children on the night she was kidnaped. The others saw her leave with a strange man. That was the last seen of her alive. Two days later her body was found.

The brutality of the crime aroused South Bend and a frantic search for clews was conducted. Jack Stamper, formerly a roomer at the Appel home was arrested but no evidence was produced against him. Several days after the slaying the authorities found the place where the little girl had been held captive and slain—in the loft of an unused barn. Constable Surup continued his hunt for the unidentified "George" until Myers was located.

Myers, according to officers, was married once but divorced. His two children were adopted by another family. He had been employed on odd jobs here recently.

Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Taylor, out of town last night, was expected to re-convene the grand jury, now recessed, when he returns tomorrow and authorities said efforts would be made to indict Myers immediately.

BUILDING PERMITS

Three building permits were issued Monday by John N. Weiland, building inspector. They were granted to W. H. Burns, 818 E. Pacific-st, two car garage, cost $100; William Tieckel, 408 E. Randall-st, addition to residence, cost $150, and Gus Hoferbecker, 1401 N. Appleton-st, addition to residence, cost $100.

Drunk Is Fined

Manley Thompson, 1019 W. Harris-st, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Tuesday morning when he pleaded guilty of drunkenness. Thompson was arrested about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning when he tried to get into the wrong house at 1019 W. Harris-st. Officer Joseph Rankin made the arrest.

HEIRS BATTLE OVER CODICIL TO MEDINA MAN'S STRANGE WILL

A codicil to a will left by Charles H. Springer, town of Medina, which ordered that all his clothing "and anything in them" be given his daughter, was the disputed point in a contest waged in county court at Madison Monday afternoon.

When Springer died, his daughter, Mrs. Frank Motl, found $359 in gold lying between her father's shirts in a bureau drawer, $285 in a suit, $890 in a coat, $3,950, in certificates of deposit in a baking powder can in a bureau drawer, and $800 in a safe.

In the will, the deceased man provided for the equal division of the estate between Mrs. Motl and the latter's brother. County Judge George Kroncke stated Monday afternoon that he would decide as to whether Mrs. Motl is entitled to the money, which Springer apparently had secreted in his clothes.

Oshkosh Group Takes First Place in State Tom Thumb Contest

The Telegraphic Miniature Golf tournament held Monday evening in Oshkosh, Milwaukee, Appleton, Sheboygan, and Eau Claire, under the auspices of local branches of the Wisconsin Junior Chamber of Commerce was won by the Oshkosh chamber with an average score of 52, according to reports received here.

Appleton miniature golfers, playing on the Tom Thumb Golf course at the intersection of W. Franklin and N. Superior-sts, placed third with a 57 average. Fred Bendt shot low score with a 46, while Don White placed second with a 48. Archie Hawks handed in a third low card of 50.

Second place in the state tourney went to Milwaukee Junior chamber golfers, who averaged 56 while fourth place went to the Sheboygan group with an average of 67. Fifth place went to Eau Claire golfers.

Oshkosh, Milwaukee and Appleton golfers played on Tom Thumb courses, having a par 42, while Sheboygan and Eau Claire courses were par 51 and 50, respectively.

After the games Monday evening, each city telegraphed their score to their competitors in the other four cities. Prizes are to be awarded at a banquet, marking the close of the State Booster Tour here on Oct. 14, according to announcements made public by the committees in charge, Monday.

FAMINE PLOT UNCOVERED IN RUSSIA, CLAIM

Soviet Sympathizers Ask Death Penalty for 25 Suspected as Guilty

Moscow—(AP)—Hundreds of resolutions, adopted at factory meetings throughout the country, and demanding the death sentence for all 25 members of the Counter-Revolutionary society revealed by the chief of police, were published in all the leading newspapers today.

The resolutions charged the society with attempting to "starve the Soviet Union" by destructively diminishing food reserves in the country. "All those who participated in creating famine must be wiped off the face of the earth" is the commonest expression of the majority of the resolutions.

Demanding a thorough "cleaning" of all food distributing organizations which would purge them of their non-Soviet elements, workers in large factories are naming trustworthy men to replace those who will be "cleaned out."

All the resolutions compliment and highly praise the secret police who are called "the sword of the proletarian revolution." The government is asked to reward the organization with the "Order of Lenin" the highest honor in the Soviet union, for "vigilantly guarding interests of the laboring class."

Workers are liberally contributing to funds for construction of a huge Zeppelin to be named "Ogpu" after the secret police.

MANY TO FACE TRIAL

Numerous persons have been arrested and will face trial before police bodies. The activities were allegedly fostered by a British meat packing firm, the "Union Storage company," through its Russian representative named Fothergill.

Government disclosures of finding of the secret police said that the society embraced organizations of the fish, meat, vegetable, and other food industries as well as the commissariat and state planning institutions. It was the purpose of the organization to replace the proletarian rule with a system of bourgeois democracy.

Professor Alexander Ryazantzev, chairman of the meat products department of the commissariat, formerly a rich land owner and general in the Tsarist army, was said to head the Counter-Revolutionary organization.

The government claimed to have a confession from Ryanzantzev admitting that he received 10,000 pounds from Fothergill for his part in the conspiracy, and that the British firm sponsored the movement.

OFFERS 50 POUNDS SILVER FOR CUP TO BE GIVEN LIPTON

Salt Lake City, Utah—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, unsuccessful seeker after America's yachting cup, may carry a 50-pound silver substitute for the highly prized mug back to Great Britain.

Theron H. Tracey, vice president of the National League for Stabilizing Prosperity, last night announced he had telegraphed an offer of 50 pounds of silver to Mayor James Walker, of New York City.

Mayor Walker, at the suggestion of Will Rogers, the humorist, is collecting a fund to purchase the English sportsman a loving cup.

GRAFF IN MADISON TO PLAN COURSES

Marshall Graff, district director of the University of Wisconsin Extension division was in Madison Monday arranging for various extension courses to be offered in Appleton this fall. He reports that C. D. Case, former Navy flyer, will teach a course in aviation in Appleton vocational school this fall. Plans are now being organized for the course.

LABOR RELIEF LAW ENACTED IN DOMINION

Premier Bennett Prepares to Sail for British Imperial Conference

Ottawa—(AP)—With his program of unemployment relief legislation enacted, Premier R. B. Bennett prepared today to leave for Quebec to sail with his colleagues for the British Imperial conference.

The special session of parliament, called to deal with the unemployment problem, was prorogued yesterday after passing three measures designed to aid the industrial and agricultural situation in Canada. The measures were a $30,000,000 appropriation for public works, an amendment to the customs act designed to prevent dumping foreign goods on Canadian markets and a measure providing tariff increases.

The tariff measure evoked the strongest opposition and was passed only after Mackenzie King, leader of the opposition, waived consideration of individual items and agreed to permit progress of the bill with the reading into the record of guarantees by Canadian manufacturers not to increase prices under the increased tariff.

One of the features of the new tariff measure was the obliteration of the countervailing duties provided under the budget measure of the last parliament. The countervailing duties, which were enacted to meet expected increases in the United States new tariff law, would have been lowered automatically with reductions in American tariffs. Under the new Canadian tariff the duties will remain fixed until changed by action in parliament.

12 CHANGES IN LAW

During the progress through the house 12 changes were made in the tariff law, among which were provisions allowing parts and repairs for agricultural machinery to be imported at previous rates until July 1, 1931, and a differentiation in the duties on sweet and common potatoes. The new rate on sweet potatoes is 15 cents per hundredweight under the general classification, 10 cents under the intermediate and free under British preference.

The delegation to accompany the prime minister to the Imperial conference consists of Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice; H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce; Maurice Dupre, solicitor general; A. J. Phail, president of the Cooperative Wheat Producers, Ltd; D. A. MacGbbon, vice chairman of the board of grain commissioners; Professor Swanson of the University of Saskatchewan; and John A. McFarlane.

"Avenue Of The Dead" To Be Unearthed In Mexico

Mexico City —(AP)— If means are found within the government's economy program, work of unearthing the "Avenue of the Dead" in the Ttotihuacan archaelogical zone will be begun soon with the object of bringing to light what is believed will prove one of the most interesting monuments of antiquity in Mexico.

The avenue extends from the ancient pre-Aztec citadel to the Pyramid of the Moon and is believed to be lined on both sides with buildings. The citadel was uncovered some years ago, but the Pyramid of the Moon, like the avenue, still remains mostly beneath ground.

The archaeological zone is an hour's drive from Mexico City and dates back to an unknown era, even the Aztecs who dwelt near the zone at the time of the Spanish conquest having been ignorant of its origin.

The Pyramid of the Sun, larger in mass than the Egyptian pyramids although not so high, stands at the entrance to the zone. It was uncovered long ago and tourists who mount to its top can look down over the citadel and several other retrieved monuments, while within view are numerous mounds which archealogists believe cover buried edifices.

Work of uncovering the relics has not proceeded in recent years for lack of money, but the government hopes to find sufficient funds at hand soon to continue it.

CLARK SILVERNAIL DIES IN LOS ANGELES

Silvernail, who succumbed last night, was a councilman in the Actors' Equity association and general director for Sam and Lee Shubert in New York until recently when he come to Hollywood to write for the screen.

Put Broadway On Stilts, Finds New Gigantic Job

New York—(AP)—Paul J. Moranti, the man who put Wall-st on stilts and carved a half-mile ditch through the world's greatest financial section without disturbing the powder on a stenographer's nose, is seeking new holes to dig.

He looked forward today to his next job—building of a railroad tunnel under the Mediterranean sea to connect Spain with Morocco. The Spanish government has appointed him consulting engineer for the project and he will leave soon to make borings off Gibraltar.

Moranti's task of constructing a subway excavation to link the lines of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit system is practically completed—one year ahead of schedule. Seven hundred men contributed to the work and it will cost the city $5,735,149.

In executing a job that experts said could not be done without suspending operations on the markets, Moranti jacked-up 35 skyscrapers; shifted a solid maze of electric conduits, gas, water and steam pipes; by-passed the most valuable network of cables in the world; removed a brick sewer; sank his supports in quicksand; dumped the excavated mud twelve miles at sea and fought every step of the way against dense traffic and swarms of pedestrians on the narrowest streets in the city.

Moranti is the son of a distinguished Italian family and a graduate of the Royal Engineering school at the University of Milan, to which only titled personages go for instruction. He has burrowed in the ground from the Argentine to the Bronx and now at 43 he looks toward Spain and new worlds to conquer.

There IS something new under the sun

At last . . . the price barrier has been swept away

. . . no need now to postpone your enjoyment of quality electric refrigeration

Examine this new Kelvinator Yukon Model closely. Here is genuine Kelvinator quality all the way through, even though the Yukon's price is far below the lowest at which it was ever possible to offer a Kelvinator before.

Now you can enjoy every convenience and benefit of quality electric refrigeration; you can have ice cubes always available; you can keep foods fresh and delicious indefinitely; you can have crisp salads and dainty frozen desserts any time.

FIVE CUBIC FEET OF FOOD STORAGE SPACE

This new Kelvinator is a big electric refrigerator. It gives you five cubic feet of interior space—over nine square feet of shelf room. It freezes 42 ice cubes (4 pounds of ice) at a time. Its cabinet is massive, with heavy table top and extra thick, tight-fitting door. The Temperature Selector gives you instant choice of five different freezing speeds. Exterior finish is a special white enamel, developed by Kelvinator, on rust-proof steel. The interior is finished in white porcelain. All corners are rounded. Fittings are heavy die-cast hardware, in Butler chrome finish.

In short, here is a real Kelvinator—at a price which makes its IMMEDIATE purchase not only possible, but easily practicable. It is here, awaiting your inspection. See it without delay.

Purchase of the New Yukon Model is made easy by Kelvinator's ReDisCo Monthly Budget Plan, providing for convenient monthly payments.

JUNIOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLANS FOR ANOTHER VOTE DRIVE

Also Make Arrangements for Dancing Party to Be Given Oct. 30

Plans for sponsoring another "Get Out and Vote" campaign in the November election were adopted at the weekly dinner meeting of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Appleton Monday evening. A similar drive was conducted in the Sept. 16 election.

Committees in charge of the recent drive reported that factories, churches, theatres businessmen and city officials responded willingly to requests and suggestions by the committee and cooperated in putting over the project. The slogan of the Junior group was "Vote As You Please, But Vote."

Plans for a dancing party to be given Oct. 30 also were discussed. Plans were arranged by Norman Dragset, chairman of the social committee.

It was reported that bowling teams are being organized under the direction of Clarence Below. The Elks club alleys are to be used for bowling.

Harold Finger has been appointed general chairman of the State Booster Tour committee. The tour will take place Oct. 12, 13 and 14.

A group of the local organization will go to Milwaukee Friday evening to attend the Milwaukee Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting.

POOR COST APPLETON $2,000 LAST MONTH

City poor cost Appleton nearly $2,000 last month, the largest portion of the aid going to indigents not confined to the City Home. Outside aid during the month amounted to $1,101.89, and City home expenses were $547.05. A sum of $85.10 was returned to the poor department as payment for persons given aid who are residents of other communities.

Hospital and medical bills were high again this month, amounting to over $500. Medical aid cost $17, nurses cost $100, drugs $83.65, and there was a hospital bill of $307.35. Interment for an indigent not confined to the city home cost $80.

The city paid $250 in rent, and $108 for board for persons living in town who could not secure the necessities of life. Groceries for both outside aid and the city home amounted to $342.13, and meats $46.49.

Forty-six families were given outside aid during the month, and there were 18 inmates of the city home.

ORDINANCE COMMITTEE WILL MEET THURSDAY

The ordinance committee will meet at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon at city hall. A number of proposed ordinances, including those licensing golf courses, changing theatre license fees, and dealing with junk dealers, will be considered.

Wisconsin Weather

Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, with local thunderstorms; slightly warmer tonight in east and extreme north; cooler Wednesday except in extreme north portion.

General Weather

A ridge of high pressure overlies the Appalachian Mountains this morning attended by mostly fair weather in the Ohio Valley and the eastern states. A deep "low" is centered over the upper Missouri Valley, with Williston, N. D., reporting a barometer reading of 29.08 inches. This disturbance is causing unsettled and much warmer in the upper lakes, Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and the western plains, with scattered showers and thunder storms reported from those districts. This is followed by cooler weather in western Canada and along the northern Pacific coast, with three inches of snow reported from Calgary, Alta. Unsettled weather, with showers and thunderstorms, is expected in this section tonight and Wednesday.

Professor Fairfield Is Teacher For Half Century

Veteran Teacher

Prof. Otho Pearre Fairfield, head of the art department at Lawrence college, this year will round out a half century as an educator. Professor Fairfield has been a wide traveler, having spent 16 summers in Europe.

When Professor Otho Pearre Fairfield returned to Lawrence college this fall, it was to complete a record of half a century as a teacher. But it was not to finish his fiftieth nor yet his first year as a pedagogic, old fogy, for this time-tested teacher, both in and out of his professional chair, has had a life filled with interesting and broadening experiences that have kept his spirit young and his outlook youthful.

His teaching record, however, is the least of Dr. Fairfield's amazing performances. He has spent 16 summers in Europe, has made 32 trips across the Atlantic within the last 30 years, has visited every state in the union, was a lecturer for a season on an eastern circuit of the Redpath Chautauqua organization, was a member of the faculty of the University of Southern California as a professor of art for two summer sessions—a position to which he has been repeatedly asked to return, and is the author of one of the finest books on Italian renaissance art published within recent years.

Quiet, soft-spoken, "Otho P., as his Lawrentians are wont to affectionately call him, has that human quality which draws students to him. Hair white with age, and with a half a century of meritorious service behind him, he is in many ways representative of the college with which now for an unbroken period of almost 23 years he has been connected. A profound scholar, his chief interest continues to be life, which he teaches as art because he so enjoys it.

TEACHING SINCE 1881

Dr. Fairfield began teaching in 1881. At first an instructor in a grade school, he left to join the faculty of an academy, and soon became principal of the institution. Then, offered the superintendency of a city school system at a salary which he was not to equal for 10 years, he decided to go into the college field, so he left his post and went to Chicago to prepare for a future that he believed held more happiness for him.

New Year's eve, 1900, Otho P. was still the student-teacher that he was to remain all his life. But it was then that he decided to go to Europe. Two years later when the opportunity offered itself he made his first trip across at a cost of just $50, with full run of the ship. Speaking of that visit of 1902 he says, "Sixteen days from New York to Naples, the most enjoyable trip I've ever made, but I arrived in a strike season without a word of Italian at my command. A great time!" Before the World war brought the excursions to an end there followed 10 more summer trips that took him into the various countries of Europe, as far east as Constantinople, and into Northern Africa. Since 1918 there have been five additional visits to the Old World. Along with these trips of foreign exploration, however, have been frequent journeys through the states, for it takes a great deal of travelling to visit all 48 of them.

WAS ENGLISH TEACHER

Dr. Fairfield first came to Lawrence as an English instructor, and in his first year here was almost worked to death by 150 composition students. But for some time he had been studying art and gathering information on the subject, for these were taken no courses peculiar to the field of his interest. In 1911 a chair of art was established at the college, and he was given the opportunity of getting into the type of work which he most enjoyed.

The professor takes an unusual interest in modern progress, for he sees in it the development of art. Chrysler's use of the Greek scroll, and the employment of stream-line effects even on the Ford radiator are two of his favorite examples. "Art is one of the most important of fields," he is wont to say, "but as always it is the best to be developed.

Dr. Fairfield does a great deal of writing, but all that he produces grows out of the classroom. When a group takes up a subject, Otho P. works with them. When they go on to a new topic, he puts his materials away and does not return to them until a new class is working in the field. "The good is ever the enemy of the best," he says, which probably explains why he has not had more of his work published. There did come into being, however, "The Italian Renaissance in Art," the Macmillan Company, 1928, and with that out of the way there are several other productions in process, the most advanced of which is "A Book of Appreciation," intended as an instruction to art. Questioned about it, Otho P. remarks. "Perhaps it will be worth something, perhaps not. Perhaps I'll finish it, perhaps not; but it should be completed some day. In the meantime I'm having the joy of working on it, and the fun of hoping it may be a success."

FREUDE NOW LAYS CLAIM TO POSTAL CHECKER BANNER

John Freude, who carries the mail from the Appleton post office on route 6, is claiming the checker championship at the Appleton post office. And the funny part of it all is that most of the other postal employes, outside of Art Kahler and Chet Reisenweber, are ready to concede the title to John. It seems that John has decisively defeated all contenders — and further he has issued an open challenge to meet anybody at any time.

While John is conceded to be pretty good at checkers the workers at the post office claim that as a card shark he is not so "hot." They said they have tried him at every game known — and he still has to win one.

"Revenge is sweet," declared John this morning, as he fondly eyed the checker board.

MAYOR RETURNS FROM HIS SHORT VACATION

Directors to Meet

The monthly meeting of chamber of commerce directors will be held at 12:15 Friday afternoon at Hotel Northern. Plans for the following month will be outlined and reports of officers discussed.

BOOM NIXON FOR HOUSE SPEAKER AT NEXT SESSION

Charles B. Perry, Who Held Post Last Season, Will Seek Reelection

Madison — Assemblyman Robert Nixon, progressive, Bayfield-co, is being boomed by his friends as a candidate for speaker of the Wisconsin assembly. The post was held last session by Charles B. Perry, Wauwatosa, who will be a candidate to succeed himself.

Perry and Assemblyman Alvin C. Reis, Madison, were candidates for speaker last year and Perry won by two votes. Immediately Perry appointed Reis as head of the judiciary committee of the house and this started a ruction, which ended in the break between Perry and Gov. Kohler and the formation of a coalition between Perry and Reis. This coalition dominated the assembly for the remainder of the session.

WANT PROGRESSIVE

The defeat of Reis for attorney general, who was supported by Perry, has dented the coalition cup. In progressive circles there is already talk of an out and out progressive candidate for speaker. Several progressive assemblyman who met at Madison last week seemed to regard Nixon as the leader. Nixon has been active in the campaign investigation.

With Reis out of the assembly and with O. S. Loomis, Mauston, going to the senate, a new set of floor leaders will be developed at this session. Progressives are in complete control of the house. Veterans like John Gamper, Medford; B. J. Gehrman, Ashland; John H. Graper, Racine; John Fronek, Langlade, and J. D. Millar, Menomonie, are coming back, but it seems probable that some younger men will be named as floor spokesmen. Among those who show promise as floor leaders are Robert Keller, Sauk, who was especially active in the last session. Assemblyman Carlton Mauthe, Fond du Lac, is sure to take a prominent place in the leadership. He has been making a study of insurance legislation which has attracted much attention. He is a good speaker and is considered as resourceful.

Assemblyman James Hanson, Dane-co, will be one of the leaders of farm legislation; John S. Jackson, Iowa-co, will take a leading part in highway matters; E. E. Rowland, Cambria, probably will head the committee on banking.

FINANCE COMMITTEE TO STUDY PAVING PROPOSAL

The finance committee will meet at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening at city hall to discuss Alderman Phillip Vogt's proposed plan for encouraging paving in Appleton. Mr. Vogt feels that if the city would use the money it now spends on the repair of dirt streets to meet half the interest on paving bonds, property owners would be more than willing to have their streets paved.

Feed Wheat To Cattle And End Price Slump, Hyde Asks

RUSSIA HOLDS WHIP HAND ON GRAIN MARKET

Congressional Group Forming Plans for Probe of Short Selling

Washington—(AP)— With Russian grain operations extended to the point of temporary control of world wheat prices, Chairman Legge of the farm board, continued today to hammer away at the American farmer in an effort to have him absorb the American surplus and end the wheat price depression.

"Feed wheat to cattle in place of corn," was the farm chairman's reiterated battle cry. It would end, he argued, "all this excitement" over the sale at low prices, either for cash or speculation, of great quantities of Russian wheat which apparently is badly needed at home.

Chicago reports were that Russia held the whip hand with offerings abroad 10 cents a bushel cheaper than American wheat. The United States visible supply meanwhile mounted to an all-time record. Indications at the grain centers were that the Soviet government was making a drive for much needed cash without regard to the lack of bread among the people of the Soviet republics.

CONTINUE PROBE PLANS

Meanwhile congressional plans for investigation of Russian government short selling of wheat in this country—where it cannot deliver the grain—forged ahead with subpoenas being forwarded today for the appearance of New York brokers before the house Communist investigating committee in New York Saturday. Chairman Fish has declined to make public the names of the firms to be heard. Officials of the All-Russia Textile Syndicate, which made the short sales in the Chicago market, will be heard also.

A Chicago Board of Trade investigation of the transactions was at a standstill today pending receipt of data from the department of agriculture. Hyde had place responsibility on the business conuct committee of the board for curbing bearish operations of a foreign government.

The Russian grain issue continued to bob up in political statements, those of the Democrats being uniformly caustic. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, last night joined Hyde's critics, charging the secretary with using the Russian speculation as a "red herring" drawn across the congressional campaign pathway.

WEYAUWEGA MILL RUN BY ELECTRICITY

Makes Shift from Water Power—Largest Rye Flour Mill in World

Weyauwega—On Monday, Sept. 22, two large electric motors started the machinery of the Weyauwega Milling Company's mill, which for the last 80 years has been operated by water power.

The two large motors, one on the ground floor and one on the second floor, have been installed within the last month, under the supervision of J. Kitchen and P. Widsteen of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

Originally the Weed and Gumaer Co. ground wheat flour and did customs grinding, but when David Reese and George Moody bought it, they made of it the largest exclusive rye mill in the world, with an output of 800 barrels of rye flour per day with a patronage from all over the world.

The mill race was closed for the last time Friday at midnight and the water formerly used by the mill will be utilized by the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., whose power house is across the dam from the mill.

SUPERINTENDENTS TALK OVER ENGLISH COURSE

The reorganization of the English course in the junior and senior high schools was discussed at a conference of 20 superintendents, principals and supervisors of high school subjects from this locality at Lincoln school Tuesday. J. T. Giles, state supervisor of high school subjects, conducted the meeting, which is one of a series being held all over the state.

School officials from the Appleton schools, Outagamie-co schools and from Neenah, Menasha, Hortonville, Shiocton, Black Creek, Kaukauna, Little Chute, Kimberly, Chilton and Combined Locks were present.

Similar meetings are held every year for the purpose of opening up new subjects for discussion and thought among school teachers.

FARM HOME AT MARSH DESTROYED BY FIRE

A farm home occupied by the Ralph Culver family, located on the edge of the burning Townsend marsh a few miles north of Waupaca, was razed to the ground by the flames yesterday. All the household furnishings and most of the family's clothing was lost, it was reported. Farmers are still battling the flames in an effort to prevent them from spreading.

TEACHERS DISCUSS NEW READING BOOKS

The new reading books being used in the first, second and third grades of the public schools were discussed at a meeting of teachers of those grades at Lincoln school Monday afternoon. George Huebsch, a representative of MacMillan Publishing company, led the discuss-

17 STUDENTS ENTER CHEMISTRY INSTITUTE

The total enrollment for the second term of the Institute of Paper Chemistry, graduate school of paper mill chemistry associated with Lawrence college, is 17. Harry F. Lewis, professor in charge of registration, stated that the 17 students represented 15 different institutions and came from 12 different states. The students of the institute are doing graduate work under the direction of a highly technical faculty of men and women headed by Dr. Otto Kress.

MAIN HALL BELL WILL ANNOUNCE ALL-COLLEGE DAY

Annual Day of Recreation to Be Observed by Students This Week

All college day at Lawrence college is to be conducted along entirely new plans this year. Instead of having a definite date set, the bell in main hall will ring some morning this week at 8 o'clock, thus announcing to the student body that it is all-College Day. Classes will be dismissed for the day and students are expected to gather shortly after at Whiting field.

The program this year is planned to occupy the whole day instead of only the afternoon, as was done last year. At 10 o'clock the freshmen will assemble in front of Brokaw hall for a hobo parade to the field. Immediately after the arrival of the freshmen the inter-class mixed doubles tennis matches will start. The freshmen and sophomores will play first, the winners gaining points for their class. Juniors and seniors will then play and the winners will meet for the campus championship. An exhibition match has been arranged. Professor Clippinger and Doctor Landis vs. Charles Barnes and John Strange. During the tennis matches the annual senior-faculty ball game will be in progress.

At noon each class will lunch at its own stand, the faculty eating with the seniors. A special arrangement has been made with fraternity houses and dormitories where by no meals will be served except at the field.

VARIETY OF ATHLETICS

After lunch the frosh-soph girls ball teams will clash in an attempt to determine superiority. The winners of this game also will help their class total for the day. Horse and rider contests, the annual tug o war, and the bag rush will complete the program for the afternoon. Teams already have been chosen by each class and are practicing behind locked gates.

In the evening the first All-College dance of the year will be held at the new Alexander gynasium. The girls will have 12 o'clock hours for this night, a special dispensation as the day will probably come during the week. By special arrangement with the Power company, busses will be at Ormsby and Sage halls to take couples out to the gymnasium and return them before 12 o'clock for 10 cents each.

William Morton is general chairman and the sub-chairmen are: Agnes Snell, lunch; Robert Beggs, athletic contests; John Cinkosky, tennis; Lynn Trankle, frosh-soph games; Betty Wiley, girl's contests; Ken Laird, senior-faculty ball game; and Harold Sperka, dance committee.

DRIVER DENIES HE DROVE WHILE DRUNK

Police Arrest Edward Heinzel for Drunken Driving — Companion Jailed

Edward Heinzel, 715 W. Oklahoma-st, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg this morning on a charge of drunken driving. Trial of the case was set for Friday and Heinzel, unable to furnish $100 bonds is being held in the county jail. Frank Dunsirn, W. Washington-st, who was in the car with Heinzel when he was arrested, pleaded guilty of drunkenness and was sent to the county jail for five days.

The two men were arrested about 5:45 Monday afternoon at the corner of Harris and Richmond-sts by Sergeants Earl Vandebogart and James McGinnis and Officer Albert Deitgen. Heinzel and Dunsirn were held at the police station all night.

Heinzel has been fined several times in municipal court here for drunkenness.

SUGAR BEET COMPANY PREPARING FOR RUN

BY W. F. WINSEY

Green Bay — The boilers of the Menominee River Sugar company's plant, here were fired up Monday for final testing, and the plant will start on its season's run Oct 1 with a full crew of experienced help. Some of the sugar beet growers began pulling their crops Monday, and on Wednesday a large proportion of the growers in this vicinity will be doing the same thing. Sugar beets are of a good quality this fall and many of the fields are expected to yield from eight to ten tons per acre, according to C. D. Barber, superintendent of the plant. At that rate the 12,000 acres of sugar beets in the Green Bay district will yield, considering the lowest of the two figures 96,000 tons. In the early part of the growing season the beets were expected to yield a bumper crop but like all other crops the big, prospective yield was cut down by the drouth. As it is, however, sugar beets have done about as well on the average as hay, small grain and corn, and much better than pasture, late cabbage and late potatoes.

CHURCH OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY OF FRANZ ORDINATION

Appleton Pastor Ordained in Ministry Exactly 25 Years Ago

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination to the ministry of the Rev. E. Franz was celebrated Sunday at First Reformed church, in connection with the annual Mission and Harvest home program. Speakers at the morning and afternoon services were Prof. A. Krampe, D. D, and Prof. Paul Traeger, Ph. D. of the Mission House college at Plymouth. Miss Florence Roate sang, Gerald and Norbert Franz played instrumental selections, and the choir presented an anthem.

About 175 children and adults were confirmed at St. Mary church Sunday by Bishop Paul Peter Rhode.

The Rev. Lyle Douglas Utts, rector of All Saints Episcopal church, spoke on the Spicery of Christianity Sunday morning, using some of Houdini's optical illusions to illustrate his talk. Rev. Utts used the Hindu ring trick, taught to him by Houdini in 1913, as an illustration of the Biblical story of the Queen of Sheba's presentation of spices to Solomon. Urging more vivacity in the pulpit and cheerfulness among the ministers, the Episcopal rector said, "The Christian Religion must be filled with more cinnamon and less gristle."

Rev. Utts has been commissioned by the Bishop to speak at the devotional services of the Women's Auxiliary at its gathering at Plymouth Tuesday. Wednesday a men's dinner conference will be held at St. Thomas church, Neenah.

Rally day will be held at the Methodist Sunday school next Sunday, and on Oct. 1 there will be the regular reception of new members. Dr. J. A. Holmes used as his text Sunday morning, "We thought it was He who would redeem Israel."

PLANS RALLY SERVICES

A missionary theme will be carried throughout the Rally day services in the Sunday school and church of Memorial Presbyterian church Sunday. Miss Helen M. Goodrich, a missionary from Chile, will speak. The Ladies Aid of the church will hold the first of a series of congregational suppers at the church Thursday evening. The Rev. R. A. Garrison, pastor, spoke on Modern Crusaders Sunday morning. Pointing to the idealism, courage, and sacrifice that characterized the crusade period, the Presbyterian minister stated that these virtues are present in all humanity, but that leadership is necessary to call them forth. He reminded his congregation that the present objective, the enlightenment of the world, is far more important than the purpose of the crusades.

Rally Day was observed at Trinity English Lutheran church and Sunday school Sunday morning. The Rev. D. E. Bosserman spoke on the Biblical story of the 10 lepers, only one of whom returned to give thanks, and decried the present lack of appreciation for blessing received. The Rev. W. R. Wetzeler of St. John church based his sermon on the same story Sunday morning.

The biannual conference of the United Lutheran Women's Missionary association will be held at Racine, Oct. 2-7. Mrs. D. E. Bosserman and others from Trinity church will attend.

DISCUSSES LEISURE

Dr. H. E. Peabody talked on Leisure at Congregational church Sunday. The theme of his talk was that years ago, with 12 to 18 hours of work daily, the filling of leisure time was no problem, but that today, with an 8-hour work-day, the profitable use of leisure time is a problem of great importance. The Women's association held its opening meeting Tuesday afternoon, with the Rev. W. W. Sloan speaking on Glints from the Land of the Rising Sun, and Dr. Peabody discussing current events.

The annual state convention of the Congregational church will be held at Madison Oct. 21-23, with speakers from many foreign countries on the program.

The annual meeting of the Green Bay association of Baptist churches will be held at Whiting Memorial church at Neenah Wednesday and Thursday, with the Rev. E. Hasselblad of this city appearing on the program at 1:30 Thursday afternoon. He will discuss means of educating and keeping the children in the church.

The annual mission festival of St. Mathew church will be held Sunday, with two German services and two English services. The Rev. E. Zell of Mishicott will deliver a German address at 8:45 and an English sermon at 10:20, the Rev. F. Weerts of Cambria will address the congregation in German at 2:30, and the Rev. Harold Kleinhans of Oshkosh will deliver an English sermon at 7:45 in the evening. A class of adults in preparation for church membership was organized Monday evening.

The Weekday Bible classes in the public schools opened this week, under the leadership of Dr. J. R. Denyes, and on Oct. 13 the annual Religious Leadership Training school will open at Lawrence college, continuing for 10 weeks.

The Rev. F L Russmann preached on St. Mathew the apostle, evangelist and martyr at Sacred Heart church Sunday, pointing out the duty of every Christian to be active in extending the kingdom of Christ even at the cost of great sacrifice. The Rev. Theodore Marth's text at Zion Lutheran church Sunday was "Keep right with your God," and at Mount Olive church the Rev. R. E Zuesmer preached on Christ, Our King. Communion will be celebrated next Sunday at Mount Olive church.

Mrs. J. W. McCrory of Fond du Lac is spending this week with her brother, Dr. W. P. McGrath and family.

FALL ARRIVES IN SPIRIT AS WELL AS IN FACT IN CITY

Dead leaves are scuttling through the air, tree tops are unfolding their parasols of bright autumn colors, and green lawns are carpeted with a crunching dry brownness. The pungent odor of fall hangs in the air, the sun and moon are blurred by the smoke of forest fires, and yellow pumpkins are nestling at the feet of the protective corn stacks. Football practices are in full swing, store windows are showing soft winter outfits, and college students tramp through the campus. Autumn is here, and though officially it didn't appear until 1:37 this afternoon, the spirit of fall has pervaded Appleton for the past two weeks.

Blessed with more than its share of lovely trees, Appleton has an autumn unrivalled in this section of the state, and when long lines of elms and maples, particularly those on Lawrence campus, put on their fall garb, Appleton takes on a splendor that not even the budding green of spring can overshadow.

LET CONTRACTS FOR HIGHWAY MATERIALS

Improvement of Highway 26 in Hortonville to Be Started at Once

Contracts for materials to be used in the improvement of Highway 26 in the village of Hortonville were let by the county highway committee Monday afternoon at the courthouse. The contract for furnishing 500 square yards of crushed stone and 500 yards of stone dust was let to C. H. Peters, Fremont, at $2.25 per yard. There were three other bidders on this item, with the highest bid being $2.85 per yard. J. C. Humphries Construction company of Milwaukee was awarded the contract to furnish 500 square yards of amiesite at $1.43 per yard. There was one other bidder on this item, with a bid of $1.45. One bidder submitted an estimate on 500 yards of Kentucky stone at $1.85 per yard.

The grading and scarifying work on this improvement is being done by county crews who started work Tuesday morning, according to Frank Appleton, highway commissioner. The contractors must deliver the stone, stone dust and amiesite and place it on the road. The improvement will be completed within a month.

THURSDAY IS FIRST DAY TO FILE PAPERS

Candidates who will seek county offices on the Independent ticket in the regular election in November may file their nomination papers beginning Thursday, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Independent nomination papers must be filed on or before Oct. 10. Candidates seeking office on the Independent ticket must secure the signatures of at least 3 per cent and not more than 5 per cent of the number of voters who voted for governor in the November, 1928, election. So far, according to Mr. Hantschel, no candidates have taken out papers.

ARREST DRIVER OF CAR AFTER CRASH

Nick Klein, Appleton, driver of the car which last Tuesday night figured in a collision on Richmond-st when Officer Peter Van Oudenhoven was cut and bruised, was arrested Monday on charges of cutting a corner and making a left turn without giving approaching traffic the right of way. Klein pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court and trial was set for Friday. He furnished $50 bonds.

Klein was driving north on Richmond-st, and Officer Van Oudenhoven on a motorcycle, was driving south on the same street when Klein turned in front of the motorcycle, which then struck his car. The motorcycle was badly damaged and Officer Van Oudenhoven was cut and bruised about the head.

KIWANIS DIRECTORS HOLD MONTHLY MEET

Directors of the Kiwanis club met Monday evening at the offices of the Mid West Publishing company, but failed to transact any business because a quorum was not present. A resolution approving of another nine holes at the municipal golf course was referred to the club for a vote.

NAME COMMITTEE TO SOLVE SCHOOL PARKING PROBLEM

Property Owners Meet With School Officials to Talk Over Matter

The solution of the high school parking problem will be in the hands of a committee headed by Hiram Johnson, E. North-st, which will confer with George T. McGillan, fire chief, and the city council, it was decided at a meeting of property owners and school officials at the high school Monday evening. Other members of the committee are C. A. Pardee, Sr., and Julius Griem.

School authorities pointed out that they would not take upon themselves the responsibility, in case of fire, of a wilful violation of the state parking code, which parking on the side of the street adjoining the high school involves. However, the committee will attempt to obtain permission from the city council and the fire chief for parking in this manner, which in the opinion of the adjoining property owners, is the best possible solution at the present time. If this fails, it was pointed out, the vacant lot on the corner of North-st and Oneida-st must be used for student cars.

The suggestion that the use of cars by students be barred was made, but school officials explained that this impossible because there are 132 tuition students using cars, and a number of physically disabled students who must have transportation to school.

The rental of a parking place removed from the school grounds was offered as another solution, but this, it was explained, would entail the employment of supervision for the cars and the expense of preparing a place as a parking lot. Parking on the street several blocks from the school was also showed to be impractical, as residents in other blocks would probably object to the usurping of their parking territory.

The meeting attended by eight property owners and eight school officials, was presided over by W. H. Kreiss, president of the school board.

widely discussed in the press, particularly that of Milwaukee, the joint pastoral conference of Milwaukee and vicinity through its committee presents the following statement, not as a further contribution to a newspaper controversy, nor as an opinion handed down in any particular case of church discipline, but as a confession demanded by the present situation.

We can really understand the purpose of the American legion to continue the god comradeship established during the time of military service in the late war; nor have we any quarrel with the civic and patriotic aims of the legion as declared in its constitution. We commend the legion for its evident effort to eliminate everything from its constitution and manual of ceremonies to which anyone may object on grounds of conscience.

However, we deplore the fact that the American legion nevertheless in its manual of ceremonies suggests and provides, though not as essential and mandatory, certain prayers and religious ceremonies. We object on the ground of conscience to a fellowship in prayer where there is not unity of faith, and hold that participation in, Christless prayers and ceremonies offering a false hope of salvation is a denial of our Savior. A legionaire who is a consistent Lutheran would there fore have to object to the use of such prayers and ceremonies at any official legion function. According to the manual of ceremonies, the conscientious objection of any post member compels the omission of prayers from post-functions, and we assume that the application of the principle acknowledged by this provision will extend also to state and national functions.

Should the legion at any time in any case deny a member the right to object or overrule this objection, it would thereby officially make such non-essential prayer and religious exercises a public confession of a Christless and unionistic religion, violate its own constitution, and cease to be a non-religious, purely civic and patriotic organization, thereby practically forcing every consistent Lutheran to sever his connection with the legion."

APPLETON WOMAN IS BEQUEATHED $10,000

Mrs. Leila Nelson Fannon, 1117 E. Eldorado-st, is named as one of the heirs of Charles Waldemar Nelson, an uncle, who died recently in New York, according to word received here. Mr. Nelson's will recently was admitted to probate before Surrogate John P. O'Brien, New York, and leaves $10,000 to his niece and $10,000 each to an adopted son, stepdaughter, sister, brother, friend, and nine other nephews and nieces and what remains to his widow, Mrs. Beatrice Harris Nelson, 111 E. Fifty-sixth-st. The value of the Nelson estate has not yet been determined.

ARRANGE COURSE FOR TEACHER TRAINING

A course in teacher training will again be offered at Appleton vocational school this year starting Oct. 14, according to Herb Hollis, director. H. B. Player, Madison will again be the instructor. Courses are to be offered in cities throughout the state.

Freshmen Win First Tilt, Kidnap Sophomore Leader

Freshmen at Lawrence college won the first round in the annual frosh-soph tilt when they successfully kidnapped Roy Marston, sophomore president, about 6:30 Monday evening. Sophomores became suspicious when Marston failed to show up for his fraternity meeting at 7 o'clock. When called by worried sophs, Mrs. Marston said that "Bud" had been called to the door by a freshman who claimed to owe him a dollar for a book. He walked down to the car with his friend and had not returned to the house. Confusion reigned in the unorganized sophomore ranks. Cars dashed fruitlessly about the town and failed to accomplish a thing. The freshmen appeared to have out-smarted the slower thinking sophomores.

About 9 o'clock, after driving around side roads to elude possible pursuit, the freshmen took their captive to the Burns cottage on Lake Winnebago where Marston was locked in a small room, the windows of which were nailed shut, and his captors left him for the night. After a great deal of work Marston finally succeeded in prying open a window and climbing out. Unable to pick up a ride, he walked all the way to Menasha and there met a motorist who took him back to Appleton and dropped him in front of his own house about 11:30 last night.

VAN RYZIN NAMED HI-Y PRESIDENT

1929 Sophomore Triangle Club Permitted to Be Junior Hi-Y

William Van Ryzin was elected president of the senior class Hi-Y club of the high school at a meeting Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Clifford Glasheen was named vice president, Seymour Gmeiner secretary, Gordon Holterman treasurer, and Roger Lyons sergeant-at-arms.

A petition from the sophomore Triangle club of last year requesting that it be permitted to form a junior Hi-Y was approved. The club will meet three times monthly and will hold a joint meeting with the senior club once each month. The purpose of the two clubs is to permit easier handling of the groups and to continue carrying on connections that were started during the sophomore year of the present junior club.

C. C. Bailey is sponsorer of one group and Elmer Root of the other. Bailey's appointment is temporary.

DIVISION SEEKS NEW STREET DECORATIONS

Plans for securing some form of permanent decorations for College ave on holidays and special occasions were discussed Monday morning at a meeting of the chamber of commerce retail division. A committee was appointed to meet with the city council. The committee is composed of W. O. Thiede, chairman Christ Mullen, and Norman Dragset.

Plans for staging a campaign for funds for the retail budget also were discussed. Julius Kopplin and Chris Mullen were appointed a committee of two to audit the division's books and arrange preliminary plans for the drive.

It was reported that the division now has a balance of $197.10. Its expenditures during the past year were $951.42, while receipts amounted to $1,148.52.

The group also discussed a proposal of the Rev. Father Wagner of St. Norbert's college, De Pere for opening a branch studio to radio station WHBY. The division hasn't taken action on the project.

MOTHER OF 12 CHILDREN IS GIVEN DIVORCE

A couple that had lived together for 30 years and are the parents of 12 children were divorced in municipal court by Judge Theodore Berg Monday afternoon. The divorce was granted to Mrs. Regina Koffernus, 48, from her husbank, Frank Koffernus, 50, on charges of cruel and inhuman treatment. She charges her mate is a habitual drunkard and that he frequently struck her. Mrs. Koffernus was granted custody of four minor children. Six of the children are of legal age and two are dead. Mrs. Koffernus also was given the homestead and she will receive alimony the amount to be set later by the judge. The couple was married in Chilton, Feb. 21, 1900 and separated Aug. 27, 1930.

DEATHS

ELLIS FUNERAL

Nearly a thousand persons were in Lawrence Memorial chapel yesterday afternoon for the final rites for Albert K. Ellis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Ellis, W. Prospect-ave, who died early Friday morning from injuries received in an automobile accident. Public services in the chapel followed private services at the Ellis home, attended by relatives and by friends of the family.

Dr. H. E. Peabody, pastor of First Congregational church, and Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor of First Methodist church, conducted the services at the home, at the chapel and at Riverside cemetery where interment was made.

Dr. Holmes preached the funeral sermon at the chapel expressing the belief that Divine Providence has an end in view when it permits misfortune and disaster to overtake a family and that this end is to test man's courage and strength and to make him heroic.

About 25 members of the Madison chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon, of which Ellis was a member, attended the funeral.

JAMES KLUTH

The body of James Kluth, 1808 S. Jefferson-st who was electrocuted while working on a light pole in the alley behind the Wisconsin Michigan Power compay offices at noon yesterday, was taken to Pulaski last night. Funeral services will be held there. Kluth is survived by a widow and four children.

Kluth was helping to string a new line on the pole where he was working when his arm came in contact with a wire carrying 2,300 volts. He hung to the pole by his safety belt until workmen released him. Efforts to resuscitate him failed.

Kluth was employed by the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

MRS. WILHELMINE KIELGAS

Mrs. Wilhelmine Kielgas, 80, died at 8:30 Tuesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Nehls, 224 W. Washington st. Survivors are four daughters, Mrs. William Nehls, Mrs. Otto Ehlke, Mrs. Henry Falk, Appleton, and Mrs. Helen Brekke, Chicago, Ill.; three sons, William Sherwood; Emil, Duluth, Minn.; and Albert, Appleton; one brother, William Retzlaff, Appleton; one sister, Mrs. John Lopas, Menasha; 28 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Mrs. Kielgas was a member of St. John Lutheran church at Dundas. She lived in Sherwood for 50 years and had made her home in Appleton for the past 11 years.

JAMES T. NEWCOMB

James Timothy, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Newcomb, 342 S. Locust-st, died Tuesday morning. The body was taken from the Brettschneider Funeral home to the residence Tuesday afternoon. The funeral will be held from the home at 8 o'clock Thursday morning, with services at 8:30 at St. Mary church. Burial will be in St. Nicholas cemetery, Freedom.

Prayer services will be held at the funeral home at 7:30 and 8:30 Tuesday evening.

Mr. Schmidt, founder of Matt Schmidt and Son company, had been in the clothing business in Appleton and had been active in city and church affairs for 62 years.

MORE REFUSE CAUSES DUMP TO BURN AGAIN

The outbreak of fire in the Lawrence-st dump Monday night was the result of the dumping of inflammable refuse in the burned out area. This practice has been forbidden by the common council, and unless citizens adhere to the ruling the dump will become an even greater problem than it has been.

The oder coming from the dump is due chiefly to the saturation of the place with water, and with no smoke exuding from the ravine, the offensive smell can be kept practically within the confines of the section once infested with cockroaches. However, any new outbreak of fire in the dump results in the spreading of the oder to the north and west sections of the city.

The subterranean telephone trunk line, 470 miles long and costing nearly $10,000,000, between Tokyo and Okayama, Japan, has just been completed.

NEW OBSTACLE TO U. S. LINK WITH RUSSIA

Grain Speculation Likely to Delay Recognition of Soviet Regime

NEW LAW TO BE URGED

Capital Hopes Board of Trade Will Take Steps to Curb Activity

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1930, By Post Pub. Co.

Washington —(CPA)— Although there is no law by which the Russian syndicate speculating in wheat can be reached, the controversy that has arisen between Secretary Hyde of the department of agriculture and the Soviets is likely to have some far-reaching consequences in a diplomatic sense.

Some of the western senators have been getting more and more friendly to the idea of the recognition of Soviet Russia and some of them have been open in their admiration of the progress made by the Russians. American senators particularly from the west have been visiting Russia. The issue raised by Secretary Hyde puts the administration and these western senators in direct conflict on the attitude the United States should pursue toward Russia and makes the farmer much more interested in the debate than when it concerns export trade in manufactured products.

The price of wheat has been steadily falling and it is not unusual for the farmer to blame the speculators for depressing prices. It is unusual however for the government itself to blame speculators so in this case of course the charge is not made against speculation as such but the short selling of wheat by the Russians when there was no possible way they could bring their wheat to America over the tariff wall of 42 cents and sell it at the prices that would be necessary under such circumstances

ATTACK ON BOARD

Some of the western senators are attacking Secretary Hyde's announcement on the ground that the American government could have stopped the speculation by buying wheat through the federal farm board or that the amounts bought by the Russians were too insignificant in quantity to affect the price. Some grain operators are saying that the administration is searching for an alibi because of the low price of wheat.

No matter what the future debate may reveal the fact remains that Secretary Hyde has tackled something far more understandable to the American farmer than the complex operations of the farm board. For years the farmer has been agitating against trading in future or harmful speculation and during the last session of congress the Caraway bill which sought to restrict such operations was opposed by the administration. The difficulty of course is in finding out just how to regulate future operations and yet provide an exchange for the sale of wheat. The department of agriculture feels it has uncovered a serious situation in that it believes the Chicago Board of Trade should always be in a position to know whether those who are selling short can actually deliver.

When congress reconvenes there will be renewed agitation for a law to regulate further the grain exchanges and no doubt the secretary of agriculture will be asked whether his experience in the Russian controversy indicates the need of a new law. Meanwhile the hope is expressed in official quarters here that the Chicago Board of Trade will make a thorough investigation and take the proper steps to prevent a recurrence of the incident.

This clash between the operation of a communistic government and the capitalistic system does not bring any nearer the solution of the problem of recognition by the United States of Soviet Russia.

NAME MISS HITCHLER HEAD OF GIRL SCOUTS

Miss Florence Hitchler was elected president of the Girl Scout leaders group at a meeting Monday evening at the Appleton Womans club. Mrs. A. L. Hopkins was chosen secretary and treasurer.

New captains and assistants selected at the meeting were the Misses Esther Ronning, Joyce Nienstedt, Winifred Ek and Frances Lindow, and Mrs. L. D. Utts.

It was decided to hold bimonthly meetings of the leaders' group, and to turn the next meeting into a hike.

At a meeting of the Girl Scout Community committee held in the afternoon, Mrs. E. F. McGrath presented the financial report for the past year, and Miss Dorothy Calnin, director of the Girl Scout work for the coming year, made a report on Onaway camp and on Camp Edith Macy, national Girl Scout leader training camp in New York, which she attended for two weeks this summer.

STATE CHECKER CHAMP SHOWS HERE TOMORROW

Six players have signed for the checker tournament to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening when Harry E. Brooks, Green Lake, will meet 15 Appleton checker enthusiasts. Brooks, who is state checker champ, and president of the State Checker association, will play the 15 games at the same time.

Miss Virginia Oaks and Miss Jeanette Johnson have returned from Milwaukee where they visited for a few days.

BIG PUBLIC DEBT TO BE REDEEMED BY U. S. IN MARCH

Congress Finds Itself in Position With No Public Funds in Grasp

BY J. C. ROYLE
(Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press)

Washington — (CPA)— Congress has been provided with a pair of fish hook pockets, but it is doubtful whether it realizes it as yet. The latest move of the treasury department in announcing that a billion and a quarter dollars of the public debt will be called for redemption next March has left congress in a position where it can put its hands into its pockets but cannot take them out — at least not with any large volume of the public funds in its grasp.

There is no restriction on the amount of the public debt that the treasury department can retire within reason. But if that money is not in the coffers, congress cannot well appropriate it. Consequently a campaign of economy is strictly within the possibilities of enforcement.

Of course, one thing than can be done is to increase the income tax rate. This would bring in funds which could be appropriated but whether it would be regarded as a wise political maneuver is another question which congress must answer for itself.

REED FOR INCREASE

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania has declared that such a tax increase is inevitable. There is a general impression among the banking fraternity that Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and his departmental associates do not agree with him. They feel that the investors of America can be counted on to absorb the refunding issues without difficulty. These refunding issues will be long term "stuff" and will not be confined to the billion and a quarter in bonds called for March The offerings at that time probably will total a billion and a half.

The reaction to this policy of the treasury has been somewhat varied but a goodly portion of the banking fraternity are strongly in favor of it. In the first place, they feel that such an offering by the government would stabilize the investment security market as nothing else could. Naturally the treasury anticipates financing this refunding operation at a lesser rate of interest than that portion of the debt called now involves, but the new offerings will be long time securities and will clear the way for the shorter maturity issues of the industrial and commercial companies.

It is obvious that treasury department officials expect a fairly sound investment position in March or they would hesitate to "hit" the market with an offering of such size, despite the heavy over-subscriptions of recent government issues. If the bond market is sound, it is a corollary that the stock market will also have "found itself," since bargain hunters are not likely to overlook an opportunity such as this offering would disclose.

The trend has already made itself apparent in some lines. Leaders in the insurance world, who control the heaviest buying of securities of any individual class, forecast a trend toward preferred stocks, especially those convertible into common at advantageous rates, whereas the tendency heretofore in this line has been to bonds. In the cases where this move has not gone far, there is a noticeable preference for debentures convertible into stock. Bankers recognize these as encouraging indications.

VALLEY BUTCHERS TO CONVENE AT OSHKOSH

Meat cutters and butchers from the state are expected to attend the state-wide conference at Oshkosh the first week in October, according to J. P. Horn, Fond du Lac, president of the Fox River Valley association.

Three important issues are to be discussed, namely, unemployment, wage scales, and the packers' constant decree.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

MYSTERY STILL VEILS VANISHED NEW YORK JUDGE

Maze of Conflicting Clews Obscure Trail of Justice Crater

BY PRESTON S. KRECKER
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press

Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—As a result of disclosures by a high banking authority it is possible for the first time to give an authentic account of the evolution of federal reserve policies during the current year and to relate what the motive forces behind them have been.

When it first became apparent to federal reserve executives that a major business depression had developed, the question was how best could the central banking system assist in bringing about a revival. It was recognized that the depression was world-wide in its scope and that international banking cooperation was necessary to effect a change for the better. In order to achieve such cooperation, Governor George Harrison of the New York reserve bank made a visit abroad last February to confer with the heads of the Bank of England, the Bank of France and other important foreign institutions.

Owing to the lack of publicity attending the conferences, some misleading ideas received widespread currency. It was surmised that the central banking authorities were concerning themselves with an alleged shortage of monetary gold stocks and the successful flotation of the German reparations loan, as well as stabilization of falling commodity prices.

REACH CONCLUSIONS

It is now learned that while all of those matters were considered, the central bank heads quickly came to several fundamental conclusions. One was that there was no gold of gold stocks, over which they could exercise but slight control.

A second conclusion they reached was that it was not the function of central banks to attempt to regulate commodity prices and that, in any event, such attempts would inevitably fail.

A third conclusion was that one of the principal economic ills from which the world was suffering was a shortage of long term capital and that such shortage was a potent factor in restricting purchasing power and causing a shrinkage of trade and a decline in commodity prices.

A decision then was reached that central banks could and should exert their influence towards correcting that shortage of long term capital in the hope that thereby they would indirectly accomplish what they agreed could not be directly achieved; namely, check the decline in commodity prices and the slump in trade and industry.

SOUGHT BOND MARKET

It was determined that the best way to bring about diversion of money into long term loans was to make short term rates so unattractive that capital of its own free will would flow into long term employment. In short, what the bankers decided was that a good bond market should be created. That could be done, they agree, by reducing discount rates, and by open market operations in purchase of bank bills and government securities, thereby liberating large sums of reserve capital and keeping the supply of money so abundant that a plethora of short term funds would be created and abnormally cheap rates prevail.

That policy thereupon was launched here and abroad last spring and has been successful, notably so in this country and more or less so in the foreign money markets. Here it is visibly apparent in a revival of the bond market, the largest volume of new bond financing in several years and highest prices for long term bonds since 1928. Commercial banks corporations and individuals, finding 2 per cent call money, 2½ per cent time money and other proportionately low short term loans unprofitable, are buying bonds.

It can be stated that the federal reserve policy will be continued indefinitely. It is realized that the time element is important. The bond market cannot be made robust in a day. There is every reason, therefore, to believe that money conditions will favor the market for long term loans for months to come.

WINNEBAGO-CO FAIR OFFERS FREE ACTS

Many excellent free acts will be staged in connection with the 1930 Winnebago-co fair which opened today at Oshkosh. The fair will continue for four days, through Friday. In addition to the program of free entertainment the fair officials have arranged a schedule of horse races in which some of the finest racers of the state are entered. One of the free acts this year will be put on by Shee Noo, the Indian bard, who is returning to Oshkosh for the fourth consecutive year, thereby breaking a record for consecutive returns of this nature. Another free act will be presented by Hannon's herd of elephants. In addition to these numbers there will be dancing, acrobatics and comedy galore. Thousands of fine exhibits will be on display.

Wisconsin asks 29 questions about every baby born in the state for its official birth records.

WISCONSIN WATER POWER

If the recent decision of the Railroad Commission of Wisconsin that the energy which resides in falling water is not a property right belonging to the riparian owner is correct, the water power question is settled for all time. But we doubt that the public will rush to such conclusion or that the matter can be disposed of with so much ease.

The basis for the decision is stated by the commission to be "that since the owner of a dam site and flowage rights on a navigable stream may not convert the energy of the stream to his own use without obtaining a permit from the state to do so, he therefore has no property right in the mere energy of the falling water," and that a man has no "property right is something he has not the legal right to reduce to his possession." But is not the commission overlooking the plain requirements of the water power act itself? That law requires the commission, prior to the issuance of a permit to erect a dam, to "value the dam site and all flowage rights" and thereafter provides that when the state of Wisconsin takes over the water power it shall pay the owner not only the reproduction value "of all dams, works, buildings or other structures" but also "the value of the dam site and all flowage rights."

The courts must eventually decide this proposition. On the one hand it will have to be admitted that the company that owns both sides of a stream at a waterfall owns the bed of that stream too, subject only "to the right of the public to travel thereon and fish therein," although it may not erect a dam to develop the water power without the authority of the state. And yet, the authority of the state is necessary not because the state has any property right in either the stream or the energy produced by falling water but because the state has the right to so control the erection of the dam as to interfere the least with public travel upon the stream. The state will not permit the erection of a dam without the written consent of the company that at the end of thirty years the state may take over the property for its value, less depreciation, called the "recapture clause," and the effect of the decision is that when the state does take over such property it allows no value for the thing in fact most valuable in the property, its ability to produce energy from falling water.

It is a perfectly well known fact that land adjoining a rapids is more valuable than land adjoining the same stream where the waters are placid. The value of the rapids is the stumbling question, and like "good will" or "going value" in public utility valuations, subject to gross abuses, which does not mean however that it can be, for that reason, entirely eliminated.

The recapture clause of the water power bill was farsighted. It looked as far into the future as eyes can see, far enough to know that it could not determine exactly what would be taking place in this state thirty years hence, but that it was advisable that the state should hold the whiphand in regard to water powers, not to lay on the lash or abuse the authority vested in the people, but to prevent a similar abuse in the hands of others. It may be that in so doing the state was "seeing things," but it is better to be a little visionary than to have remorse, better to see too much danger than too little, better always to hold the reins in check where abuses are possible, better to turn over the government to succeeding generations in shipshape and orderly fashion than in a confused mass.

The difficulty with the Railroad commission ruling is that it does not face the facts exactly as they are. There is value in a water power. There is so much value in it that the state is trying to hold that value for the people. And it is not a mere conjectural value. It is a value which, with the aid of dam and harness and far-flung transmission lines, may be easily coined into dollars.

OUR FUTURE PROSPECTS

Whenever the American Eagle, feeling boastful, sits up to scream, one of his favorite brags is the amazing rapidity with which the population of the nation has grown. This has been so from the beginning. The nation measures its increase from the scattered two or three millions of revolutionary days to the 120,000,000 of today, and gives thanks. Individual states do likewise; so, with the greatest fervor of all, do cities. Our growth in population has always been one of our proudest boasts.

Now, however, it is beginning to appear that this boast will not be available to us much longer. The rate of growth is slowing down, due to the decline in the birth rate and immigration restrictions. Within a generation, according to competent students, our population probably will become stationary at one level—probably at 140 to 150 millions. In an interesting article in a recent issue of the New Republic, Mr. J. J. Spengler looks into the situation to see what this stabilizing of population will mean to us. He makes numerous thought-provoking prophecies, some of which are encouraging and some of which are very much otherwise.

The position of the worker, for example, will be better. The unskilled worker will be the first to profit by this cessation of growth. Older workers will not be laid off with the carefree abandon now exercised by employers. There will, in fact, be something of a shortage of labor, and labor will reap the benefit customary in such a case. On the other hand, a larger proportion of the population than at present will be composed of old men. The control of industry will lie in the hands of greybeards with "a smug, conservative form of leadership." The social and economic stratification of society will tend to become fixed. It will be more difficult for a young man to rise rapidly from nothing to high position.

Furthermore, competition in business and industry will be keener. No longer will a constantly increasing population provide an ever-growing market for all kinds of production and thus counteract waste and inefficiency in industry. An increasingly high bankruptcy rate will see to it that only the efficient industrialist remains in business. Nor is that all. Mr. Spengler points out that rural and urban rents, in the past, have risen because of the steady gain in population. When the gain in population ends, the increase in rents will end. Farmers, in particular, will be hard hit and their market for food products will cease to expand.

Because of the larger percentage of aged, the writer predicts an increase in the enrollment of churches and cults, with effete sports, such as golf, increasingly popular. All in all, Mr. Spengler emphasizes the fact that the nation is bound to bump into some highly knotty problems during the next few decades. We are, in fact, turning a corner in our development. We are about at the end of an era. It is not too soon for us to start thinking about how the change is to be met.

DANGEROUS, BUT PICTURESQUE

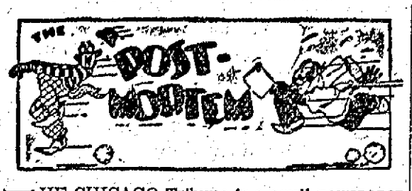

The death in Dannemora prison of Oliver Curtis Perry, one-time train robber, recalls a career that was both violent and dangerous, but that at least had the merit of being picturesque.

Perry's last exploit took place in 1892, when he boarded the baggage car on a train at Lyons, N. Y., overpowered the train crew and took command of the engine. He put on speed and tried to escape, but the police got another engine, chased him and finally overtook him.

Then, taken to court, he was sentenced to prison for "as long as he could see." This unusual sentence apparently stuck in his mind; five years after being imprisoned he tried to pick his eyes out with a needle, hoping thereby to gain freedom. The only result, however, was that he was adjudged insane and put in solitary confinement.

Now it's all over. Perry was never a useful citizen, but he had, at any rate, a picturesque history.

Salt water fish are caught 20 miles farther up the Potomac river than usual since the drought lowered the fresh water.

THE CHICAGO Tribune is a swell newspaper it still calls the Cubs 'champions' . . . yeah, we know they were last season . . . and it razzes the officials for releasing the news that the city was going to lock up its twenty five biggest enemies . . . even though it played that news up big . . . it also didn't realize what a profound affect which a small story, printed inside its sport section Sunday, had on Appleton.

Today's Anniversary

"BLACK FRIDAY"

On September 23, 1869, a financial panic began in New York when gold rose to 164 after a clique headed by Jay Gould and Colonel James Fisk, Jr., made a daring attempt to corner the gold market. "Black Friday" is the name given the two disastrous days that followed.

The Fisk ring had purchased about $60,000,000 in gold, agreeing to pay $96,000,000 in currency. The transactions were in full swing with gold hitting 160, when the United States government telegraphed to sell $4,000,000 worth of the metal. Instantly the gold fell to 149 and to 133 and finally there were no buyers at any price.

A panic followed, affecting business in the United States and disrupting international trade. The men who engineered the deals continued to settle transactions in which they profiited, but numerous court injunctions delayed settlement of the deals in which they suffered losses.

While no definite figures were available, it was estimated that the gold clique's profits were about $12,000,000 on transactions they were willing to admit and $20,000,000 on transactions which they refused to acknowledge or admit.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Tuesday, Sept. 26, 1905

Outagamie-co was to receive from the state the sum of $17,011.95 for the care of the insane.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Jones had returned from Detroit, Mich.

The semi-annual muster of Company G was held the night before, Col. N. E. Morgan acting as mustering officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krause returned the previous day from their wedding trip to Chicago, Milwaukee, and other cities.

Thomas McGillan was surprised the preceding evening at his home on Fifth-st by a number of friends and neighbors.

Members of the Clio club were to spend the following Thursday at Ridge Point park.

Eben E. Rexford, Outagamie-co poet, was in Appleton the day before for the first time in three years.

TEN YEARS AGO
Tuesday, Sept. 21, 1910

The fortieth day of fasting for Lord Mayor Mac Swiney began that day with little change in his condition.

The Misses Ada and Katherine Kronser had returned from a two weeks' trip to Chicago and Kalamazoo, Mich.

Miss Genevieve Weyenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Weyenberg, 776 Appleton-st, and Daniel E. McCarty, Redfield, S. D., son of Mrs. Elizabeth McCarty, Kaukauna, were married at 9 o'clock that morning at St. Joseph church.

The marriage of Miss Ann Slattery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slattery, and Martin Van Dinter, Jr., son of Martin Van Dinter, Sr., Second-ave, took place at 8:30 that morning at St. Mary church.

Miss Katherine Schrieber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Schrieber, Harrison, and Jacob Wolter, 931 Jefferson-st, were married that morning at Holy Angels church, Darboy.

Applications for marriage licenses were made that day by James McGinnis and Mrs. Katheryn Durick, Appleton; Harry Mauthe, Appleton, and Bernice Bray, Vulcan, Mich.; Ernest Schumacher, Appleton, and Emilie Kuschel, Clintonville.

THE PHYSIOLOGY OF REST.
13) RELAXATION FOR DIGESTIVE TROUBLES.

In his unique studies of scientific relaxation Dr. Edmund Jacobson found, as he tells us in his book "Progressive Relaxation" (University of Chicago Press) that even spasm of the esophagus, cardia (upper opening of stomach) or pylorus (lower opening of stomach) is amenable to this scientific relaxation. There is neither suggestion nor hypnotism in progressive relaxation. It is rather an art which one must learn by careful instruction and patient practice, as one learns dancing. People who complain of a "lump" or "ball" in the throat, or those subject to mucous colitis, many invididuals who belch excessively or suffer from "gas"—which is often nothing but air unconsciously swallowed — and others with one or another form of "indigestion" may obtain much relief from progressive relaxation. The spastic colon or spastic constipation, responds well to progressive relaxation, but the treatment, under the physician's instruction, must be continued many months in order to be of lasting benefit.

That this progressive relaxation is no minor method is evident in some of the complete clinical reports Dr. Jacobson gives of cases treated. In one case of mucous colitis of many years standing, diet, bed rest, suggestion, enemas, medicines, diathermy had failed to give much relief; removal of the appendix and gallbladder was advised; the surgeon was doubtful, so a physician suggested progressive relaxation. This was begun in May, and by August the patient had improved considerably and no longer complained of pain and tenderness in the abdomen. At the beginning of relaxation instructions the patient wore "a persistent severe frown and a frequently wrinkled forehead." These are just hints to indicate the need of scientific relaxation. (Progressive relaxation is not to be confused with the mere idleness popularly called relaxation.) Finally the patient was discharged from hospital with instructions to continue daily practice at home, just as one may improve in the piano playing with practice at home. Progressive relaxation requires much practice. Six months later the patient was able to resume activities which had been impossible for several years.

The first lesson in relaxation requires that you lie comfortably on your back on a couch or recline in a comfortable chair, with arms at sides and legs not crossed. Try to "feel" or recognize contraction in some muscle group, say in your neck, and then relax it completely. Then another muscle group, say your shoulders, and relax these, along with the neck. Next your frowning muscle, say, let that go, along with shoulders and neck. Next the muscle around your mouth and lips: let the lips go dead, along with brow, shoulders and neck. Next your eyelids: let 'em droop as in sleep, but meanwhile don't let your mouth, brow, shoulders and neck tighten up again. This should become your regular routine, all done quietly and faithfully, several times a day. After a few days you may let the chest and back muscle go, or let go of them, leaving the breathing to the diaphragm unassisted. This is a little art in itself and we'll say more about it another time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Be Yourself.

Every day, in spite of constant watchfulness, I have a number of letters left over, that I had intended to answer but cannot, because I discover that the return envelope is addressed merely "City" or "Local." As letters come to me from a good many cities I can hardly guess which city the answer should go to, and neither can the postoffice people, so the correspondent gets a large chunk of silence instead of the personal answer I wanted to send. Probably a large share of the complaints correspondents make about my failure to answer are thus explained.

Please Do Not Ask For Bad News.

Kindly give me all the information you can about ——— (name of a disease)— Is it chronic? Is it curable? What chance . . . (C. J.)

Answer.—No, no, for I fear that would not be kind. Please do not ask for impersonal advice or information. If you have the trouble, or if your dependent has it, say so, and then, perhaps, I may be able to offer some advice. I am always gld to give information or advice whenever I can. But I shall not send morbid information impersonally. If you want the advice for a friend—inclose a stamped envelope bearing the friend's address.

Acidophilus.

Kindly tell me if acidophilus milk is good for people with constipation. I hear people speak of it and would like to know. (M. J. E.)

Answer.— I do not believe it is preferable in any way to ordinary buttermilk or soured milk, which is always wholesome for any one who likes it.

Whooping Cough.

When is whooping cough most contagious, and how is it spread, and for how long does it last and how long is the quarantine? (B. W. F.)

Answer.—It is most virulent in the week or 10 days of the "catarrhal" stage, preceding the whoop. It is spread almost entirely by the mouth spray given off when the patient coughs—the range of coughing spray is up to 12 feet. Whooping cough usually lasts a month. It is but slightly if at all infectious after the first two weeks of whooping. Various cities have different regulations about isolation, some have none at all. Early vaccine treatment, an elastic belly band for support, open air life for the patient, and sometimes X-ray treatments of the diaphragm region, are the most effective remedial measures.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE Tinies' game of golf was queer, and Mister Travel Man stayed near to watch the little fellows drive and putt. He often had to grin. Said Coppy, "Gee, I know my stuff! I'm very seldom in the rough, and when I reach the green I promptly putt the ball right in."

"Sometimes you do," snapped Carpy, "but I've seen you miss an easy putt. Don't brag about your golf because you're not so very good. Why, I know more about this game than you. 'Twill really be a shame how badly I will beat you. And, of course, that's as I should."

The Travel Man then spread a grin and said, "I hope you all can win, but, really, what's the difference? It is real fun, just the same. Why, I've played golf year after year and lost, but never shed a tear. If you can win or lose and laugh, it is a dandy game."

They finished with their game and then rushed up and hopped a small train when the Travel Man said. "Now we'll go to Zurich. What a spot! I know you've liked St. Moritz well and you will find the next town swell. You'll have another spell of wondrous pleasure, like as not."

The train kept chugging hours and hours. They traveled through a couple of showers and then out streamed the sky. "Here's Zurich," cried the Travel Man. "All hop right out now, if you can. You all seemed interested and I thought we'd ride right by."

'Course Zurich was a big resort where everybody went for sport. The first thing that the Tinies did was loudly shout, "Let's go and find a boat which we can take right out upon that lovely lake." They shortly found the boat and all went out for quite a row.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Presenting an illustrious son of an illustrious father—Robert Marion La Follette, Jr., senior United States senator from Wisconsin.

He carefully avoids mere surface imitations of "Old Bob," for he is convinced that he cannot entirely fill his father's place in the senate. Instead he consciously and sincerely follows his stand on national issues.

Before he entered the race to succeed his father, he never had made a speech. He went into the campaign with a prepared speech, but lost it. Nevertheless he made a speech and did well.

"Young Bob" was the constant companion of his father during the years when he was of high school age. Even at the age of 13 he was taken out on campaign and lecture tours. He and his brother Phil were in and out of the capitol from the time they were 10 years old.

LIKES MECHANICS

In school he was much interested in history, but was only a normal student. Early he developed a liking for mechanical things such as motorcycles and bicycles.

In 1904 he first broke into print. It was at the St. Louis world fair and he was credited with having turned in the alarm when the Missouri building caught fire. He claims that he didn't.

He is an ardent baseball fan—in fact likes all kinds of sports. He is fond of travel. He loves the theater. His sister Fola was an actress for several years, and is now the wife of George Middleton, a playwright.

He reads a great deal, particularly biography and history. He shows a great interest in all economic questions. He has an instinctive interest in how things work, but he learns the mechanics more from observation than from statistics.

He drives his own car. He is perfunctory about official society, but enjoys going out. He dances a great deal and likes it.

REALIST

He makes his home in Washington with his mother with whom he talks over public questions. His progressive magazine is his main interest outside his duties as senator.

He is utterly devoid of any self consciousness as a public man. He is direct and matter of fact. He deals realistically with all problems which confront him and seizes upon essentials.

While he is not a conciliator, he does get along with his opponents. He knows how to relax from hard work—something his father never could do.

He has a keen sense of humor which is evident at all times. His father had it, but did not exhibit it in public like "Young Bob."

People's Forum

The Appleton Post-Crescent invites communications on subjects of general interest. The communications must bear the signatures of the authors as an evidence of their good faith, but not necessarily for publication. Anonymous communications will not be used. Letters should not be longer than 400 words.

PRAISE FOR FIREMEN

Editor Post-Crescent—I feel justified in saying a word of comment for the Appleton fire department. I have noticed fire department operations in a number of cities and I am fully prepared to say that Appleton ranks second to none considering the size of the city.

I was rather surprised, but much pleased, with their very prompt day afternoon when fire jeopardized property on W. College Ave and also for the way all members of the department carried out their particular task under the leadership of a very able captain (whatever his name is.) It was all done very systematically indeed.

I feel that we fail to show our fullest appreciation to those men who are daily risking their lives for the protection of both life and property. I feel confident that I can express the sentiment of the great majority of our Appleton citizens when I say that we are "well pleased" with our local department.

Give them a well deserved cheer.

RADIO CHAINS PLAN CONCERT SERIES BY CHIEF CONDUCTORS

Musical Programs of Higher Type Prepared by Broadcasters

New York—In preparation for the coming indoor season, both national networks are preparing musical programs of the higher type.

NBC announces the return of Walter Damrosch to the air with his Music Appreciation Hour for Schools, beginning October 10, as well as a series of concerts by Leopold Stokowski and his Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. Columbia is bringing to radio for the first time in its 88 years of existence the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra.

In addition to these chain features, individual stations throughout the country will put their local symphony orchestras on the air.

This year will mark Damrosch's third as conductor of the Music Appreciation Hour. The plan of his programs will run about like last year's, with four different series. Series A will be for grades three and four at 11 a. m. and Series B for grades five and six at 11:30 a. m. on every other Friday. On alternate Fridays Series C, for grades seven, eight and nine, at 11 and Series D, for high schools, colleges and music clubs, at 11:30 will be given. The course will start October 10 and continue to April 24.

COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS

A new instructors' manual which Damrosch has compiled with the aid of Ernest La Prade, his assistant, offers teachers a different method of aiding pupils in music appreciation. In place of questions and answers, full descriptive notes cover every composition played.

Damrosch's series will cover the make-up of a symphony orchestra, the different rhythms and tempos of music, symphonic music in more complicated forms and works of the more important composers.

The Stokowski program will present a new thrill to lovers of fine music. After his series last year, Stokowski spent eight weeks in the New York studios of NBC learning how broadcasting is handled, and it is expected his offerings will be greatly improved as a result.

More than 50 stations in a coast-to-coast and Canadian hookup will take the Stokowski series. These will go on the air October 12, November 16, Christmas Day and Easter Sunday of 1931.

NEW YORK'S PHILHARMONIC

Columbia's signing of the New York Philharmonic Symphony is a real achievement. The organization of 111 musicians will go on the air for the first time on October 5. Four of the foremost musical conductors in the world will direct them. They are Arturo Toscanini, Erich Kleiber, Bernardino Molinari and Ernest Schelling.

Kleiber, young German conductor of fame, will conduct the orchestra during the first six weeks of the season. Toscanini will then take up the leadership for two weeks. He will also direct the concerts from December 8 to January 18 and from February 23 to April 19. Molinari will conduct from January 19 to February 22.

Ernest Schelling will conduct 10 children's concerts and five young people's concerts which will be broadcast on Saturday mornings at 11 o'clock EST.

Programs for adults will be broadcast on Sundays, and will come from Carnegie hall, Metropolitan Opera House and the Brooklyn Academy of Music. In all, there will be 27 concerts for adults.

KOHLER COMPANY TO GET FREIGHT CHARGE REFUND

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — The Kohler company of Kohler, Wis. will receive refunds from railroads for excessive freight charges on shipments of enameled iron bathtubs and other plumbers' goods from Sheboygan to Texas points if the Interstate Commerce commission follows the recommendation of Examiner C. J. Peterson.

Examiner Peterson's proposed report recommends that the Kohler company be refunded $158.96 of the $512.16 it paid in freight rates on shipments of mixed carloads of plumbers' goods to Dallas, and that it not be required to pay additional charges asked by the railroads on a similar basis on shipments to Abilene, Pampa, and Houston, Tex.

The commission should further find, the examiner reported, that rates charged the Kohler company on shipments to various other Texas points were unreasonable, and that the difference between the reasonable charge and the charge collected from the company be refunded by the railroads. The freight charges collected on these shipments amounted to $735.01, but the exact amount of the reparations due the Kohler company is not calculated by the examiner.

PARIS WEARS GOWNS WITH DIFFERENCE

Shoulder Straps Will Relieve and at Same Time Reveal Bareness

BY AILEEN LAMONT

Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

New York—Indications in Paris are that you'll wear your bareback evening gown with a difference. The difference is that crisscrossed suspender effects, tenuous straps from waist to shoulder, or even a point of the dress goods running upward from the waist and held in place by a glittering gimcrac around the neck, will relieve and at the same time reveal the bareness.

London is going in for metal furniture and horizontal stripes in wallpaper. The boudoir which is also a semi-library or den has chairs, tables, couch, and bookcase of enameled metal, while the walls are both pretty and startling in bright, horizontal stripes—rather wide ones, matched by the couch cover.

It seems the lace frock remains, with modifications. The lace now looks as if it had been lacquered to a softly shining quality, and instead of composing the whole frock it is more likely to be flounced and inset upon a frock of chiffon.

MARYLAND REPUBLICANS IN FAVOR OF DRY PLANK

Baltimore, Md.—(AP)—Maryland Republicans Monday at their state convention adopted a dry plank for the campaign ending at the November election, calling the Democratic anti-prohibition declaration, adopted last Thursday, "a screen for the various shortcomings of the present administration."

Mayor William F. Broening of Baltimore, the nominee for governor, who will oppose Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democratic choice, and the others unopposed for the state ticket, were formally nominated.

"The evils of the old time saloon are now generally admitted and the Republican party is unalterably opposed to its return," said the platform.

In another section it said that "we believe with Washington and Lincoln that the federal constitution is a sacred obligation. The Republican party declares its adherence to this great principle and pledges its candidates to a sincere observance of the same."

The Democratic platform called for steps to return "the whole matter of prohibition to the states, and repeal of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of light wine and beer in the meantime."

EAGLES TO DISCUSS LABOR SITUATION

A number of members of the local Aerie of Eagles are expected to attend a meeting of state officers of the order at Manitowoc Thursday to discuss plans for seeking a remedy to the unemployment situation. The group will follow plans outlined at their recent national convention at San Francisco, Calif.

Letters bearing the signature of E. G. Dowe, state president and by C. Schade, Manitowoc, state secretary have been sent to members calling their attention to social welfare accomplishments of the Eagles and pointing to the necessity of attending the Thursday meeting.

New York — Bud Stillman's bride, the former Lena Wilson of the Quebec wilds, is to attend classes at the Harvard Medical school with him. He intends to be a specialist on child disease and she will go to some non-technical lectures because she is interested in the subjects that interest him.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC

SUE was taking down her night connections on the switchboard the morning after Judge Thornton's sudden return from the south, when Miss Parsons came in. Sue looked up casually, then stared. There was rose flush on the usual colorless face, and the older woman's eyes were sparkling.

"Sue, I'm changing my plans," she began in a voice that was younger than any she had ever used in the office.

"You're not being married?" Sue told a man that Judge Thornton would be in presently and turned back to the woman.

"I'm being married, but not to the man I had planned to marry."

"Oh-h-h, then it's . . . ?" Sue hesitated.

"Judge Thornton. Day after tomorrow. And we're going back south again, but Jack will be sent home to help you. I was more or less a good typwriter to Judge Thornton until he found out that I was leaving. Then he . . ."

"Woke up," Sue volunteered. "That was like an alarm clock to him. But I'm ever and ever so glad I think it's grand."

Sue started to rejoice with Miss Parsons but her heart was thinking of something else. Jack's coming back! It sang the words over and over like a song.

All through the next day and the next, even when she said goodbye to Miss Parsons, the refrain kept echoing, and the morning when she went to the office, knowing that Jack was expected on an early train, there was a breathless tremulousness in her heart. She had put on the blue dress that matched her eyes and bought a new blue beret that was the same color. Her hands trembled a little as she pulled a curl in place, touched her rose-flushed cheeks with a cotton ball of a powder puff, and listened for steps outside the door.

But the hours passed, one after another, and Jack didn't come. Sue typed mechanically . . . answered the calls . . . gave right numbers and kept wishing that the door would open.

She knew how it would be when Jack came. She let her hands rest idly on the keys of her typewriter for a second, and her eyes grew violet with scraps of dreams. Jack would fling the door wide, and suddenly there would be a cold, strong, vital current in the room that he had brought as he hurried from the snowy street. His gray eyes would be merry and excited and glad, and he would hold her hand, hard, in his strong tan fingers.

"Jack is coming back!" The refrain started again, and she could not put it down. Jack was coming back and he wasn't Barbara's any longer! Sue removed her silver compact from her desk and eyed herself critically. She was a little too thin but her face was still curved . . . no hollows . . .

She didn't want to be down south didn't beckon a bit. She knew that she would rather have been in that office . . . with Jack . . . than any place else in the world with anyone.

She heard a step in the hall. Her heart turned a somersault, started up to her throat, pounced down again, and started to beat too loudly. She hesitated. Should she be working, when he came, or waiting?

The door opened, softly, not with a glad impatience. She glanced up. Although she had never seen her, Sue recognized the woman who stood watching her.

NEXT: An unwelcome visitor.

New York — Miss Marie J. Leary of Greenwich, Conn., has returned from Berlin with two young growling pets on leashes. They are lions, three months old. She fears cages will be necessary soon.

SOFT DRINK PARLOR AT WRIGHTSTOWN HELD UP

Wrightstown — Five masked men, all armed, entered the soft drink parlor of Art Stephen here, about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, secured $67 from the cash register, and sums ranging from $3 to $60 from Otto "Peggy" Sumerlink, Pat Setright and Franklin Zittlow, who were in the place at the time. The victims were unable to give a good description of the men but the car in which they left was described as a large sedan with a trunk on the rear, corresponding in general appearance with the Nash brougham of J. H. Deuster, which was stolen from the Green Bay Elk's club about 11 o'clock.

Although Stephen lost the money in the register, he saved another roll of bills which he had in his pocket by dropping it into the soapy water of the rinsing sink under the bar.

MANUFACTURING FIRM SUES MAN FOR $1,095

Testimony was being taken in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg this morning in a suit for $1,095 brought by the Graef Manufacturing company against F. F. Wettengel, Appleton. The lumber company charges it sold Wettengel goods totalling $1,095 and it seeks payment. Wettengel has filed a counterclaim for about $500 and asks dismissal of the Graef suit, claiming that he sold two $25,000 insurance policies to Joseph Verstegen, a present member and Lothar Graef, a former member of the firm, and that the premiums on these policies were to pay Wettengel's bill and that $600 is still due him.

MAN IS BITTEN ON LEG BY POLICE DOG

Franklin Doing, 32, 1203 N. Richmond-st, was severely bitten on the calf of his right leg about 6 o'clock Monday evening by a police dog owned by Floyd Schroeder, 229 N. Richmond-st. Doing was walking west on Lawrence-st when the dog attacked him. He was able to walk to his home and police ordered Schroeder to keep his dog tied.

LOVELY

Girl: You say you are going to marry a woman with a $10,000-a-year income and you try to convince me that it's a love match.

Kilted Plaits

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON

Youth adores a navy blue woolen dress with the fresh charm of a white crepe collar. To this captivating model a little white frill has been added.

The kilted plaits of the skirt have been stitched to give a trim straight appearance. Stitching them flat also keeps them in place so they do not need constant pressing.

It's so easily made and the saving well worth it.

Style No. 2693 may be had in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards 35-inch material with ⅛ yard 27-inch contrasting.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Be sure to fill in size of pattern. Address Pattern Department. Spent 10c to save $10. How? By ordering a copy of our new Fall and Winter Fashions. It gives the answer to the often asked question, "How does she do it?" For it shows how to dress up to the minute at little expense. You can save on every dress and save on the children's clothes too. That means more and better frocks for you and yours. Order your copy now. Just enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin and mail with your name and address to Fashion Department.

BISHOP MOVES TO BUY JOHN WESLEY RELICS

Lugano, Switzerland—(AP)—Bishop Warren A. Candler of Atlanta, Ga., has expressed a willingness to negotiate for the purchase of two valuable relics of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, which have been discovered here. He is acting as a trustee of Emory university which has a large collection of Wesleyana.

The relics now in Lugano consist of two Chippendale chairs said to have stood on either side of Wesley's bed and at which he knelt nightly in his devotions.

Many years ago the chairs became the property of Samuel Sebastian Wesley, the famous organist and composer, a great nephew of the religious reformer. When Samuel Wesley died, his widow left Gloucester where he husband was organist. She sold many household articles or gave them to close friends. The two chairs went to a Mrs. Emily M. Pyne of Bath, who in turn bequeathed them to her daughter, now a resident of Lugano.

The purchase price has not been made public.

TAKE LAST OF SERIES OF TRAFFIC COUNTS

The last of a series of traffic counts, taken on three state trunk highways in the county during the past summer, will be taken Friday, according to Frank Appleton, highway commissioner. The counts will start at 6 o'clock in the morning and continue until 11 o'clock at night. They are taken by men working under the county highway department but the results are sent to the state highway department, where they are tabulated along with similar counts made throughout the state at the same time. There were nine counts taken during the summer. Counts are taken on Highway 55, just south of Seymour, Highway 76 just west of Greenville and Highway 10 near the Waupaca-co line.

Rubbish Fire

The fire department was called to the rear of 325 W. College-ave about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon when a pile of rubbish, being burned there, got beyond control and threatened nearby buildings. The blaze was put out before damage resulted.

WE WOMEN by Betty Brainerd

By Betty Brainerd

AVOID QUICKSAND

"Dear Betty Brainerd:

My husband is so jealous he hates to see me have any pleasure. A year ago he invited some people to dinner but, because I went to the movies the evening before, he came home drunk after dinner and started an awful fuss in front of our friends. Later, he tried to kill me but my youngest son took the knife away from him.

"I have three children in high school and if it weren't for them I would have broken up my home long ago. I am so fed up with my husband I hate to have him touch me. If I even go out to the stores he says all sorts of things which hurt my feelings.

"Eight months ago I met a married man who has two children. He met my husband through some friends and has seen him in some of his tantrums. I often see this man. He feels sorry for my home conditions, and the only times I am happy are when I am with him. I really love him very much, he is so kind and doesn't fuss, or irritate me as does my husband. Would you advise me to keep on seeing my friend—or what else is there for me to do?"

The fact that your husband has forgotten the meaning of his marriage vows does not entitle you to induce another man to play false to his.

You have known the bitterness of watching your children lose their love and respect for their father. Would you teach this man's children to do the same?

* * *

Until both you and he are free, cease seeing him.

If there is no possibility of his living in happiness with his wife, then in common decency both to you and to her, he should tell her so and ask for his freedom.

While he hesitates, he casts upon his love the shadow of furtiveness and places the mother of his children in the humiliating position of the abandoned wife. If he does not wish to divorce his wife, he should be man enough to terminate a courtship in which he cannot offer you an honorable position.

* * *

End your own intolerable situation at once. There is no virtue in a marriage without love. Unless you wish to warp your whole moral fiber, cease living with a man whose very touch you hate.

Give your children a chance to know what home should mean in the few years that are left before they try building homes of their own. You may find difficulty in readjustment at first—but there will be the beauty of gracious living and a sense of justice accomplished—and above all—peace.

My Neighbor Says---

To sterilize jars, put jars and lids in a clean boiler or pan of cold water. Put on stove over fire and bring to a boil. Leave at boiling point until ready to fill. Remove one at a time from the water. Adjust the rubbers which have been dipped in boiling water. Do not forget to dip the funnel into the boiling water each time before using.

Boil clothes in cream of tartar water, 2 teaspons of ⅓ pail of water if you wish to bleach them, then rinse and put on grass if possible.

Vinegar will remove the disagreeable odor of paraffin from earthen and tinware. Dip a rag into the vinegar and scour the vessel with it.

When peeling apples have at hand a pan of cold water, to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added. As they are pared, drop the apples one by one into the pan; they will not turn brown. Apples should be cut with a silver knife.

CAREFUL CHILDREN

It is pitiful to see Jane try to pack her books, cross the road, write a composition. Her brow is threaded with care. Her hands are damp with perspiration. She pants for breath at every new effort Careful about many things she goes threugh the world carrying a heavy burden.

This child needs the care of a good children's specialist. The first thing we do with her is take her to his office and ask for the most thorough examination he can make. She is to be set right from head to heel so that there may be no physical basis for fear. A healthy child never has it.

When you see a child go back the second and third time to make sure he has washed his hands, when he looks into his portfolio again and again to assure himself that he has his homework with him when he puts his work cautiously on this self takes it up again and puts it on another, then replace it with doubtful hands, carry him off to the genial doctor who understands such things and helps the children do away with them.

Fear, and this is one kind of fear, usually has a physical basis. I say usually because I have a streak of that same caution—I am not certain about the behavior of any child under any circumstances. But I know of not other basis for fear save an ailing body. A healthy body is filled with courage and joy.

The home must help. Watch the household and see if there is one among you who nags this child, one who keeps correcting him continually, for the child's own good, of course. Watch to see if there is one before whom the child shrinks, tries to hide, remains still and silent. If there is such a person his influence must be removed before the child can be strong and confident. There are older people who torture children without knowing they do so. They want to make the child perfect and there is none perfect among us. How could a perfect child ever stand the rest of us?

Try to inject a little humor into the situation. Be careful that it is not edged humor for that wounds a child past all cure. Make little jokes with the child in private. A joke held in secret is a great source of confidence. It establishes a bond between you and a child that lasts long. Tell funny little stories. Try to make the mealtimes cheerful. Try to put the child in the best possible light always.

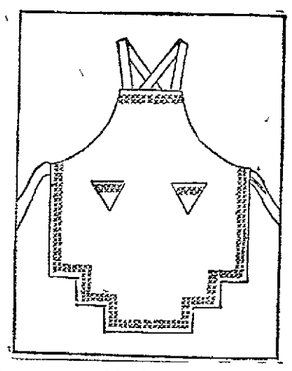

It is not helpful to criticise such a child before others. If anything personal must be said let it be in praise. Let the stranger carry away the idea that the child is doing well. That too, will help for public opinion has much to do with careful children.

Have You Heard —

With a new modern trend back in to the kitchen, it is quite fitting that women have modernistic aprons to don for their work.

You can make a charming one of checked gingham by cutting its lower edge in set-back manner and outlining the hem with double rows of cross stitch in the gingham's color.

Straps over the shoulder cross into the back and button onto the sides which tie in sash ends at the center. It takes just a yard to make one. Pockets and straps come off the sides.

Hints For The Shopper

The idea of a breakfast-room set, as many shoppers don't seem to realize, is to have something that is serviceable as well as attractive. It is easy to put a nice coat of paint on, but sturdy construction is a more difficult matter.

Your chairs may be of light fir, and therefore inexpensive; or they may be of strong maple or birch, which are durable. The cheaper chairs usually have a thin seat, with little strength and durability, and with a poor finish.

Some breakfast-room sets feature a table which their manufacturers assert will not stain or burn, and upon which a hot plate will have no effect. This table has a bakelite top. A variety of this is a top made of bakelite sprayed on a fabric, such as gingham. Besides giving to the top practically the same qualities claimed for the bakelite product, the sprayed top can be made with some attractive effects.

The correct name of whalebone is baleen and it is not a bone, having none of the properties of bone. It is found attached to the upper jaw of the whale and serves to strain water taken into the whale's mouth.

KILLS RATS NOTHING ELSE

K-R-O (Kills Rats Only) killed 238 rats in 12 hours on a Kansas farm. It is the original product made by a special process of squill, an ingredient recommended by U. S. Government as sure death to rats and mice, but harmless to dogs, cats, poultry or even baby chicks. You can depend on this. K-R-O in a few years has become America's leading rat and mouse killer. Sold by all druggists on a money back guarantee.

CORRECT PLAN FIRST STEP IN HEATING

Only Specialists Authorized to Install the Steel-riveted and Gas-tight Lennox Torrid Zone Furnace

Proper planning and installation is absolutely necessary if your furnace is to perform satisfactorily. Every home presents a different problem. Every door and window means lost heat. The construction of your house, its location and exposure, must also be considered.

Accurate formulas governing pipe sizes and furnace capacities have been developed through years of experimental work at the University of Illinois, resulting in what is known as the Standard Code of the National Warm Air Heating Association. Torrid Zone dealers figure and install according to those formulas—and are granted the franchise solely on their ability to follow the scientific principles of the standard code.

On proper installation the Lennox Furnace Company guarantees to replace any part of the Torrid Zone, except grates or liners, if it wears out within ten years from date of purchase. The average life, however, based on actual service records, is 21 years.

MYSTERY ATTACK ON RANCH PROBED

Two Employes Shot and Two Barns Burned on Washington Ranch

Tekoa, Wash. —(AP)—A widespread search was under way today for an unidentified assailant who shot Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warner, ranch employes and set fire to two barns on the Paul Masterson ranch near here last night.

Mrs. Warner, with a charge of buckshot and possibly bits of broken glass in her groin, was in a dangerous condition in a Spokane hospital. She was shot down as she was preparing to retire. The shot was fired through a window at the ranch house, apparently at close range.

Warner had retired, but ran to Mrs. Warner's aid as she screamed. A second shot, apparently fired from a greater distance, felled him. He was peppered with buckshot, but his wounds were not considered dangerous.

After the shooting the attacker set fire to the barns, containing much hay, farm equipment and one horse. Buildings and their contents were destroyed.

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Warner could suggest a motive for the attack and searchers had no clews to the assailant's identity.

ARBITRATION COURT IS FAVORED BY FRENCHMAN

Geneva, Switzerland —(AP)— Pierre Flandin, French minister of commerce and industry, in the league of nations economic committee Monday proposed the setting up of a permanent organization to deal with disputes arising out of the application and interpretation of commercial conventions between groups of nationals.

M. Flandin enunciated again the French thesis of arbitration and security as essential before disarmament, applying the viewpoint to the economic field. He said the disarmament proposals of Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, and Dr. Julius Curtius, foreign minister of Germany, might be sound but he questioned whether they were possible to accomplishment.

He said that if tariff disarmament could be called for and in subsequent negotiations proved impossible a bad impression would be created.

His resolution proposed that the state be urged to ratify a commercial convention drawn up by the conference of last March and that steps be taken to carry into effect a program of future negotiations. He advised holding an economic conference again soon.

Mexico now requires a permit to carry firearms.

HIGH SCHOOL GRID TEAM MEETS BERLIN NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Game Will Mark First Battle of Season for Menasha Gridders

Menasha—Menasha high school will open its football season against Berlin high school squad at Butte des Morts field Friday evening, according to school authorities. Officals have been attempting to secure a September tilt for several days and word of Berlin's acceptance was received Monday.

Friday's game will be the first night football in Menasha and a record attendence is expected. Under the direction of Coach Nathan Calder, a squad of about 35 candidates have been staging daily workouts.

Massey, Poquet, Stachowitz, and Lanzer will be the probable lineup in the Menasha backfield Friday, but Calder's choices for line positions are still questionable. Becker and Beattie, veterans and lettermen, are almost sure to see service but several candidates will be scrapping for each position.

A capicity attendance will be recorded at the inauguration of night football in Menasha, officials expect. Under the blaze of 16 1,500-watt lamps, neither players nor spectators will have any difficulty in following the plays, and new bleachers, recently erected at the playing field, will provide ample seating accommodations.

TWIN CITY PLAYERS WITH OSHKOSH ELEVEN

Menasha — Several players well known to Menasha residents will participate in the Milwaukee Badger-Oshkosh Cardinal football game at Oshkosh Sunday.

Tom Young, 345 Broad-st, Menasha, who worked at full back for Columbia university, will appear in the Badger lineup. Rupert O'Keefe, Menasha, will be at quarter, playing against several former team mates. Clifford Klutz, another former Menasha star, will probably see action with the Cardinals.

Neenah will be represented on the Cardinal eleven by Brendendick at center. Stilp, also of Neenah, is expected to see action. Roach and Johnson of Appleton, who have already demonstrated their ability to play in fast company, will be working with the Oshkosh team.

SEE IMPROVEMENT IN POLLUTION OF LAKE

Menasha—Although considerable discussion still centers around the question of pollution in Little Lake Butte des Morts, considerable improvement in conditions noted in that vicinity has been made, according to members of the Twin City Sportsmen's club. A number of barrels, placed in a half circle to prevent the spread of the waste pulp dumped into the waters, has been installed by employes of the Wisconsin Tissue mills and have proved effective enough to eliminate nearly all the trouble. Earlier in the summer, alleged pollution of the waters was said to create unhealthy conditions for residents living near the lake shore.

ST. MARY GRIDDERS WHIPPING INTO SHAPE

Menasha—The St. Mary high school foot ball squad is being rapidly whipped into shape for the opening game in Fox River Valley Catholic high school league play against St. John school of Little Chute next Sunday. The battle will be staged at Menasha Recreation park.

Under the direction of Coach Dale Clough, the team is being built from the largest turn-out of condidates every recorded at the parochial school. Prunuske, Stilp, Reischl, Rousch, and Zeininger are all veterans showing plenty of promise in early practices and are helping to make the team a dangerous contender for conference honors.

BOY SCOUT TROOP TO ATTEND U. S. GRID GAME

Menasha—Troop 9 of the Woodenware division of Menasha boy scouts will attend the University of Wisconsin's opening football game against Lawrence and Carleton colleges at Madison on Oct. 4, according to John McAndrews, scout master. The troop will make the trip in a body.

A special meeting of the troop will be held in the Woodenware cafeteria Sept. 29. Scouts will be assigned to patrols on the basis of last year's organization.

POLICE IDENTIFY STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

Menasha—An automobile, abandoned in Menasha Sunday evening, was identified by Menasha police Monday as a car stolen from J. H. Devster, Green Bay. Green Bay police were notified and the machine returned to its owner.

That a car belonging to A. F. Stroll 156 Main-st, Menasha, has been stolen, was the report received at the police station Monday. It is believed by police officials that the thieves who abandoned the Green Bay car, picked up the Menasha machine and continued on their way. No trace of Stroll's car has been found.

RECKLESS DRIVER IS FINED $5 AND COSTS

Menasha—John Wenzel, Neenah, was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace Kolasinski when he pleaded guilty of reckless driving in justice court Monday evening. He was arrested by Menasha police when passing cars at high speed on Main-st, Menasha.

The Avanti club was entertained Monday evening a tthe home of Mrs. E. J. Fahrbach. Bridge was played and a luncheon served.

The opening dance of the season by the Germania Benevolent society will be held in the Menasha auditorium Thursday evening. Keefe's orchestra will provide the music.

The Menasha club will hold its annual meeting in the chapter rooms Friday evening. Officers will be elected for the coming year and plans made for the season's activities.

Equitable Reserve association council no. 23 will hold its annual election of officers at a meeting at 324 Broad-st, Menasha, Tuesday evening.

Thirty tables were in play at the guest card party conducted by the sanctuary society of St. Patrick's church in the school hall Monday afternoon and evening. During the afternoon, prizes in schafkopf went to Roman Borshe and Mrs. L. Asmus; in whist to Mrs. M. Wright and in bridge to Mrs. Ivan Stilp. In the evening, prizes in schafkopf went to J. Bellas and A. Walburn; in whist to Mrs Edward Ely and in bridge to Mrs. Ida Getske and Mrs. Edna Looman. Luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. Harry Kampo.

Menasha aerie of Eagles will meet in the chapter rooms Thursday evening. A business session will be conducted.

Menasha Elks orchestra will furnish the music at the Legion Auxiliary dance at the Memorial building Saturday. A large attendence is expected.

Ladies of the Congregational church held a food sale in the church parlors Tuesday morning. Bargaining began at 9 o'clock.

Miss Gertrude Pawlowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Pawlowski, Menasha, and Edward Jape, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jape, Menasha, were married at St. John's church at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Rev. W. B. Polaczky officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Marie Dryer and John A. Pawlowski, New York, was best man.

Following the ceremonies, a wedding breakfast and reception was held at the home of Mrs. Ben Dryer, 612 Sixth-st. Following a wedding trip to Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Jape will live at 612 Sixth-st, Menasha.

The Catholic Womens' Benefit society will hold a business and social meeting in the St. Mary school auditorium Friday evening. Following a short business session, cards will be played and a luncheon served.

The Victory club will be entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Henry Oelfke. Bridge and schafkopf will be played and a luncheon served.

Miss Cecille Laemmrich of Menasha entertained Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Glen Holinbeck of Milwaukee. Cards were played, honors going to Mrs. G. Holinbeck, Miss Madeline Heckrodt, Mrs. G. Kohl and Veronica Voissem. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Holinbeck of Milwaukee Miss Francis Heardy and Mrs. G. Kohl of Appleton. A luncheon was served.

EAGLES, LEGION TO FORM BOWLING LOOP

Menasha—That the Menasha Eagle bowlers will combine with the Henry J. Lenz post of American legion is forming a bowling league for the season was decided at a meeting in Eagles Hall Monday evening. Notices were sent to Eagle and Legion bowlers and league activity will begin Sept. 30 at 9 o'clock in the evening.

The city league will bowl on the Hendy alleys both Tuesday and Thursday of this week, appearing on 7 o'clock and 9 o'clock shifts. The Marathon Mills league will begin the season's play on Hendy alleys Friday evening.

APPLETON DOCTOR IS KIWANIS CLUB SPEAKER

Menasha—Dr. G. A. Carlson of Appleton was the principal speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Menasha Kiwanis club at the Memorial building Tuesday noon. Dr. Carlson, who spent a year and a half in Europe in study, described conditions in foreign countries.

ST. MARY CEMETERY UNDERGOES REPAIRS

Menasha—A considerable amount of repair work is being completed at St. Mary cemetery. The portion known as the old cemetery is being graded and filled in order to level the entire plat. The new section purchased by the congregation about a year ago is being prepared for sale to parishioners. Roadways have been marked out, and the section platted into lots.

SENTENCE WOMAN TO COUNTY JAIL FOR DRUNKENNESS

Mrs. Margaret Mollett, in Fatal Accident, Also Fined $25

Neenah—Mrs. Margaret Mollett, Milwaukee, wife of John Mollett, driver of the automobile in which Mrs. Hettrick, also of Milwaukee, was killed last Friday night near Butte des Mortes, pleaded guilty Monday in Oshkosh Municipal court to a drunkeness charge and was sentenced by Judge Silas Spengler to 10 days in Winnebago-co jail and fined $25 and costs. She must serve an additional 10 days if she fails to pay the fine. Mollet is still at Mercy hospital where he is receiving treatment for injuries received when his car capsized after striking a power pole and crashing through a fence. Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Severson of Neenah were driving behind the Mollett car when the crash occurred and assisted the people in the accident.

Mrs. Mollet was charged under the state law with having been in such a state of intoxication as to disturb others and unable to care for her own safety. Arrest of Mrs. Mollett and calling for an inquest resulted from an investigation of the accident the night it occurred by Sheriff Arthur Nelson.

Here's How To Look Just Like Barrymore Of Films

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

New York —More men than you might think cherish a secret ambition to look like John Barrymore, and here's their chance to learn how. Frederic March is doing it every day, working here on a film about a stage family thinly disguised whom the "Jerry" portrayed by March is a very thin disguise indeed for the classic, fantastic, and elastic John.

Of course March has a nose somewhat resembling the Barrymore beak, and at the moment he is wearing a moustache closely resembling the sort which John sometimes grows. But such resemblances are merely superficial. You don't need these to be so much like Barrymore that your lady friends will cry out in delighted amaze. You don't even need to sprain your ankle galloping downstairs, as March has just done.

What you need—well, listen: In preparation for the role of "Jerry," Frederic March scanned Barrymore in the films as you'd scan a stock report, and the way an auditor studies the cashier's books is how March studied Barrymore every time he saw him in Hollywood. The result is that the secret of Barrymore's fascination can now be given to the world.

FIGURES OUT APPEAL

It consists not in nose or moustache, but in voice, hands and eyes, named in the order of their importance. March has these points figured so fine that his impersonation is absolutely uncanny.

You talk away down in your throat, about where the tonsils adjoin the larynx, if they do. If you've had your tonsils out, that's too bad but keep to the lower larynx, anyway. Anr you kind of wave your hands. Oh, not as if you were shaking a cocktail, but you keep 'em moving, and with the fingers sort of curled up. When you point to somebody else, you don't use the index finger but the knuckles. When you point to yourself, you use the palm. About the way you hold a tall glass, see? Only, keep your thumb in a little more. Fifty-fifty virile and fifty-fifty graceful.

But the eyes are the most vital of all. Anyone can just look at any one. There's nothing to that. What you want to do is sink your chin bout four inches and then look up at 'em, so the whites of your eyes show, and at the same time pull your eyebrows down so they beetle a bit. This gives that slightly menacing air, especially toward the enraptured girl friend who won't know whether you plan to make a pass at her or kiss her on the lips. Don't squint, though. Try it on your shaving mirror—as if you won't!

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
"LIBRA"

If September 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from noon to 2 p. m.

You will have to create your own difficulties on this date, as the astrological influences will assist and not hinder you in your plans. Affairs of sentiment will mark the evening hours, and there is a probable betrothal. A lucky time for changes and investments.

The children born on this September 24th will have secretive and reserved natures, and they will do things in a cool and calculated fashion. They will have considerable assurance, good intellects, common sense and refinement. They will not make friends easily, but will stick loyally to those whom they consider as such.

You suffer through your moods, and it is needless to say that your companions do also. Today you may be a delightful, spontaneous, talkative companion—an eupeptic person. Tomorrow, you may be a silent, morose creature with an atrabilious temperament. It is not the big catastrophes of your life which plunge you into the Slough of Despond, but usually something of almost microscopic unimportance, which has been signified by your own self-love and self-pity. You should conquer your spells of needless misery for they are both foolish and selfish, and at times almost unforgivable.

You have a critical and discriminative nature, and you are not easily satisfied. You have high ambitions, and work very hard, and sacrifice a great deal for their fulfilment. You are rather inclined to want to do everything yourself, but are only fitted for a one man or woman job. Your superior attitude precludes your success in handling subordinates. You are a hard task-master for yourself, and you seldom give up until you are satisfactorily finished, no matter how great your physical or mental fatigue may be.

You will be inclined to place the man or woman of your heart on a pedestal, and woe be unto them when they fall off—which they ultimately will have to do. You are not a very understanding or tolerant companion, although you will become more so with the passing of the years.

SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE BORN September 24th:

2.—William E. Burton—actor.
4.—Mark A. Hanna—U. S. Senator.

2 U. S. FLIERS FACE MILITARY TRIBUNAL

Threatened With Prosecution for Part in Attempted Revolution

Santiago de Chile—(AP)—Two American aviators today were threatened with trial by court martial for their share in the attempted revolution at Conception Sunday against the administration of President Colonel Carlos Ibanez.

Froedden said they would be held, while their action in flying a plane to Concepcion and landing there of five persons who later attempted to initiate a rebellion was investigated to ascertion if there was possible violation of aeronautical code provisions.

If, he said, it developed that there also was complicity in the plot to overthrow the government through causing an uprising of the Chacabuco regiment they will be subjected to trial by court martial and sentenced in accordance with the circumstances.

The minister declared they were arrested by authorities at Concepcion even before the five men they carried from somewhere in the Argentine to the city were taken, and before their purpose was known, the authorities considering that the flight entailed violations of the aeronautical regulations.

A special tribunal will investigate the activities of the two aviators.

START INSPECTION FOR FIRE HAZARDS

Neenah—The quarterly inspection of the downtown business district by members of the fire department has been started. The inspection is to prevent fire hazards.

With a total length of almost three miles, the longest cable railway in the world was recently put into operation up the 7300-foot high Nebelhorn mountain near Munich.

CITIES TO INSTALL PNEUMATIC TUBES TO SORT AIR MAIL

System Will Hasten Delivery and Reduce Cost, Officials Report

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

New York —(CPA)— Aerial mail sorting is the new and exciting job now looming up for adventurous young men. Pneumatic tubes from suburban airports to city postoffices will soon be installed and mail clerks will have to ride the planes, to have the mail ready for quick delivery in the tubes, according to Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster-general.

The Watres bill, making it possible to supplement short passenger loads with mail up to carrying capacity, was a boon to the flying business and now the widespread move toward pneumatic tube systems in various cities is expected to give commercial aviation another helping hand.

St. Paul, Boston and New York have definitely made preparations for the tube systems by the introduction of four bills in congress, measures now pending, which provide full federal authority. Congressman Haas of St. Paul has introduced a bill to give sanction for a tube service of two miles between the St. Paul airport and the St. Paul postoffice; similar measures were introduced by Congressman John J. Douglas of Boston and Congressmen Emanuel Celler and D. J. O'Connell of Brooklyn.

LONG HAUL DETRIMENT

As in passenger carrying, the long haul from the outlying airport to the center of the city has been a serious detriment to the progress of the air mail. The Templehof field at Berlin was the first to hit upon the pneumatic tube solution and tubes are now being installed there.

The underground pneumatic postal tube system of New York city has functioned with more than 99 per cent efficiency for 30 years, with no letter ever having been lost among the countless millions sent through it. Methods and equipment have been steadily improved and the cost of transmitting a pneumatic carrier containing 600 letters a distance of one mile is $.00371. With each carrier moving ten pounds, the cost is 74 cents per ton for mail shot into central potsoffice from outside stations.

The tube mail deliveries from the Floyd Bennett airport to the central postoffice here, as now planned, would traverse a distance of eight and one-half miles, with instantaneous delivery taking the place of the slow progress by truck through congested city streets. Aviation experts here say that pneumatic mail delivery systems soon will be necessary adjunct to all well equipped big city airports. With the exception of San Francisco, governmental investigations have concluded, the building of central over-head airports is impractical in all cities.

Intensive studies are being made not only of the usefulness of the tubes for air mail deliveries but of their integration with existing systems and their extension to office buildings. The Floyd Bennet field-Brooklyn system, as projected, would touch the existing underground system at five points. The New York Life Insurance company building, on the sight of the old Madison Square Garden, one of the largest skyscrapers in the world, had a system installed in the building when it was built, which does in three minutes work that would take two postmen a week.

But speed and economy are not the only economies sought in the expansion of the underground systems. Police Commissioner Mulrooney recently experimented with the tube transportation of $500,000 in securities from the United States customs house to a lower Manhattan bank. The experiment was entirely successful and is said to foreshadow the time when bandits will be a thwarted by underground deliveries of all valuables. Existing systems already are electrically wired so that any interference with the tubes instantly sounds an alarm which locates the intrusion.

Madison—(AP)—A 75-year old man is waging a fight in the supreme court against the penalties of a state prohibition law long since repealed.

He is Silas Bliven, Janesville, defendant in a case brought against him by the state in 1928. Found guilty by Municipal Judge H. L. Maxfield, Janesville, of selling and possessing privately manufactured distilled liquor without a permit, Bliven has appealed to the state's highest court.

A jury found Bliven guilty on Feb. 15, 1929. Judge Maxfield assessed a fine of $250 and 30 days in the Rock county jail. A few weeks after the sentence the legislature repealed the Severson act, the state prohibition enforcement weapon.

State prohibition agents who raided Bliven's home said they found six gallons of mash, one gallon of illicit liquor, one quart of illicit liquor and a case of home brew. Bliven, in appealing to the supreme court, contends there was no proof that there was sale, manufacture for sale or keeping for sale of any liquor in his home, that there was no proof that the alcohol which the agents seized, was illegally manufactured or that the alcohol was unlawfully purchased or obtained. Bliven also contends that the alcohol used as evidence was unlawfully seized.

The appeal from the municipal court's judgment was taken to the supreme court after the former had denied a motion in arrest of judgment and a request for a new trial.

Harrisburg, Pa. — The first three intermediate landing fields to be established by any state are now being completed by the Pennsylvania State aeronautics commission. The fields are being laid out to solve dangerous mountain conditions, and will offer a haven to pilots crossing the mountains.

Recollections Of Appletonians And Others

C. C. Wayland — Capt. John M. Baer

BY EDWARD P. HUMPHREY

Ever since I read quite a while ago that the Post-Crescent was going to build a new home for itself, I have been intending to have something to say about it. Of course I am glad that the Post-Crescent has grown and prospered to the extent that makes such a change necessary. Nevertheless the thought of the paper's moving from the old Post Building, with whose planning and construction I had considerable to do, gives me a twinge of pain in the region of the heart. That building associated itself so closely with my life that instinctively I have grown to date things from it. It is like B. C. and A. D. We moved into the Post Building Jan. 1, 1900, and ever since, in my mind, the years before 1900 have been recognized as those of "the past," and the years since 1900 as belonging to "the present." The "gay '90's" are "long ago," but 1901 is only yesterday. I presume we all see our lives in relation to such a basic or turning point. It is something like the mental picture I carry of the months of the year, in which the months are arranged in an upright circle, like a clockface and running in clockwise direction. Christmas is at the very bottom of the circle, and January 1, correspondingly up to the left a trifle. But strangely July 1 is not a trifle past 12 o'clock as it should be, but at about the 11 o'clock point. All my life I have tried to force July up to the top of the circle, and it has as stubbornly refused to go there. The remaining months complaisantly and elastically spread themselves over the rest of the circle.

The Post-Crescent is so much bigger now that "big business" as applied to the old Post, seems a misnomer. Nevertheless in my thought the days of the Post as a "big business" dated from January 1, 1900, its days before that being those of a "little business." When I joined The Post in 1885 the newspaper had 200 subscribers and advertisements sometimes stood in the paper without change for months. N. C. Gintz was foreman of the job room, Theodore Kuether made up the paper and Robert Forrest was foreman of the pressroom. Besides these, Gintz had Otto Helbing as a helper, Forrest had Peter Verwey as a helper and Kuether had four compositors who set the news matter of the paper and helped him with the advertisements. Altho the paper's circulation grew slowly the number of employes in the mechanical department remained approximately the same so long as The Post staid in its old quarters on College Avenue over Bissing's store. But as soon as it moved into the new building things began to hum. I am not conscious that this was due to any very special added effort on the part of the proprietors. The improvement came as a natural result of the improved facilities that the new building offered. This was an example of what I have noticed many times since, that barring accidents, added facilities, either in the way of larger quarters or better equipment or both, invariably result in increased business. And this applies to any kind of business. There seems to be something automatic about it—if facilities for more business are provided, increased business appears, seemingly of its own accord. This happened when the First National Bank of Appleton built its new building. When the matter of a new building was being debated, especially on such extensive scale, with correspondingly great addition to overhead expense, some of the directors were very fearful that a mistake would be made. But, bless you, in the year following moving into the new quarters, the bank made more money than in any previous year. Perhaps it all goes back to the old adage that nothing succeeds like success. People like to give their patronage to a concern that shows a spirit of progress.

I expect to see history repeat itself in this respect when the Post-Crescent moves into its projected new home on Washington and Superior streets.

C. C. WAYLAND PASSES

One of Appleton's oldest pioneers who has recently passed away as noted not long ago in The Post-Crescent, was C. C. Wayland, who since 1904 made his home in Pasadena with his daughter Lillian. I do not know exactly when Mr. Wayland first came to Appleton, but it must have been at least 60 years ago. Mr. Wayland was 93 years of age on the 24th of last August. He suffered no serious illness until last February, when he had an attack of pneumonia from which it was feared he would not recover. He did throw it off however, tho he did not regain his previous strength. After several months of moderate activity, he had another illness two or three months ago, from which again it seemed that he could not recover. But shortly before his birthday last month he rallied, and was able to take part in his birthday celebration, including the cutting of a cake decorated with a multiplicity of candles. A few days later weakness developed, followed by coma from which he did not arouse.

The last time I saw Mr. Wayland, last autumn or last summer, he was taking a siesta in a hammock on the porch of his daughter's house, after mowing the lawn. Think of that, for a man more than 90 years of age! It was not because he was desired to mow the lawn that he did it. It was in spite of his children's desires. But that was the kind of man he was—he must be doing something. And perhaps it was this cheery activity, this refusal to submit to the presumed infirmities of age that kept him alive so far over the limit of the three score years and ten and even four score years which we are assured may be attained if at all, only at the cost of much labor and sorrow.

Many years ago Mr. Wayland used to have a small store on the north side of College Avenue just at the eastern edge of the large ravine. On cold winter days there was always a warm fire there and two or three chairs near the stove. At that time Mrs. Humphrey and I were accustomed to take a walk late every afternoon, being about the only sort of outdoor exercise to be had in winter. A favorite route of ours was north on some street between Durkee and Superior as far as Second Avenue (I believe you call it Wisconsin Avenue now). Thence we would walk west to Richmond street, then south to College Avenue and then home, almost always stopping in for a little while at Mr. Wayland's store, to warm up and pass the time of day. One day on one of these walks an amusing thing happened. We were slipping and sliding along in very unCalifornia fashion, and to one of us it seemed that the sidewalk on the other side of the street looked less perilous, much as in the old bicycling days it was the other side of the road that always looked the smoother. So one of us said to the other: "It looks better over there, let's cross over." The other said: "Oh I don't believe it is any better there." "Sure it is," said the first, "let's go." "You go and try it," said the second, "I'll stay on this side, and if it really is any better there raise the long yell and I'll come over." So we separated and it was while we were trudging along on opposite sides of the street that the merry jingle of sleighbells was heard coming up behind, and in the sleigh was Doctor Elizabeth Beyer. As soon as she came up with us and saw who we were she burst into such paroxysms of laughter that we feared she would fall out of her cutter. She thought she had discovered a rift in the Humphrey family lute—and if truth must be told we did feel a little sheepish!

CAPT. BAER IS WELL, THANK YOU

Capt. John M. Baer is living with his daughter Mrs. Groff, "Attie" she used to be called in Appleton, in the city of Ontario, about forty-five miles east of Los Angeles. The house is situated almost at the southern extremity of Euclid Avenue, which is one of the most beautiful streets in Southern California, to my notion in this respect surpassing the famous "Magnolia Drive" between Riverside and Arlington. Euclid Avenue which runs north and south thru Ontario and into the country beyond, is five or six miles long. It is perhaps 200 feet wide, with a paved street on each side and a parkway thru the center. The parkway is bordered on each side by a line of pepper trees so closely set that their branches virtually interlace, while the surface of the parkway itself is covered with the greenest grass one ever saw. The outside edge of each of the drives at the sides of the parkway is bordered by a line of huge, lofty trees. What they are I do not know, but just at this season they are covered with blossoms of a deep, rusty golden color. The Groff home occupies a corner about two miles south of the business portion of Ontario, and its land is devoted to raising walnuts, various kinds of fruit including peaches, vegetables and flowers. The house has a comfortable screened porch across the front, where presumably Capt. Baer spends considerable time, and the interior is furnished and equipped in cozy, homey style.

On the morning I called, some weeks ago, Capt. Baer was still in bed. This was not his usual custom, as while not as vigorous as in the old days, he is ordinarily up and about the house. But the previous day had been one of unusual effort due to the presence of guests, and he was resting from its unwonted excitements. Capt. Baer greeted me in his usual strong, hearty voice, and tho I had not seen him before for many years, his appearance, as much as I could see of him above the bedclothes, including his face, at which of course one always looks for evidences of change, was just as I remembered him. The grasp of his hand was as powerful as ever—and such a brawny hand! I looked at that hand with high respect, thinking of the pioneer work it had done in Outagamie county in the far-back days before most representatives of the soft-handed generations now surviving were born. On the wall, at the side of the captain's bed was a picture in colors, of a very primitive log cabin, small and more high-shouldered than most log cabins, which the captain told me was a likeness of the cabin in the town of Black Creek which he built with those brawny hands that now lay outside the coverlet. "I chopped the logs for that cabin," said Capt. Baer, "and cleared 180 acres of land!" I was stunned for a moment as I thought what that simple statement meant. Certainly there were giants in those days! Did you, reader, ever hear the sound of an ax far away in the deep woods? If you have not, you have missed one of the thrills of life! The blows are like the strokes of Fate! There is an indescribable resonance in the air that makes the skin prickle and creep. While the silence is absolute, (save for the ax), so that one hears the blood surging in his ears, it is also ominous, as tho the moment approached of some catastrophe. One fancies he can hear the sentinel trees fearfully whispering to each other in some strange telepathy. My mother used to believe (or try to believe) that trees had some sort of consciousness, that in some measure they knew joy and fear. And why not? Do they not respond briskly to the caresses of the sun and the refreshment of the rain? Do they not lift their heads and rejoice in the Spring, and bow their heads mournfully in the chill blasts of autumn? There are more things in heaven and earth than dreamed of in our grubby philosophy, and one of these may be a closer relation between trees and men than we now have any notion of.

It was in the early '60's, when he returned from the civil war, that Capt. Baer hewed out the logs for that cabin and set them upon each other. Following my thought I said something about the marvel of the gigantic labors the captain had performed during his life, which brought from him the comment: "If I hadn't been 'tough' (that word sharply emphasized, and with a twinkle in his eye), I wouldn't be here today!" No truer word was ever spoken.

On the wall near the picture of the log cabin were other pictures, but these of persons, the captain's children and grandchildren. There is the likeness of his son Edward, now manager of a clay products plant at Streeter, Illinois, in the ownership of which Appleton people are included. "Eddie" as we used to know him, has three fine daughters and two handsome sons, and he is a grandfather too, think of that! John, the captain's younger son, whom when he lived on Lawrence street we used to call "Cub" Baer, is cartoonist, lecturer and advertising specialist at Washington, D. C., and is the father of a stepladder of three splendid-looking sons. Pessimists may talk as they please about the present generation's being headed for the bow-wows, but they'll not convince me of it in a thousand years. I believe the rising generation is the finest generation the country has ever produced, and judging by their looks these young Baers are goodly representatives of it.

Capt. Baer is blessed to have the tender care and devotion of his daughter and her husband, with whom his life is cast. I was very glad to meet Mr. Groff, whom I had never seen before. When I entered the house he was sitting by the captain's bed, visiting with him, and arose to give me his chair. I asked the captain how he liked California and while he asserted stoutly that there were many things about it that appealed to his sensibilities and comfort, I could see that, like the rest of us who have been transplanted rather late in life to alien fields, his recollections and affections still are warmly concerned with the people and things of Appleton and Outagamie county, with which he was associated for practically all of his active life.

Captain Baer's Appleton friends may be assured that all is well with him.

Stirs Hapsburgs

The marriage of the Archduke Albrecht of Austria, whose elopement with Mme. Louise de Rudnay, above, divorced wife of the Hungarian minister to Sofia, was reminiscent of the Crown Prince Carol's renunciation of the Roumanian throne for love, won't be recognized by other members of Austria's dethroned royalty. The Archduke Friedrich, head of the Hapsburg family, has sought legal aid in dissolving his son's marriage. The Archduke Albrecht has been a claimant of the Austrian crown in recent years.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK
IT PAYS TO OBSERVE IT

AGAIN by proclamation, the President of the United States and the Governors of the states declare the importance and significance of Fire Prevention Week. This year it is the week of October 5-11. Communities which have earnestly observed Fire Prevention Week have profited by substantial reductions in the number and amount of fire losses occurring within that week and the period immediately following it.

Year-round Program in 700 Cities

Under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, more than 700 cities are competing in continuous programs of fire prevention and protection. In these cities Fire Prevention Week is merely the occasion for a fresh yearly start.

Civic organizations, realizing that preventing the destruction of existing industrial plants is just as important as the winning of new enterprises for the community, are giving the fire prevention movement a constantly increasing measure of support.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

represents highly organized facilities for the encouragement of this work. These have been extensively used and are constantly available, without charge, to any individual, organization or community.

Comprehensive fire prevention campaigns have become decided factors in enhancing personal and material safety in this country. It will pay you to take an active part in such worthy efforts.

The Stamp of Good Food

A symbol that signifies quality and price

What's in a name? Nothing but the action and conduct that lie behind it and give it special significance. So the simple characters, "A&P," have come to have a place in the speech of most Americans as a symbol for high quality food at low prices.

There is a sound reason for this. Sticking to its policy for nearly three-quarters of a century, A&P has sold the best foods it could buy at prices made possible only by serving many customers with the kind of food they want.

Thus "A&P" has become a hall mark for sterling grades of food at a cost which used to be associated only with poorer grades. A&P customers depend on its trade mark as buyers of silver depend on the stamp, "Sterling," for solid metal.

Orange Gridders Will Open Season Here Saturday

MEET MARINETTE IN FIRST GAME OF SEASONS CARD

Invaders Met and Defeated Oconto High School Eleven Last Week

APPLETON high school football team will open its 1930 season Saturday afternoon with Marinette high school here. Where the game will be played has not yet been announced by Orange officials.

The game will be the second for the invaders who last Saturday afternoon bumped off Oconto in a manner that, while not impressive, gave indications that Marinette will cause plenty of trouble. Coach Joseph Shields of the Orange saw the game and his reports are that his team has its work cut out for Saturday afternoon.

Monday evening Shields sent the Orange through a lengthy scrimmage session having for its purpose perfecting of plays. The exhibition was good at times and at other times it was not so good.

Starting the season about three weeks ago the Orange have been hammering away at fundamentals and plays almost day and night. Their only rest periods have been on Sundays regular drills being held Saturday's.

Last Saturday the squad went over to Neenah for a scrimmage session against the high school eleven at that city. The workout was not especially pleasing to Coach Shields and he sent the boys home with orders to learn their plays. They looked a little better Monday night.

No guesses as to the strength of the Orange are being made until after the baptism under fire Saturday. The squad boasts much beef and is rangy. However, the reserve strength is not so good and with several chaps ailing from bumps on the baked field, Shields will not go into the game with a full squad. The practice field has been baked from long weeks of hot weather and makes falling on it anything but a pleasure.

Marinette's strength is centered about Sorensen, a big fullback, who last season ripped valley conference lines to shreds. Desjardins, a half back who also performed last season is back with the squad and will help make things interesting when Sorenson rests.

BADGERS WORK IN DRIZZLE MONDAY

Eggers, Schneller, Oman, Show Well During Week's First Drill

Madison—(AP)—Virgil Eggers, a scrappy little guard from Whiting, Ind., gave indications of reducing the question mark which denotes the Wisconsin line by a considerable sum last night in a short, but emphatic scrimmage.

Eggers, a sophomore, tore every bit of football machinery that came his way apart as he broke up a half dozen plays during the 10 minutes he was in action.

Sharing honors with him, Tury Oman, the silent Finn, and big John Schneller, a sophomore from Neenah, performed from the fullback posts like they meant business. Sam Behr, moved back to half this fall, also ripped through for considerable yardage while Ed Swilerski, a guard; "Buckets" Goldenburg, quarterback; and Bob Engelke at tackle, gave good performances in the brief setto.

The afternoon workout was in a drizzle, which gave the Badgers their first opportunity this fall to practice with a wet ball and under adverse condition. In the morning, pass play was stressed, and the majority of heaves were wild.

Walter Gnabah, substitute fullback last fall and now trying for tackle, was waging a battle with eligibility. His encounter yesterday was with a correspondence course examination, which he must pass in order to play.

HELEN HICKS WON'T DEFEND WESTERN TITLE

Although not large, the entry list contained the names of a number of nationally prominent stars. Favorites were Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, former western champion; Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit; Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, and Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt of Dallas, Tex. Helen Hicks, winner of the last year, did not return to defend the championship.

WETTENGEL NAMED FOOTBALL MANAGER

Carl Wettengel, sophomore at Lawrence college and son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wettengel, Appleton, has been chosen varsity football manager. He will be in charge of all football equipment at the college and will have several junior and freshman managers working under him. A manager's "L" is awarded to varsity managers. They also become eligible for election to the "L" club.

BROWNS SEND SIX VETERANS BACK HOME

St. Louis—(AP)—The baseball season already is over for six members of the St. Louis Browns. Anxious to give several rookies as much of a test as is possible in the few remaining days of the season, Manager Bill Killefer has sent Stewart, Badgro, Melillo, McNeely and Hungling home for the year. Coach Jimmy Austin also has been excused until next spring.

CONNIE MACK HIS 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

by ALAN GOULD, Sports Editor (THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

NO. 4—THE RISE TO LEADERSHIP

THE man whose greatest fame in years to come was to be as a manager and tactical genius turned down his first chance to become the leader of a major league baseball club.

After nearly four seasons with the Washington Nationals, from late in 1886 through 1889, Connie Mack forsook "Organized Baseball" for the one and only time in his career by jumping to the Players' league, owned by the Brotherhood or players' union in 1890.

This outlaw venture lasted only one season. Mack was among the stars most sought after by National league magnates, eager to break what amounted to a "strike," and accepted what was then the munificent salary of $3,500 to join the Pittsburgh club, owned by W. W. Kerr.

"If they had only known it at the time," Mack related, "the National league club owners could have purchased me and most of the others to sign for much less money.

"The Brotherhood was on its last legs and we knew it. We would have been looking for jobs in another season and Pittsburgh's big offer came as a surprise. It was the biggest salary I had ever been paid and, as it turned out, too good to last."

The National league through the years of 1891-92-93 experienced a marked depression. Gate receipts dwindled. Frank G. Selee's Boston team, featuring Herman Long, John Ganzel, Charles Bennett, Mike Kelly, Hugh Duffy, John Clarkson and other stars was a great attraction as champion in these three years but general interest was at low ebb.

Pittsburgh felt the slump and with a club finishing last in 1891 was forced to cut salaries. The players were told $2,400 was the limit and all of them accepted. The team with Mack, as first string catcher, rose to sixth place in 1892 and to second position in 1893.

Prospects were bright when the 1894 season opened for the Pirates, under the management of Al C. Buckenberger. Business was picking up. The club made a good start but slumped, and by mid-season was out of the running.

One day the Mack, now 32 and a seasoned veteran of ten years professional baseball, was suddenly called into the club president's office for a conference.

"I was never more surprised in my life when I was told the club wanted me to try my hand as manager," Mack said. "Buckenberger was one of my best friends. I felt he was not to blame for the poor showing of the team, and explained the situation as I saw it and urged the manager be given further opportunity. It was agreed to.

"We made no progress, however, and along late in August I was called in again. This time, however, I was told Buckenberger had been relieved of his duties. I was asked to take charge. I felt it was then worth trying, and accepted."

It would add drama to Mack's life story to relate that he was an immediate success, but the fact is that he set no worlds on fire whatever upon assuming his first major league command.

The Pirates under his leadership finished seventh in 1894 and 1895, sixth in 1896. However, he had the team hustling and in 1896 it was up fighting for the lead when a succession of accidents—still a "jinx" for Pittsburgh clubs—put the club out of the running.

One of the strokes of misfortune that year was a broken leg suffered by the manager. Mack finished directing his team from the bench, where in later years he chose to remain.

While Mack was struggling with his first managerial job, the Baltimore Orioles rose to the top, demonstrating their prowess as one of the greatest teams of all time and developing a group of stars whose influence was to be felt for many years.

Among them was John McGraw, a rival of Mack's for world's championship honors in 1905-11-13; Hughey Jennings, whose Detroit club was a bitter foe of the Athletics a decade later; Wilbert Robinson, later the picturesque pilot of Brooklyn's Trolley Dodgers; William (Kid) Gleason, another to gain fame as a manager and as a lieutenant with Mack's 1929-30 champions; Wee Willie Keeler, Dan Brouthers and Steve Brodie.

These were names to conjure with; an aggregation that in later years was described by Mack as "probably the greatest team in baseball history, outside the pitching box."

At about the same time a new figure was emerging in the Middle West, an organizing genius named Byron Bancroft Johnson. He then was the guiding spirit of the strong Western league, building up the organization that was to furnish the backbone for launching the American league as a new major circuit.

Johnson induced Mack, in 1897, to accept a part interest in and the management of the Milwaukee club of the Western league. It turned out to be the most important step in the career of the New England Irishman. Three years later another baseball "war" was on. Mack was a principal figure in it and finally on the road to his greatest fame.

TOMORROW—The Turning Point.

JOHN B. FOSTER

NEW YORK —(CPA)— Scouts for the Philadelphia Athletics have been summoned to the front on the double quick to look over the St. Louis Cardinals as they drive down the stretch on their way to meet the A's in the world series starting Oct. 1.

The strategians for the Athletics seem to have wasted a lot of time watching the other pennant contenders in the National league, while neglecting the Cards. The New York, Brooklyn and Chicago teams all had been scouted when St. Louis suddenly burst on the horizon and caught all the scouts burrowing around somewhere else.

Naturally all the Athletics' force of eagle eyes will be on the job during the current series between the Cards and the Phillies at Philadelphia.

Connie Mack's scouts have already reported that the St. Louis team appears to be better fit for the world series argument than either Brooklyn or Chicago. The pitchers of the Cubs have faded out; and while the Brooklyn pitchers appear to be very good, the remainder of the team does not impress the Athletic scouts. They said that if the Brooklyn players only got on the bases they would defeat themselves and save the Athletics from working overtime.

The only pitcher on the Brooklyn team who is feared by the Athletics is Phelps and not Vance. In fact, the scouts reported that they had more fear of Luque than Vance. The Cuban pitcher is a hard fighter in a well fought game if he can keep his nerves calm.

Athletic scouts figure that the St. Louis players are a little less dangerous at bat than the Cubs but a little better in pitching. If they win the championship, the Cardinals can send Hallahan, Johnson, Rehm, Haines, Grimes, Grabowski and Lindsey into world series action, and if Hallahan is on ice and Rehm also on ice, the Cardinals will not stack up so badly against the famous pitching quartet of Grove, Earnshaw, Walberg and Shores, with Mahaffey thrown in for good measure.

Walter Johnson says there are only two players on the Athletic team—Cochrane and Simmons. Of course he is not including the Athletic pitchers but he might as well have done so, for Grove has lost once this year to Washington, Walberg three times, Quinn once, Earnshaw four times and Shores once. That's rather good going for the Washington team, especially against Earnshaw, who is a favorite with Connie Mack.

APPLETON SOCCER TEAM BEATS SHEBOYGAN, 4-1

The soccer football team representing Appleton Sport Club, Germania, defeated Sheboygan, 4 and 1. The score at halftime was 3 and 0 for Appleton.

Appleton's goal kicks were scored by Boenning who counted twice, and by Gordon Farquhar. The game was characterized by much rough playing.

Next Sunday the Appleton club will meet Oshkosh at Mary Jewell park, the game to begin at 2:30. The next game in Appleton will be played Oct. 12 with a team from Kohler.

FINISH OVERHAULING Y. M. C. A. PIN ALLEYS

Overhauling of the automatic pin setters at the Y. M. C. A. has been completed and ends repair work on the association alleys which open soon. Church leagues will be organized this season together with the Industrial leagues and a league for boys.

Big Ten Gridders To Use Many Forward Passes

CHICAGO—(AP)—The start of the second week of practice on Big Ten football fields has indicated that forward passing will be stressed this season, even more than usual.

At Chicago, where A. A. Stagg's teams for years have been famous for line crashing attacks, the ball has been in the air most of the time since the squad rallied to prepare for the championship season.

Coach Bob Zuppke has had his Illinois backs zipping the ball around in an effort to develop a quick punch in his green talent and a pair of sophomores, Gil Berry and Perrine, have done the best work in that department. Michigan's attack has been amplified, even this early in the season and the Wolverines promise to have the punch that was lacking in 1928 and 1929.

Northwestern has lost its "work horse," Rus Bergherm who did the passing, kicking and most of the running last year, but Coach Dick Hanley's attack will not be slowed up as long as Captain Hank Bruder escapes injuries. Bruder is the kingpin in an elaborate passing game and probably will do the punting as well as a good share of the ballcarrying.

The defending champion, Purdue, is being developed along the same lines that proved so successful last season and there will be plenty of pass throwing. Indiana and Minnesota have not developed to the point where more than ordinary stuff may be used, but Pat Page at Indiana, and Fritz Crisler, New Gopher coach, have fancy formations to hand out when their squads can handle them. Sam Willaman has concentrated on a running attack at Ohio State, but has been looking for a passer to toss the ball to Wes Fesler and Dick Larkins, his star ends.

ROGERS HORNSBY TO BE NAMED AS MANAGER OF CUBS

Bruin Bosses Letting McCarthy Go Because of 1929 Series Showing

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Tribune, in a copyrighted story said today that William Wrigley, Jr., club owner, had announced that Rogers Hornsby would be appointed to manage the Chicago Cubs National league champions, for the season of 1931 and possibly longer.

McCarthy

"There has been no misunderstanding with Joe McCarthy, the present manager," Wrigley was quoted as saying. "We simply decided to make a change, and as proof of my friendship and respect for Joe I will do all I can to assist him in getting another major league position."

"It may be true that we will be worse off if the change is made. The move may not be popular with the fans. McCarthy was given free rein in the buying of players, and I believe we have a great team. McCarthy has had five years to prove this, so I don't think there is anything unusual about not engaging him after a stretch such as that."

Rogers Hornsby

"We planned," he added, "to offer Hornsby a contract a few days after the season closes. We didn't want to embarrass McCarthy. Now that all sorts of rumors are flying around the matter probably will be taken up immediately."

Hornsby, regarded as one of the greatest infielders ever developed, has been out of the game most of this year with injuries. His play last season was held by many to have been a vital factor in the winning of the league championship.

REACHED DECISION LAST YEAR

The decision to make a change in managers, the Tribune quoted Wrigley as saying, was reached when the Cubs failed last year to win the world series from the Philadelphia Athletics.

"Since the day I entered baseball as an owner," he said to the Tribune, "I have had my heart set on winning a world series."

Wrigley intimated that some other things had occurred to convince him a change was justified, the Tribune said, but he refused to elaborate on them. He declared he always had been a great admirer of Hornsby as a player and that he had been impressed by Hornsby's management of the St. Louis Cardinals and of the Giants during the short term he acted in John McGraw's place.

"It is known," the Tribune continued, "that another incident which brought McCarthy into disfavor was the way the Cubs pitched to Simmons and Cochrane, two of the Athletics' best hitters, in the first two world series games played here."

St. Louis Cardinals Defeat Phillies And Draw Nearer N. L. Flag

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PLAYING baseball at an .800 clip is championship ball in anybody's league but that is what the St. Louis Cardinals have been doing since Aug. 17 to all but clinch the National league pennant.

On Aug. 16, the Cards had won only six more games than they had lost but on the next day the match was lit that eventually turned the Heydler pennant race into a red hot affair. An even break with the New York Giants in a double header was the start. Since that date the Cards have won 28 of their 35 starts.

The Cardinals moved a little nearer the clinching of the pennant yesterday with a 15 to 7 triumph over the Phillies while the Chicago Cubs were downing the Boston Braves, 6 to 2, in the only games played in the major leagues. The victories of the league leader and the runner-up still left the Cubs trailing by two and one half games but made their task of winning even more difficult. The Cardinals have five more games on their schedule and need to win only three of them even if the Cubs sweep their final four games series with the Cincinnati Reds.

Guy Bush pitched the Cubs to their victory over the Braves, holding the losers to six hits while his mates were pounding Seibold, Cunningham and Brandt for 12 safe blows. Included in the Cubs' collection of his was Hack Wilson's fifty-third home run of the season.

AMATEUR SHOW SCHEDULED OCT. 9

New London and Sheboygan Boys Will Appear on First Program

The first amateur boxing card of the 1930-31 season, will be staged at armory G, Oct. 9, according to H. W. Miller, legion matchmaker. The card originally was set for Oct. 7, but has been changed to Thursday, Oct. 9.

Although the card has not been completely arranged indications are that at least two New London boys will be on the program. They are Winston "Windy" Thomas and Herbie Thompson, both of whom have shown here several times and who are great favorites with the fans.

Both Thomas and Thompson have started training for the winter's bouts, neither having turned pro as was reported around Appleton several times. Thompson has recently been bothered by boils but aside from that is in first class condition.

Thomas has been pounding the highways and byways most of the summer to keep in condition, doing four miles of roadwork almost daily. Plans were to match Thomas with Bennie Goldblatt for the opening bill but Bennie turned pro during the summer and of course is not available.

Several Sheboygan battlers from the stable of Johnnie Bush also will show on the fall's first card. It will mark the first appearance of any of the youngsters here since Johnnie drew a suspension last winter.

COLLINS TO DEFEND HIS BILLIARD TITLE

Chicago —(AP)— Percy N. Collins, Chicago, holder of the national amateur 18.2 balking champion, agreed today to defend his title against Edgar T. Appleby, New York, in New York City, Oct. 10 and 11. Appleby was runner-up in the last national tournament. The match will be 900 points in three blocks of 300 points each.

MACK WOULD LIKE ONE GOOD HURLER

Believes Cardinals Will Offer His Team Plenty of Opposition

Earnshaw

He has some misgiving about his pitching and he said he was particularly worried about George Earnshaw.

"If I had one more pitcher, I mean one more dependable pitcher," Mack said today, "I think I'd be all right. I'm particularly worried about Earnshaw. George hasn't looked like himself in the last few starts and in addition he hasn't recovered from being struck on the knee with a batted ball.

"This series is going to be a mighty tough one for us to win. St. Louis must have a great ball club. They have a lot of pitchers and plenty of good batters. Another thing, the gait they've been traveling will send them into the series at the very peak of their form."

"Our team," he added, "is a peculiar team. I never expected we could win the championship during the first half of the season. We didn't look like a pennant winner until after July 4. We started going in St. Louis and reached our best form of the year on that road trip. In fact, it gave us the pennant. I will say, however, that since then our boys have been consistent. They've been able to do what they've had to whenever the occasion arose."

SHARKEY SLUGGISH IN HIS WORKOUTS

Must Win from Campolo or Lose Prestige Among Heavyweights

New York —(AP)— Victorio Campolo, whose attempts to emulate the spectacular feats of his compatriot, Luis Angel Firpo, have met with failure so far, gets his big chance to crash his way into the list of outstanding heavyweight contenders Thursday night. His opportunity comes in a 15-round bout with Jack Sharkey at the Yankee stadium, but the experts are predicting that he will muff it.

Campolo is a crude workman in the ring and close observers of fistic form see no reason why Sharkey should not beat him handily. The Argentine giant is big, strong and game, but he has shown nothing in this country to warrant any prediction that he can hold his own with as polished a ringman as Sharkey.

Sharkey himself has been none too impressive in his workouts here. He has been sluggish and careless, perhaps because he figures he can whip the Argentine without much trouble. If the match is a crucial one for Campolo, it is equally so for Sharkey. One more disappointing showing by the Boston sailor quite probably will end forever any future $100,000 guarantees such as he demanded and received for this battle.

SEVEN BADGERS TO PLAY WITH IRISH

Paul Host, an end, from La Crosse Central; "Chuck" Jaskwhich, former Kenosha quarterback; John Tobin, Janesville halfback; Joe Kurth, Madison East, tackle; Earl O'Brien, Green Bay East, end; and Fred Staab, who was fullback with Madison Central, are the Wisconsin players. Joseph A. Lauerman, Marinette, is associate manager.

Paul Kreuz, one of the Menominee Kreuzes who have won fame here and at Wisconsin, will be Upper Michigan's representative with the Ramblers this fall.

VIKING HARRIERS IN 1ST WORKOUTS MONDAY

The Lawrence college cross-country team held its first practice Monday afternoon at Whiting field. Charles Bartsch, captain-elect, Arnold Sieg, and Emory Ansorge are the returning lettermen. Koselke, Roemer, Smith, Porter, and Nelson, members of last year's squad, also are expected to report. Manager Bob Stuntz issued equipment to varsity and freshman aspirants Friday afternoon.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

BILLY GIBSON, a very sick man last spring, has fought his way back from the hospital.... he's still manager of Paulino, and will direct the Basque in his future engagements....Billy was manager of Benny Leonard for years...they never had a contract between them, just an oral and gentlemanly understanding which each lived up to 100 per cent.... Billy had that kind of understanding with Gene Tunney, too, but after Gene won the championship at Philadelphia, Billy was demoted to assistant secretary... in the old days, when prize fighting was illegal, Gibson fostered the Fairmount A. C., as the law permitted boxing among members.... they used to arrest Gibson so often that he used to write out a check for his fine before the bouts and have it ready when the law swooped down.

Jones' 69 Tops Field At Merion Tournament

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa.—(AP)—It is true in golf today that uneasy lies the head that wears the crown. After a distressing score of 83 in the first qualifying round of the national amateur championship, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston faced the stern necessity today of getting well under 75 to be sure of entering the match play competition in defense of the title he won last year in California.

If the popular title holder has to surrender his crown without even a chance to defend it, it will mark the first time the golf fates have turned thumbs down on a champion in the qualifying play. Bad putting placed Jimmy's chances in jeopardy.

Bobby Jones, who holds all the golf championships except the one Johnston hopes to defend, has no qualifying troubles. His better than perfect 69 left him in a position where he could make 85 in the second round and qualify. Jones led the field. He made the game look absurdedly easy. He slipped a stroke over par on one hole, scored two birdies and played the rest of the holes in the figures shown on the card.

Johnston had plenty of company. Jess Sweetser, former champion of the United States and Great Britain, started today with an 81 against him for his first day's work, and Roland MacKenzie, Walker cup player, used 83 shots. Cyril Tolley, twice British amateur champion, was charged with 82.

Bracketed just one stroke behind Jones after 18 holes of play were a brilliant youth and experienced veteran, Sidney W. Noyes, New York junior star, and Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Oregon, runner up in last year's championship.

George T. Dunlap Jr., Princeton intercollegiate champion stood alone at 71, but four able linksmen had scores of 73, two former champions, George Von Elm and Francis Ouimet; Johnny Goodman, the man who beat Jones and Lawson Little, the man who beat the man who beat Jones.

Sports Question Box

Answer—Charles Barr.

Question—What is the right name of Tod Morgan? Where was he born and what is his nationality?

Answer—Bert Pilkington, Seattle, Wash., of Scotch-American parents.

Question—Two are on bases and there are two out. Batter hits the ball to left center for a home run. The fielder returns it and the first baseman calls for the ball, the batter being out for not touching first base. Do the runs count?

Answer—Yes, they do.

Question—Runners are on, second and third. One hand out. Pitcher strikes out batter and believing three hands out receives the ball back from the catcher, tosses it into the pitcher's box and starts for the bench. Runners on second and third advance. Shortstop gets the ball and throws the runner out at home. It was then claimed that the umpire stopped the ball with his foot. He admitted touching it and sent the runners back to their bases. Umpire was behind pitcher. Was the play proper?

Answer—The ball was in play.

Answer—Unless a foreigner comes along with a good record to contest the claim Rosenbloom is the world's champion as he has beaten the best American lightheavies.

FAST TRACK SEEN AT MARYLAND OPENING

Havre De Grace, Md.—(AP)— With clear skies and a fast track the forecast for Maryland's racing program of 57 days, on the mile ovals, opened this afternoon at historic Havre De Grace. There have been no changes in the racing rules since the close of the spring season, May 10.

Thirteen hundred thoroughbreds, from some of the most widely known stables of the country have been sent here for the 11 day meet that includes three $20,000 handicaps.

M. U. SCRIMMAGES FOR VIKING GAME

Milwaukee —(AP) —Preparing for their opener with Lawrence here Saturday, the Marquette football squad yesterday was given a hard two-hour scrimmage. The varsity teams were always on the offensive against the frosh elevens but were unable to gain as consistently as the coaches desired.

SUPERIOR PEDS TO PLAY NIGHT FOOTBALL

Superior—(AP)—Lighting equipment today was being installed for the initial home game of the season at the State Teachers' college Friday night when the Yellow Jackets meet the North Dakota football team.

What the Stars Did Yesterday

Guy Bush, Cubs—Held Braves to six hits and beat them, 6-2.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Wichita, Kas.— Angus Snyder, Dodge City, Kas, outpointed Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., (10); Earl Wise, Oklahoma City and Chick Raines, Dodge City, Kas., drew, (8); Baby Stribling, Macon, Ga., outpointed Ed McWilliams, Kansas City (6); Bobby Sample, Eureka, Kas., outpointed Tommy Knopp, Pratt, Kas., (6).

CARNERA, GODFREY MAY FIGHT IN CHICAGO

Chicago—(AP)—Primo Carnera may meet George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight, in a return match in the Cubs baseball park Oct. 9 providing Promoter Malloy can obtain sanction of the Illinois State Athletic Commission. Malloy will appear before the commission today. He has both boxers signed.

Short Sports

The big bat with which Hack Wilson of the Cubs tied the National league record is known as the "Hack Driver."

W. M. Oliver and four sons of Valdosta, Ga., enter Dixie golf tournaments en masse. Johnny, one of the boys, is a former Georgia state champion.

This football season will be the fifth for the Notre Dame coaching system at North Carolina. The team, under Chuck Collins, scored 346 points last year.

NO OBJECTIONS TO NEW HOSPITAL

Plans for New Building Are Presented to Council Monday Night

New London—At a special meeting Monday evening, property holders in the vicinity of the proposed hospital to be erected by the Doctors Borchardt were expected to present their views.

Eldor Schoenrock presented plans and drawings of the new structure. The hospital will set 43 feet back from the sidewalk line on South Pearl-st, 40 feet from East Hancock-st, and 80 feet from East Beacon-ave. The center of the building will be three stories high with the sides two stories high. The building plans have been approved by the Industrial Commission. It will be of fireproof construction.

On motion of Alderman Ladwig the council granted the Borcharts a building permit with the proviso that the sidewalk setbacks be strictly adhered to. This was the only business at the special meeting.

TEACHERS VISIT IN OTHER SCHOOLS

Chilton Faculty Studies Methods in Use in Other Institutions

Special to Post-Crescent

Chilton—Teachers of the local public school system, by a rule of some years standing, may take a day to visit some school system where they may see what is being done in their particular grade or department in other school systems. Progressive school systems place high value on the benefits obtained through having their teachers see at first hand what other schools are doing. The visiting day is required to be taken as early in the school year as possible.

Tuesday, Sept. 23, was visiting day in the local public schools. A. L. McMahon and Harold Armstrong visited the Sheboygan high school. Mrs. G. R. Holdridge, Mrs. Edward Landgraf, the Misses Hulda Loye, Elizabeth Quade, Elsie Traichel and Marion Albert visited the Madison high school. The Misses Irene Flatley, Caroline Marken and Genevieve Moehn visited schools in Milwaukee, and Miss Irma Oelke spent the day in the schools at Whitefish Bay.

G. M. Morrissey spent the day at Appleton where the state high school supervisor, J. T. Giles, had called a meeting of the heads of schools in the northern portion of the Fox river valley.

The Rev. Harold Keyes and Mr. and Mrs. William Aebischer spent Tuesday in Plymouth attending a convention of clergy and laymen of Episcopal churches of this part of the state. On Wednesday the Rev. Keyes goes to Nashotah to remain until Friday.

Philip Schneider of the town of Chilton was arrested Sunday night by Sheriff John Diedrich at the Willow Inn at Brant for disorderly conduct. At a hearing on Monday morning he was fined $10 and costs. Being unable to pay the fine he was committed to the county jail for 30 days.

Sheriff Diedrich reports that he has the largest number of people confined in the county jail that he has had at any one time since he became sheriff four years ago. Among the number are two boys from Chicago, John Kramowski, aged 15 and Joe Durski, aged 17, who were arrested by Mr. Diedrich at Potter last Thursday for having in their possession a car which is said to have been stolen in Chicago. When arrested the boys had with them three girls, and the five young people were on their way to visit at the Frank Schultz home near Potter. The boys deny having stolen the car, Durski claiming that he bought it in Chicago.

The transporting of a stolen car from one state to another is a federal charge, known as the Dyer act, and the representatives of the federal department of justice in Chicago are expected to arrive in this city Tuesday or Wednesday to take charge of the boys.

Bismark Wichman of High Cliff reported to the sheriff on Monday that some time Sunday night a seven months old heifer was stolen from his premises. The heifer was tied, and the rope was cut when Mr. Wichman made the discovery. A neighbor claims he heard a noise in the Wichman yard early Monday morning.

Lawrence Bastian, who with Isadore Rousse was arrested several weeks ago for stealing chickens near Brillion, was sentenced in a Manitowoc court Monday to from one to three years in the state reformatory at Green Bay. At the time of his arrest he was out on parole for a previous theft. Rousse is now serving 90 days in the Calumet-co jail.

On Sunday afternoon Sheriff Diedrich was called to the town of Harrison where an automobile containing four men was wrecked. It was stated by witnesses to the accident that Arthur Ganzel, driver of the car, tried to pass another car and in doing so lost control of his own car and crashed into a concrete abutment at the intersection of highways 10 and 55. No arrests were made as the occupants of the car were badly injured. Ganzel suffered severe bruises, as did Ray McHugh of Menasha. Paul Gelena was also in the car, and bystanders maintain that there was a fourth man in the car, who jumped out after the crash and disappeared.

John Steenport was painfully injured Monday morning while at work on a scaffolding. He and his son Henry were painting the house which they recently purchased from George D. Breed when the scaffolding broke and they fell to the ground, a distance of 18 feet. Mr. Steenport received severe bruises as well as cuts. His son escaped with minor injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kurtz visited in Milwaukee Sunday. Their daughter Mrs. Fred Zahn returned to Milwaukee with them, where she will make her home. On Sunday the members of the family were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zahn Sr., in honor of the recent marriage of their son.

Miss Nellie Mulcahy of Seattle, Wash., visited the Misses McMullen over the weekend. Miss Mulcahy formerly lived in this city. Other guests at the McMullen home were Miss Geraldine McMullen of Chicago and Miss Zetta Mortell of Oshkosh.

The grading and fill on both sides of the bridge and the retaining wall will be done by the M. A. Lieberg company of Oakfield, on their bid of $38,100.38.

LAYMAN THREATENS TO FINE JUDGE IF HE DOESN'T ANSWER

Special to Post-Crescent

Wrightstown—Al Bauer, new proprietor of Junction Inn, located one mile east of the village, on Highway 96, after pleading guilty, was fined $10 and costs Thursday evening in Judge Vanderheiden's court on a charge of displaying his Outagamie-co deputy sheriff badge in Brown-co at the scene of an auto accident near the local high school last Tuesday afternoon.

Charles Gorshals, 303 Park-st, acted as Bauer's attorney, and the courtroom went into an uproar as Gorshals, failing to his attempt to get an answer to a question put to the judge, said: "Answer my question or I'll fine you for contempt of court." Gorshals was ordered to his seat by the court or be removed from the court room.

This was the first case that was tried in Justice court in the new village hall, which was packed to capacity.

BOARD DISCUSSES FIRE PREVENTION

Special to Post-Crescent

Forest Junction — Regulatory measures for the prevention and control of forest, field, or marsh fires in the town of Brillion were being considered early this week by its board of supervisors. Fires, which broke out last week in the vast acreages of swamp land in the south portion of the township and threatened the destruction of a plank bridge on a town road in the area, brought the situation to official attention.

Town road district superintendents, in their capacities as assistant fire wardens, have been instructed to post notices in their districts calling attention to the fact that the burning of grass or subble, logs brush, or stumps, constitutes a public danger at present, and that it be refrained from during the continuance of the drought.

KEEP WEEDS CUT ALONG HIGHWAYS, MAILMEN ADVISE

Kaukauna—Rural mail carriers of Outagamie-co will urge farmers to keep high grass and weeds cut along the roads to help prevent drifting of snow next winter, it was decided at a meeting of the carriers here Sunday afternoon.

The carriers will urge the town chairmen to see that this is done along the highways in their townships. On county and state trunk highways this has been well taken care of, but on some of the township roads it has been neglected, it was brought out. The carriers are confident that if this work is carried out much of the expense of the snow removal can be saved next winter and the roads kept open.

Reports of the delegates to the state and national conventions were given. It was brought out that all rural highways in the county were greatly improved in the last few years by graveling, opening of ditches, and grading.

The next meeting will be the annual meeting in June. A picnic will be held in connection with it. Refreshments were served after the business meeting.

Social Items

An appropriation of $25 was made by the Kaukauna council, Knights of Columbus, for relief work in the Santo Domingo district which was recently swept by a hurricane. A report at the meeting stated that the supreme board of directors in Boston recently voted an appropriation district.

The choir of Immanuel Reformed church will meet at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening in the church.

LEGION AUXILIARY INSTALLS OFFICERS

Kaukauna—Installation of officers of the Legion auxiliary was held Monday evening in Legion hall. Mrs. D. Mathewson, ninth district president, of Hortonville, presided. About 50 members atended the meeting.

The following officers were installed: Mrs. Dorothy Reith, president; Miss Blanche Gerend, vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Nelson, treasurer; Mrs. Elsie Hess, secretary; Mrs. B. Lamers, chaplain; Mrs. Anna Schubring, chairman of the entertainment committee; Mrs. Jean Hilgenberg, sergeant at arms; and Mrs. S. J. Mangold, publicity agent.

The meeting began with a 6:30 dinner. Following the installation of officers regular business took place and two new members were taken into the auxiliary. Cards were played and prizes were awarded to Mrs. A. Smith in schafkopf, Mrs. Ed Haas in bridge and Mrs. G. Kromer in five hundred.

VOCATIONAL FUNDS TURNED OVER TO CITY

Kaukauna — Two checks, one for $1,109.41 and the other for $4,086.13, have been received by Louis Wolf, city clerk, from George P. Hambrecht, director of the state board of vocational education, as federal aid and state aid for the Kaukauna Vocational school in operating certain classes during the last school year. The money will be put into the vocational school fund. The state and federal aid is given to the school each year. This enables the school to conduct the trade classes.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN PREPARES FOR BAYS

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school gridders are putting in a week of hard practice for the annual tussle with West Green Bay Saturday. The game will be played at the latter city and will not be a conference game. Green Bay is in the Fox River Valley conference while the Kaws are in the Northeastern Wisconsin Interscholastic conference. Kaukauna won the season's opener from Seymour last Saturday.

PASTOR HELPS CONDUCT CLINTONVILLE SERVICE

Kaukauna — The Rev. P. J. Lochman, pastor of Holy Cross Catholic church, was at Clintonville Monday where he assisted with the Forty Hours of Devotion in the Catholic church there. The Rev. C. Ripp, pastor of the St. Mary's Catholic church, accompanied Rev. Lochman to that city.

KAUKAUNA ROTARIANS TO PLAY "BABY" GOLF

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Rotary club will meet Wednesday noon at Hotel Kaukauna. After the noon luncheon the members will play miniature golf at the Andrews Day Nite golf course. This was postponed from last week.

The Post-Crescent's representative at Kaukauna is Lloyd Derus. His telephone number is 194-W. Business with The Post-Crescent may be transacted through Mr. Derus.

GREEN BAY PREPARES FOR TEACHERS' MEET

Kaukauna — Several teachers of the Outagamie Rural Normal school are expected to attend a conference of county superintendents and teachers of Outagamie, Brown, Shawano and Waupaca counties at Green Bay next Tuesday. School problems will be discussed and new methods of teaching demonstrated. Seventeen similar conferences are being held in various cities in the state.

TREASURY GAINS DURING AUGUST

Funds Increase from $36,213 to $49,116 in Month, Official Reports

Kaukauna — Money in the city treasury was increased from $36,213.80 to $49,116.44 during August, according to the monthly report compiled by Joseph H. Dietzler, city treasurer. This is an increase of $12,902.64. During the previous month money in the treasury showed a decrease.

Disbursements for August were $46,307.86 and the receipts were $59,210.50. The receipts included three $10,000 loans from Kaukauna banks, $2,722.06 in Outagamie corporation and individual taxes, $25,430.61 from the electric department and other small amounts of miscellaneous items.

Receipts in the contingent fund were $33,513.77 and disbursements were $5,618.44. This increased the fund from $22,961.51 to $50,856.84 during August.

Both the north and south road district funds are overdrawn. The north road shows an overdraft of $6,798.96. During the month there were no receipts and $805.78 was paid out. Disbursements in the south road fund were $782.73 while there was no money paid into the fund. There is an overdraft of $85,526.25.

The north sewer district fund has a balance of $368.89. During the month $71.90 was used from the fund and nothing was paid in. The south sewer district fund is overdrawn $11,222.17.

A decrease of approximately $8,000 was made in the electric department fund during August. Receipts for the month were $25,480 and disbursements were $33,635. There is a balance of $36,482.61 in the fund.

About $2,802 was spent from the city schools fund during the month and there was nothing paid in. Cash on hand amounts to $35,356.37. The vocational school fund is overdrawn $1,303. There were $100 in receipts while the disbursements were $403.07.

START CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MOTORING LAWS

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washingtonton — A campaign to have Wisconsin and the other 34 states without such laws adopt measures requiring an ability to understand highway and direction warning signs in English as a prerequisite to driving a motor vehicle was announced here today by the American Automobile association.

A survey of the country revealed that there are now 35 states with a registration of more than sixteen millions, where an average of 5.28 per cent of the population is illiterate, which do not subject drivers to any examination as to their understanding of danger and direction signs.

"On the basis of our survey and of our analysis of existing laws, there is no doubt whatever that the time has come when in the interest of national safety on the highway, this serious laxity in the requirements for driving privileges must receive attention," Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, Mich., president of the A. A. A., said.

"While it cannot be claimed that illiteracy is a major cause of fatalities and accidents, there can be little question that it is a factor. States that have a real driver's license law, with ability to understand signs compulsory, have over the last few years kept their accident toll 20 to 25 per cent below states in the other category."

CORN STALKS DRIED UP IN MANY FIELDS THROUGHOUT COUNTY

Farmers Also Behind in Plowing, Especially on High Lands

BY W. F. WINSEY

New London—On account of marketing their early cabbage, some of the farmers of the town of Liberty, Maple Creek and Bear Creek, have neglected their corn so long that the stalks are dried up and quite badly damaged for silage or fodder. Some of them are still cutting their cabbage and others are cutting their corn. As the farmers are very busy with corn and cabbage, they have not tried plowing except in a very few cases. Those who have tried have found that plowing is possible in the low lands but impossible in the highlands.

Early cabbage and corn in the lowlands yielded quite well this fall but they were light in the highlands. As the heads are small and in the process of forming, farmers are uncertain about their crops of late cabbage. They are quite sure that the crop of late potatoes will be very light if it develops at all.

Similar to corn and cabbage their crops of small grain on lowlands were very good but on highlands quite light. As compared with last year, hay this year was from one-third to one-half of a crop. Pasture is a thing of the past and has been so for some time. As a substitute for pasture, farmers are feeding hay and the refuse in cabbage and cornfields. Occasionally herds pasture for a few days on alfalfa or red clover fields or until the fields are stripped.

The milk flow has been cut down one-half to correspond with the drop in the prices of milk the past year, the disappearing of pastures and cutting the cows off from their grain ration. As the price of milk is below the cost of production farmers are refusing to feed grain and in that way increase their losses.

REPORTS UNIFORM

It will be noticed that the crop reports of the farmers of Maple Creek, Liberty and Bear Creek are the same as those of farmers of all other townships in this section of the state, including milk production and milk prices.

William Marasch, town of Liberty, as he has no pasture and the price of milk is low, is producing milk at a loss. He is feeding alfalfa hay but no corn nor silage nor grain ration to his cows as he does not wish to add to his present losses in milk production. Instead of increasing his feed bill he intends to sell some of his cows. For the last half of August, he received $1.45 per hundred for milk testing 3.5 per cent, about three cents per quart. Prompted by such prices he has cut his milk flow down more than one-half. He has 30 tons of hay in his barn as compared with 40 tons at this time last year. His small grain and corn are fair this year and his late potatoes and late cabbage are light and uncertain.

Herman Stitchman, town of Maple Creek, is milking six cows, pasturing his cows on alfalfa, feeding a grain ration and keeping his milk flow up to that of last year. He is also feeding soft corn. He has 35 tons of hay in his barn including 25 tons of alfalfa, which equals his hay crop of a year ago. His yield of small grain was larger this year than last. His corn crop this year was the best he has raised in years. He filled his large silo with the product of five acres and has considerable fodder corn and ripe ears. His crop of late cabbage has just started to head. His early cabbage yielded 12 tons per acre and his crop of late potatoes is promising.

MILK FLOW DOWN

The milk flow of the nine cows of Herman Conradt, town of Maple Creek is one-half of that of last year at this time. The hay in his barn is about one-half of his crop of last year. As the season was too dry and his corn was on heavy clay, his corn crop was light this year. It took 12 acres to fill his silo up to the two-thirds line. He has about 200 bushels of ripe ears. His small grain yielded 25 bushels per acre. He has no pasture and is feeding his cattle, hay, cornstalks and cabbage leaves. In preference to buying feed at the present prices of milk, he expects to market some of his cows. His early cabbage crop was quite satisfactory but the drouth is too much for his late crop. Thus far his late potatoes are a failure as he finds only two or three small potatoes in a hill and the grubs are at work in the hills.

George Pribbernow, town of Maple Creek is milking ten cows and is not getting much better than one-half of the usual milk flow. His pasture is gone and he is feeding his cattle corn with some of the ears. He is feeding no grain ration as he could do that only at a loss under the present prices of milk. His crop of hay is only two-thirds of his last year's crop. His yield of small grain was about the same as that of last year. He will probably have feed enough for his cattle but cannot feed as heavily as last year. His late potatoes are small and a light crop. The past two weeks he has been filling silos but is now harvesting four acres of red clover seed.

Albert Knapp, town of Maple Creek, is milking 15 cows. He is pasturing his cows on new seedings but the pasture is short. He is feeding a ration of oats and barley. His milk flow is about one-half of that last year at this time. The price of milk does not pay for the grain fed to cows, according to Mr. Knapp. As the price of cabbage is too low to bother with cutting and hauling it, Mr. Knapp is holding off for higher prices. If the price does not advance, he will consider the feeding of the crop to his cattle. He has done that before when the price of cabbage was low and did very well by feeding corn with the cabbage. In the past he has stored cabbage when the price was low and fed the cabbage from storage. His trouble now is that the price of milk is lower, accordingly, than is the price of cabbage. This year he has 25 tons of hay in his barn as compared with 50 tons last year at this time. To make up for the deficiency of hay, he expects to feed straw this winter. His spring seeding of clovers are quite promising and may survive the drouth. From eight acres of red clover he recently threshed 2,700 pounds of seed, or 300 pounds per load. He said that Knapp Bros. threshed 30 acres of red clover that got 30 bushels of seed.

Of Interest To Farmers

CATTLE SHIPPING GROUPS FIGHT TO RETAIN MEMBERS

Drought, Unemployment, Low Prices Blamed for Tendency

BY W. F. WINSEY

The drouth, unemployment in cities, low producer and high consumer prices of meats, sun spots, or something else, has made it exceedingly hard for the farmers' livestock shipping associations of Outagamie-co to retain membership and do the regular amount of business thus for this year.

Some of these associations that during the past 12 years have shipped from one to three carloads of livestock each week to Milwaukee and Chicago markets have not shipped a carload since June or July and very few before that this year. The balance are shipping a carload about every two weeks.

In explanation of the short shipments, the officers of the associations said nothing about drouth or sun spots but that the farmers were discontinuing the raising of hogs in their territory, there were no cattle to sell at the present prices, and that members of the association after getting the best offers from their own shipping associations for calves dickered with local dealers for a premium in the form of a cent or the fraction of a cent above the regular price and swallowed the bait hook and all. They said also that trucks were moving about one road today and another tomorrow, and loading up with livestock of members of the cooperative association for delivery to Chicago and Milwaukee markets. The trucks of county dealers are in sharp competition with the long distance trucks. Eventually, it is claimed by the officers of the associations, that the long distance truck drivers will become livestock buyers if they are not that already.

SCORE TRUCK USE

The officers of the farmers' cooperative marketing associations declare that if the members continue to patronize the trucks they will surely break up their own cooperatives and lose all control of prices, weights and grades of livestock. The associations, it is claimed have reduced the cost of handling livestock twenty-five per cent. The reduction benefitted members and non-members alike in Wisconsin.

The Dale Shipping Association has shipped 25 cars of livestock so far this season as compared with the usual 75 carloads each year, according to John Leppla, shipping manager. The association is now shipping a carload every two weeks. Mr. Leppla explained the reduction in the number of shipments by saying that a truck passes through the town of Dale two or three days each week, first on one road and then on another, collecting livestock to truck to Milwaukee. The trucks carry loads ranging from two to four tons. The trucks go about from house to house picking up livestock and when they have a load off they go for Milwaukee. As their is no weighing at most of the farms and can be no shrinkage in trucking, the farmers are well pleased with their pay checks, according to Mr. Leppla. The railroad rates on some livestock from Dale to Milwaukee is 18 cents per hundred and the trucking rate is 60 cents per hundred, said Mr. Leppla. The shippers appear to enjoy paying the higher rates. The railroad takes a calf from Dale to Milwaukee for 20 cents and the truck charges $1.00 according to Mr. Leppla. Some farmers prefer to pay the higher rates. It seems strange to see members of the Dale association leaving their own organization that has done their livestock shipping business for years at a cost of $5.00 per car for handling and patronizing outside trucks, said Mr. Leppla. The other officers of the Dale association are R. R. Griswold, president, and Joe Schwerke, secretary and treasurer.

MANY RAISING HOGS

Owing to the members going out of hog raising and shipping other livestock by truck, the Common Sense Shipping association of Greenville has shipped a carload of livestock once a week a part of this year and one carload a month the balance of the year. It is difficult to convince the members of any cooperative shipping association that they should support their shipping association and do all their shipping cooperatively, in the opinion of Oscar Tennie, the shipping manager of the Greenville local.

The regular business of the Center Valley Cooperative Association has been cut down materially this year by outside and local trucks going about and collecting livestock at the farms. The association is now shipping a carload of livestock every two weeks although the association has an enrollment of 170 members. The trucks are in the territory of the association daily. The cost of shipping a calf by truck from Center Valley to Milwaukee by rail is 30 cents and by truck is 60 cents. The difference in the cost of shipments appears to have no influence as everybody prefers the automobile for his calves. The officers of the association are: Fred Fiested, president, Gust J. Sedo, secretary and treasurer, and Leo Defferding, shipping manager with Alfred Worth, his assistant.

The Appleton Cooperative Livestock Shipping Association has an enrollment of 165 members. The last of July, the association shipped its last carload of livestock, but another carload will probably be shipped two weeks from next Tuesday. Trucks from the north and from the south have invaded the district of the association and are busy on the roads. But very few hogs are raised in the territory of the association. The officers are Albert Krueger, president; E. O. Mueller, secretary, and Henry Guelff, shipping manager.

TRUCKS CUT TERRITORY

Three hundred fifty paid up members are supporting the Kaukauna Livestock Cooperative Shipping Association. Forty carloads of livestock have been shipped this year of the usual total of sixty carloads, according to Charles Grode, shipping manager. Trucks cut into the territory occasionally from the north and south but leave afterwards without doing very much damage and no good as far as the members are concerned. Sometimes when the association has only a part of a carload to ship, it employs a truck, however, but points out the destination before the truck leaves. The officers of the association are: John Grafmeier, president; William Heindel, secretary, and directors, Herman Krueger, Mike Lunlak, Theodore Eiting, William Ebben, and J. J. Ebben.

Cooperative marketing specialists are agreed that the way to control the truck menace to farmers' livestock cooperative marketing associations is to put each member of the association under contract to do his marketing through his association, and if any trucking is to be done to have it done by the order of the officers of the associations.

The contract method is working out well in cooperative livestock marketing associations where it is being tried and also in the Door County Fruit Growers' Union, the Wisconsin Tobacco Pool, the Land O' Lakes' Creameries, and in the National Cheese Producers' Federation. It is doubtful whether a cooperative marketing organization can long succeed without the contract as every member who sells individually outside of his association is a competitor of the association and helps to break it down.

BY W. F. WINSEY

Weyauwega—A survey of 20 widely separated, late potato fields in the eastern half of Waupaca-co on Saturday by the writer and inquiries addressed to potato growers and dealers are the basis of estimating the late potato crop at 25 per cent of normal. There was no sign of the frost, nowhere in the fields examined that was reported to have damaged the fields last Thursday night.

In average hills selected in each of the fields examined from four to six potatoes were found the size of golf balls or smaller, a large proportion of the vines were dead and many of the roots and potatoes were badly damaged by grubs. In a large proportion of the hills from four to eight large fat grubs, at work, were exposed.

While a number of good fields of late potatoes planted early in lowlands were reported by dealers, the writer did not have the pleasure of finding any such field. A number of loads of potatoes standing in front of warehouse showed tubers of the same size that the writer found in the field. Nothing better than seconds were seen in the loads nor in the fields. There may be a number of fields in Waupaca county that have produced big yields of first grade late potatoes but there are not enough of them to raise the average yield about 25 per cent of normal.

Farmers and dealers consulted on Saturday declared that the yield was so light that many growers would leave their crops in the ground as the potatoes would not pay the expense of digging.

The damage to the late potato crop was caused in Waupaca county and in all the counties of northeastern Wisconsin, by the drouth, blight and an infestation of grubs.

The Bureau of Markets, Waupaca, Wisconsin, on September 20, reported that the primary destination of Wisconsin potatoes shipped, September 19, as follows in carlot shipments: Cameron 3; Indianapolis, Ind. 1; Waukegan, Ill., 2; Chicago, 23; Milwaukee, 18; Waupaca, 4; Fond du Las. 2; Chippewa Falls, 1; Proviso, Ill., 1; Rice Lake, Wis., 1. Total 56. On the same date, Maine shipped 241 cars.

On September 18 the primary destinations of Wisconsin potatoes shipped in carlots was Antigo, 4; Milwaukee, 13; Waupaca, 9; Chicago, 24; Racine, 1; Clintonville, 3; Rice Lake, 2; Fond du Lac, 4; Schiller Park; Ill., 3. Total, 63.

Two carloads of potatoes have recently been shipped into Hortonville, Wis., the one, seconds from Antigo, and the other, firsts from Minnesota.

On September 16, three carloads of potatoes were shipped into Duck Creek, Wisconsin.

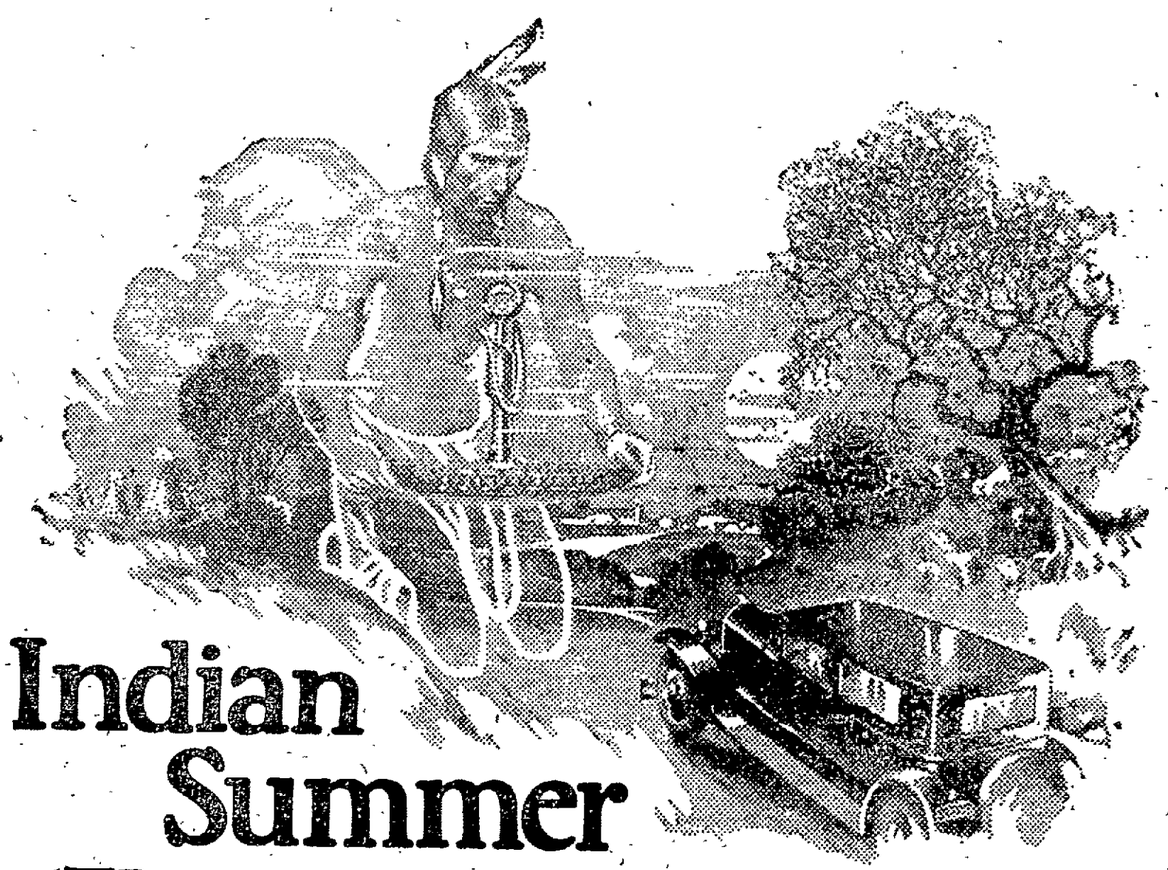

The shipping of potatoes into Antigo, Waupaca, Duck Creek and Hortonville from outside indicates a shortage of the crop in those local potato-raising districts.

Of the potato market in Waupaca, September 20, the Bureau of Markets, Waupaca, says: Hauling light. Light wire inquiry. Demand slow, market weaker. Carloads-sacked Cobblers few sales $1.85-$1.90. Warehouse cash to growers Antigo section mostly $1.70. Other Wisconsin points $1.50-$1.65, mostly $1.50.

The Dancing Silhouette

BY NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

SYNOPSIS: J. Arnold Winslow, prosperous retired lawyer, is worried because his adopted son, Jack Winslow, has fallen in love with Elsa Chase. Miss Chase is a beautiful girl crippled by an automobile accident in which her taxicab was struck by a car driven by Jack. She is a guest at the Winslow home in Washington, D. C. The elder Winslow does not wish to have his adopted son marry a cripple, and is suspicious that Elsa Chase is not all she professes to be. He seeks the services of G. Thorne, famous private detective, who is also an American Indian, to find a way to prevent the marriage. A mysterious woman in blue has sent several notes to the elder Winslow hinting she has knowledge that will interest him, and also has been seen several times talking to Elsa Chase.

Chapter 2

DEATH STRIKES THE DOCTOR

THE sun was setting as Jack Winslow stepped out onto the terrace at Oaklands, his uncle's summer home, and his eyes rested in frank admiration upon the young girl sitting propped up in a wheel chair outside the French windows.

"It's growing too chilly for you out here," Jack chided gently. "Come indoors, dear." And waiting for no remonstrance, he wheeled her chair into the large music room, stopping before the wood fire blazing on the hearth.

"Stuffy, perhaps," Jack eyed her with concern. "But your hands are cold," noting her fingers' icy touch. "As cold as your treatment of me lately. Ah, Elsa, how have you the heart to play with me as you do?" and dropping on one knee he threw his arm about her.

"Come Elsa, a game of Russian bank," said Mrs. Winslow crisply, drawing a card table toward them. Jack was an interested spectator as the game progressed, with Elsa proving the more expert.

"Dear me," Mrs. Winslow exclaimed, totaling her losses. "Can you change a five-dollar bill, Elsa?"

Elsa produced a shabby leather bill folder. In withdrawing some treasury notes she exposed the mica-covered section for holding identification cards, and Mrs. Winslow's eyes lighted on it.

"Oh, you have a driver's permit," she cooed, craning forward in her endeavor to read what was written on the card, but her curiosity went unsatisfied as Elsa closed the bill folder.

"I used to drive a car," she acknowledged. "Here is your change, Mrs. Winslow; surely that is your husband's voice in the hall."

Arnold Winslow came in even as she spoke, bringing with him a stranger to Elsa, but, judging from Mrs. Winslow's cordial greeting, an old friend of the family.

"Elsa," Winslow stopped by her chair. "This is Doctor Kane of Boston," and the girl looked up into a pair of steel eyes, as her hand was taken and held in a powerful grip.

"Jack," wheeling abruptly on his adopted son, "I promised you would call for Bates and Glover for the party to-night. Is your car in the garage?"

Elsa became conscious that something was wrong. As the front door closed with a resounding bang upon Jack's retreating figure, Arnold Winslow broke off his animated chatter with Dr. Kane.

"My dear, I have perhaps taken much on myself, but with Jack's interest at heart, you much forgive any blundering on my part."

Winslow cleared his throat. "Jack's happiness is bound up in you," he said. "He desires before all else an early marriage, but—but—"

"But in my crippled state," Elsa's quivering lips barely enunciated the words.

Elsa, the pupils of her eyes widened to twice their normal size, looked at the three people facing her. "I—I don't quite get your meaning," she faltered.

"It is this," Winslow could be clear and straight to the point when he wished. "Dr. Kane has made some remarkable cures where the spine was injured, resulting in partial paralysis. Your injury was to the spine—?"

"Yes," as he paused. "They said it was due to that that I lost the use of my legs."

"Well." Winslow drew a long breath. "Kane, here made the trip from Boston just to see you to-night."

Elsa shrank back in her chair. "Tonight?"

"Tonight." The word was echoed by Dr. Kane and his pleasant voice held a soothing note, inspiring confidence. "I am sure you have had first class medical treatment, but won't you give me a try—for Jack's sake?"

"You will let me?" as she nodded dumbly. "Good."

"Prepare Miss Chase for an examination, then notify me, here," said Kane, pointing to an old settee which stood across the hall from Elsa's bedroom door.

Nearly two hours elapsed before the elevator once more took Dr. Kane to the second story. Walking slowly about that floor to his bedroom he heard voices coming from the large reception hall.

"Go to bed, Julia, and stop worrying," came Winslow's voice. "Kane will be here soon. I rely on his diagnosis to tell if Elsa is a cripple or a fraud."

A burst of loud laughter came from the card room where evidently a game was in progress, drowning out Mrs. Winslow's voice, and Dr. Kane slipped noiselessly into his bedroom.

It was approaching one in the morning when those in the card room were silenced by loud rapping on the long French window opening upon the terrace. Glover, more sober than the others, swung open the window and Ferguson, the gardener, lurched inside.

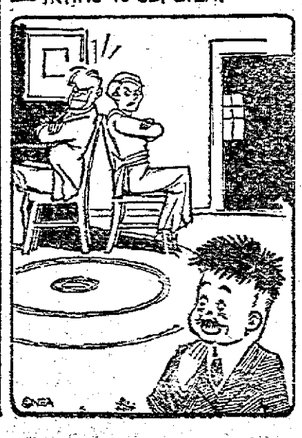

"Master, master" — his throaty voice sounded oddly in the sudden stillness and Winslow gazed at his white distorted features as if hypnotized. "The man up stairs, master, him you called Kane—he's lying on the ground under his window—dead."

(Copyright, D. Appleton and Co.)

FRIENDS BELIEVE EDISON WILL HELP IMPROVE AUTOGIRO

Famous Inventor Interested in Performance of Freak-looking Machine

BY RODNEY C. PLATT

Copyright 1930, By Cons. Press.

East Orange, N. J. —(CPA)— Celebrating the electrification of the Lackawanna railroad Monday Thomas A. Edison took a turn at the controls of the first electric train to run between South Orange and Hoboken, but it is extremely doubtful whether the veteran inventor will ever take the controls of an airplane or even ride in one.

Mr. Edison was so eager and interested in the performance of the "windmill" plane at the Newark airport Sunday that his friends thought they saw a chance to get him into the air. However, he merely looked uneasy and murmured "not yet — not yet." This apparently leaves the question still open, and it is known that the performance of the autogiro has tremendously stimulated Mr. Edison's interest in flying.

Among Mr. Edison's friends here there is a persistent belief that, whether he flies or not, he will yet contribute some magical complication—or rather simplification — to airplane technique. When he came to New York as a young man, he asked to be allowed to sleep in the New York stock exchange room where the tickers were kept, so he could study the instruments.

REPAIRED TICKERS

He lived for weeks beside the fascinating instruments. At this time, the system broke down and the inventors who had installed and maintained it were helpless. The boy from Boston who had been sleeping with the ailing tickers indicated a little gadget and said, "rig it like this—instead of like that." They did and the system was not only cured but tremendously hopped up.

Recalling this, it is predicted that with Edison really working on flying machines, the age of the practical working helicopter will be hastened. Onlookers at the Newark airport Sunday said that not for years had they seen the Merlin of electrical world so caught with a sudden, intent interest as when he saw Juan de Cierva's curious flying darning needle sink easily down to the earth within a few feet of its take-off.

"By gosh!" exclaimed Mr. Edison. "Those machines will do anything but chew tobacco!" It might have been the aged St. Saens flushing with excitement at the strains of a new and beautiful symphony. There is no doubt that in his declining years Mr. Edison has been imaginatively stirred by the humming bird technique of the autogiro and the possibility of freeing aviation from the expense and hazard of the mile-long landing field.

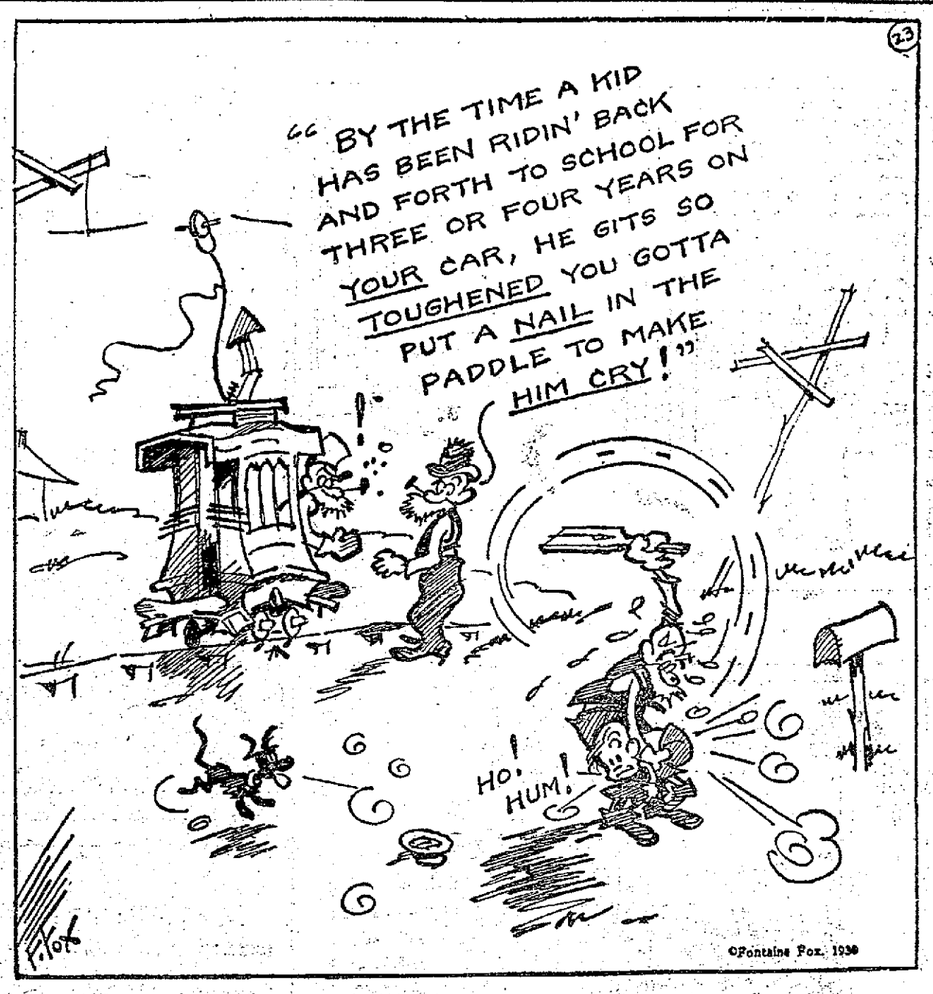

"That's the answer!" he exclaimed. "That's the kind of plane we've got to have."

Onlookers were interested to note that as he had penetrated to the secret of the communications machinery decades ago, he instantly searched out the trick of the flexible horizontal blade which makes the autogiro do its stuff. It is these horizontal blades which make possible vertical ascent and descent, but no real progress was made in their use until they were made flexible. They can be flattened with the machine in full height and gently tilted according to the requirements for a steep but easy drop.

When Juan deCierva flew across The English channel about two years ago, Mr. Edison expressed interest in the performance, as he, years ago, had experimented with a helicopter plane, which was damaged by an explosion and never carried through. The autogiro was to have been entered in the Guggenheim prize contest for safety in aviation a year ago, but was withdrawn, and the Newark showing is the first important demonstration of the new plane in this country. The Pitcairn Autogiro company has established a plant near Philadelphia and has manufactured about 80 planes.

Manitowoc —Five Manitowoc relatives of the late Charles Nelson, millionaire New York publisher and vice president of the Pictorial Review, today were named in his will. One brother, William, and four nephews, Ralph G. Plumb, Alfred, George, and Edward Nelson, are the beneficiaries.

Plant Hyacinth Bed Now, Garden Lovers Advised

Dear to the heart of the Dutchman because of its fragrance and formal shape, the hyacinth has been one of the most popular of Holland bulbs abroad for generations. It is equally popular in the United States for indoor decoration. Strangely enough, it has not made its way outdoors, although as hardy as the tulips and narcissi.

It is as easy easy a matter to have a hyacinth bed as a tulip bed and the fragrance from a patch of hyacinths will scent the whole premises in spring. They are worth planting for this feature alone, aside from the beauty of their coloring.

While only the specially selected named varieties should be used for indoor growing, the unnamed bedding sorts will give as good a garden effect. Hyacinths should be potted now and set away in a dark place to form roots to bloom in the window during the winter. Keep them moist but not wet and do not bring them to the light until the blunt nose has emerged well out of the bulb. This will require several weeks.

Hyacinth bulbs need the same soil requirements as to drainage as do tulips. Plant them six inches deep and six inches apart. Give the bed a mulch, not that it needs it so far as hardiness is concerned, for the hyacinth is as hardy as the tulip, but up early in the spring and sometimes gets full of water from rains and then freezes to the damage o. the bloom spike. There need be no hurry to uncover them.

For house culture the class of hyacinths known as Roman hyacinths is most satisfactory. They are not hardy. They have looser and more graceful spikes than the Dutch hyacinths and often two or three to a bulb. Hyacinths may be grown in water in specially prepared glasses and also in the prepared fibre now sold for bulb growing. They are of the easiest culture. Now is the time to start them for winter bloom.

BRIGHT GLIDER FUTURE

London—Gliding from block to block to visit neighbors will be a popular form of transportation, replacing short automobile trips within ten years, according to Howard Flanders, former secretary of the British Gliding Association. He predicts that gliders will be as common then as the very popular motorcycle is now in England.

WIDOW FINDS MATE OBTAINED DIVORCE

Mrs. Jenks revealed her story in probate court yesterday when she obtained provisional letters of administration to the $60,000 estate of her husband, W. H. Jenks.

The widow said her husband once had shown her a strong box and warned her never to open it. "If you do you will feel sorry," he said.

After his death a woman who described herself as Jenks' fiancee came to Mrs. Jenks and asked for his effects. This aroused Mrs. Jenks' curiosity and she opened the strong box.

In it she found an envelope addressed "to my wife when she opens this box." The envelope contained a divorce decree granted to Jenks in Mexico a year before his death.

As a result of the discovery his sister, Jane Tutle of Ashtabula, Ohio, sought letters of administration. Jenks left no will. The court ruled Mrs. Jenks would have to prove the divorce illegal in order to receive unconditional letters of administration.

COMPLETE MARKING OF OPTIONAL ROUTE HERE

The marking of the optional route of Highway 41 through Appleton has been completed by the state highway commission. The alternate route is directed over Memorial-dr, College-ave, Lawe-st, and Wisconsin-ave. Alternate routes are marked with yellow signs, while regular routes have white markings.

The education building at the University of Texas soon is to be named Sutton hall in honor of William S. Sutton, Texas educator.

Don't Lose Hope Because You Have A Blood Disorder

Sometimes sufferers from blood disorders abandon hope. They often think that they are beyond human aid. No matter how often remedies or doctors have failed, do not consider your case hopeless before you have tried RESTORIA. To infected or impoverished blood may be ascribed so many trying ailments. Thus RESTORIA, a compound of vegetable alterative elements intended for the upbuilding of the blood, is considered an effective treatment by the many who have used it. There are many indications of infected blood. You may have mere skin blemishes, or perhaps swellings, sores and annoying eruptions. Or you may have crippling diseases like Rheumatism, Neuritis or Anemia. Whatever these outward signs, treat the blood with RESTORIA. So that you may learn amazing truths discovered by others, we make this liberal offer: purchase a $1.50 bottle of RESTORIA from your drugstore, and take it as directed for two weeks. If you are not satisfied that RESTORIA is helping you, return the empty bottle to the druggist and ask for your money. Adv.

Financial And Market News

STOCKS IRREGULAR ON WALL STREET AS WHEAT SALES DROP

Opening Quotations Uneven —Small Decline Noticed in Early Dealings

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York — (AP)— Stocks backed backed and filled irregularly today while wheat was selling at the lowest prices in years, but the support placed behind seasoned dividends paying issues, reputedly by important financial interests, made the bear faction cautious and facilitated the rallies.

Quotations at the opening were uneven and there was a small decline in the early dealings which carried a few important shares to new lows for the movement. However, the market recovered these losses easily and made a cautious advance which was later lost on a bear drive stimulated by the weakness of the grains and numerous other commodities. Coppers and oils were liquidated rather freely in this selling and new lows for the year in both groups were numerous.

A more active demand for the market leaders brought moderate gains in the early afternoon. American Can, American Telephone and American Water Works rose 3 points or more, Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse Electric, United Aircraft and Allied Chemical gained about 2 and U. S. Steel, Johns-Manville, National Biscuit, Atchison and North American rallied a point or more. In the copper group Anaconda, Kennecott, Andes, Calumet and Arizona and Calumet and Hecla made new lows, while among the oils Standard of New York, Prairie Oil, Ohio Oil and Warner Quinlan sagged to new minimums.

Omission of the $1 dividend on Republic Steel common had been expected and the stock rallied on short covering after the action of the directors had been announced. Pierce Arrow preferred was strong, moving up several points in response to the statement of the company's president that the Class "A" would be placed on a $2 annual basis as the result of improved business.

Routine business news offered little that could be called encouraging in speculative circles where pessimism is so popular. The weekly bank statement reported a $3,00,000 drop in commercial loans, although there was a gain of $14,000,000 in this item in the New York Federal Reserve district. August income statements from the railroads disclosed declines from the same month a year ago in about the proportions that have been prevailing. An adjusted index of automobile production for last week showed a small decline from the previous week, although changes in the chart since the first of this month have been so small as to be virtually negligible.

The familiar 2 per cent call money renewal rate was posted on the stock exchange, but accommodations were liberally offered outside at 1½.

REPORT MUCH BUYING ON N. Y. BOND MARKET

New York —(AP)— In common with the recovery of German securities in the other world markets, obligations of the republic moved upward today in the listed bond market, after sinking to new lows for the year in active selling yesterday.

Good buying appeared to influence a change of trend in both the international 5½s and the 7s, but they recovered only a portion of their yesterday's loss. Some of the municipals and industrials which have been under heavy pressure, joined in upward movement, notably Rhine Westphalian warrant 6s, but German Central Agricultural bank obligations again established new 1930 lows with losses of 2 points or more. More than $21,000,000 in new issues were placed on the market, the largest piece of financing being the 6,000,000 5 per cent debenture offering of the Continental Gas and Electric corporation. Argentina may finance its $50.000,000 six months notes which become due next week through a new bond issue, according to information in financial circles. Several banking groups have tendered bids on the refinancing.

The money market remained easy today. Call money renewed at 6 per cent, and money was available outside at a concession from the official rate. The extent of the support given the bond market on the current advance was shown by the report of loans and investments of all banks in the United States, as reported to the Federal Reserve Board for the period between March 27 and June 30.

In that period investments increased $790,000,000 and the net increase for the fiscal year ended June 30 was $528,000,000.

Some strong spots appeared in the domestic list as it held an upward trend. Canadian Pacific 5s, Cincinnati Gas and Electric 4s A, New York and Richmond Gas 6s, Philadelphia Gold 4s established new high prices for the year. Allegheny Corporation 5s, American Type Founders 6s, and Fisk Rubber 8s, advanced about a point.

FORECAST OF CATTLE RUN MATERIALIZES

6,000 Decrease Reported Against 10,500 Run of Last Tuesday

Chicago —(AP)— Bearing out predictions made last week, the cattle run today declined to 6,000, against 10,500 last Tuesday, as a direct result of price slashing last week, making the total for the first two days this week 40 per cent smaller than for the same days last week. Early bidding today showed that the sharp advances made yesterday were not warranted. Best yearlings were held at $13.00 and all other killing steers were steady. Quality was plainer than the day before, but supplies were so contracted that packers and shippers were forced to take what they wanted early.

Unfilled orders orders for choice 240 to 260 lb. butchers saved that classof hogs from the depressing effects of an extremely sluggish early markets for all other weights. While these medium weights were held steady, light weights were still at 15@25c lower figures. A load of 190 to 210 lb. averages went at $10.50@10.60, while an inferior packet of 260-lb kinds sold at $10.75. Receipts in eleven markets were 10,000 smaller today than last Tuesday, but Chicago has sad nearly that many more for the last two days this week than it had at the same time last week.

Heavy runs at the western sheep markets affected the local situation adversely today and sellers could make no better than steady prices for their natice lambs in the early trading, in spite of a sharply reduced run. Best grades of both native and western lambs were held at $8.50 with packers taking plainer kinds at $8.00@8.25.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago—(AP)—(USDA)—Hogs: 24,000 including 6,000 directs; slow, 15-25 lower; top 10.70; bulk 180-300 lbs packing sows mostly 7.75-8.50. Smooth lightweights to 9.10 and above. CANADIAN REPORTS FORCE GRAIN MART TO SUFFER DECLINE

Investigation Reveals That Canadian Growers' Pool Was Bogus

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago —(AP)— Bogus reports that the Canadian Growers' pool had become financially embarrassed demoralized grain prices today, notwithstanding that the reports were given prompt emphatic denial. Officials of the Chicago board of trade, the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and the United States grain futures administration quickly engaged in an effort to find the source of the reports, which are declared to be wholly untrue, but this did not prevent values to levels the lowest in many cases since 1906. Meanwhile, Russia was offering wheat in Hamburg, Germany at prices equal to .85¼ a bushel for Canadian wheat delivered in Hamburg, with new chartering of grain vessels by Russia announced as totaling 55,000,000 bu.

Downward swings of Chicago wheat values today were preceded by lively breaks in quotations at Liverpool and by advices from there telling of widespread belief that Russia would continue to force sales and depress prices. It was added that as a result buyers everywhere had become extremely cautious. Under such circumstances, active general selling of every kind of grain was witnessed in the Chicago pit, and many standing orders to let go in particular of wheat and corn holdings were executed to stop losses at various set limits.

In connection with word of increased offerings of Russian wheat abroad reports were circulated that the Russian government had diverted 650,000 tons of vessel space previously engaged to transport lumber, and would substitute wheat. This was said to be in addition to freighting room charters for 750,000 tons heretofore announced.

On the other hand, overnight export sales of more than 1,000,00 bushels of North American wheat were noted. None of this wheat, however, was for Europe, and most of it was Canadian grown. Corn and oats prices received their downward impetus from sympathy with wheat weakness.

Provisions went lower as a result of falling quotations both for cereals and hogs.

Apparently in consequence of prevailing low prices receipts of every sort of grain in Chicago today were at a minimum seldom met with the total being but 107 cars. Of this total, the bulk consisted of corn, 68 cars, a week ago receipts of corn here were 111 cars, and at this time last week 144 cars.

TREND OF CURB MART UPWARD AFTER DROP

Prices Display Firm Undertone from Earliest Hours of Trading

New oYrk —(AP)— A technical recovery following the sharp decline yesterday turned the trend of curb stocks upward today.

While displaying a firm undertone from the start of the session, the list was sluggis hduring the early hours, and price movement was irregular within narrow limits. Buying interest was more active as the session passed the noon hour anud more definite signs of a recovery from the closing prices yesterday developed. The scale of trading was on a par with the best sessions of the year.

Petroleum shares were generally steady to firm. Cities Service was fairly well supported.

Some of the industrials profited from the better tone of the market. Ford of England and Ford of Canada, in the motor group, Mead Johnson, Safeway Stores, in the industrial section and Natural Fuel Gas and Lone Star Gas of the natural gas shares were conspicuous in the recovery.

New York—Contracts awarded for new construction in the metropolitan area of New York during the week ended Sept. 19 totaled $28,932,200, F. W. Dodge Corp. reports. The figure brought the total for September to $57,636,200, a rate of $3,602,300 a business day, compared with a daily rate of $2,953,000 in August and $2,310,700 in September last year. For the first time in months contracts for residential building were in the lead. For the year to date contracts awarded in the area total $715,702,200, compared with $885,312,300 in the like period last year.

Early September reports indicate definite evidence of more favorable business conditions, according to the Union Trust Co. of Cleveland. No sudden upturn is expected, says the bank in its magazine "Trade Wings," but the bottom apparently has been reached and during the last quarter a gradual recovery can be expected, with continued improvement in 1931.

The total melt of 15 United States sugar refiners from Jan. 1 to Sept. 13 was 3,430,000 long tons, compared with 3,675,000 long tons in the like period last year. Deliveries totaled 3,220,000 long tons, against 3,445,000 long tons last year.

Grain Notes

Chicago — (AP)—A strong rally, prompted by news of a sudden upturn in Liverpool, caused a brief rise in prices at the board of trade wheat pit Monday, but the buying period was short, and quotations dropped at the finish well toward the bottom. March and May deliveries at Winnipeg. The buying period at Liverpool had considerable effect here. But trade in the aggregate was not large and the market eased quickly. The export demand for cash wheat continued slow although world shipments were above the average.

The market is not worried much in connection with the report of heavy short selling here by Russian agencies. However, uncertainty during the department of agriculture and board of trade controversy over the Russian situation has helped curtail speculation. The Russian account has not been large enough to have an effect of any consequence on prices, traders believe.

The first car of new corn of the season, earliest in 15 years, sold at 760. The general quality was reported very good. All corn deliveries sold at a new low on the present down turn. However, when scattered longs were on the selling side.

DOWNWARD TREND IN BUSINESS IN STATE CONTINUES

August Makes Least Favorable Showing, With Exception of February

Madison—(AP)—The gradual downward trend evidence by business in Wisconsin was continued through August, the University of Wisconsin extension division reported today after a study of bank debit figures from 10 representative cities. The decline started last March.

With the exception of February, August made the least favorable showing, with debit figures 16 per cent under August, 1929, according to the extension department.

"Two facts should be borne in mind in connection with the August decline," the division explained. "First, last year business registered an advance of more than 11.4 per cent from June to August, while this year it fell nearly five per cent during the corresponding period. In other words the comparison is between a declining period this year and one that rose sharply last year. The second act that should be remembered is that prices this year are considerably lower than those of last year. Prices for raw materials, for example, were over 14 per cent lower during August, 1930, than during the same month last year. Retail food prices were 10 per cent lower during the same comparative months. Since bank debits are in terms of dollars and cents, they immediately reflect changes in prices even if no change occurred in the physical volume of business'"

Cities in the western and northwestern sections of the state showed combined decreases of 23.5 per cent. By individual cities, the declines were: Ashland, 29 per cent; Chippewa Falls, 22.8 per cent; Eau Claire, 23.5 per cent; Hudson, 5.5 per cent; LaCrosse, 18.8 per cent; and Superior, 27.7 per cent.

The eastern section of the state reported an August decrease of 15.3 per cent. By cities the declines were: Green Bay, 8.4 per cent; Milwaukee, 15.5 per cent; Oshkosh, 19.1 per cent; Sheboygan, 14.6 per cent.

Employment conditions during August showed no disposition to improve, the report says, for at public employment offices there were 162 job seekers for every 100 available jobs, as against 117 wanting work for every 100 jobs open during August last year.

FORMER 4-H BOY, GIRL CHAMPS TO BE MARRIED

Stillwater, Okla. —(AP)— The engagement of Miss Frances Smith, 1925 world's 4-H club girl champion to Ford Mercer, 1924 boys 4-H club world champion, was announced here Monday. The couple will be married in Oklahoma City some time during the present week. Miss Smith lives at Geary, Okla., and her fiance's home is at Tryon, Okla. They both are engaged in 4-H club work at Oklahoma A. and M. college.

CONTAGION STILL DOWN TO MINIMUM IN SCHOOLS

Although the city schools have been open for two weeks, contagion in the city is still down to a minimum. Only one case of chicken pox was reported to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, last week, and the school nurses report that there are very few cases of illness of any kind in the schools.

KONJOLA ENDS FOUR YEARS OF STOMACH PAINS

Again New and Different Medicine Shows How It Won Fame and Friends

MR. PAUL PILOTTE

"For the last four years I suffered from stomach trouble," said Mr. Paul Pilotte, 408 South Third avenue, Sioux Falls, S. D. "No matter what I ate I was sure to suffer from gas bloating and acidity after each meal. I was in great discomfort from a heavy sensation. Dull headaches made me miserable all the time. The last eighteen months I had chronic constipation and took strong laxatives every day for temporary relief. I had no energy and my work was drudgery.

"Then I began reading the Konjola endorsements, and when I realized how many people were being benefited I decided to give it a trial. After the first few doses I began to feel better. I regained my energy and headaches disappeared. Gas bloating and soreness in my stomach are gone. After completing the fourth bottle of Konjola I felt great. I recommend Konjola highly to everyone."

It is the same splendid story of success whenever this master compound of 32 ingredients is put to test. It is strongly recommended that a complete treatment of from six to eight bottles be used.

Maine Also Feels Force Of Family Tradition

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—The force of family tradition in public office, emphasized by the nomination of Philip F. LaFollette for governor of Wisconsin, is also causing concern in an eastern state.

The Portland (Me.) Evening News, edited by Dr. Ernest Gruening, who was a national publicity manager of the La Follette-for-President campaign, published the following editorial on Sept. 18, under the title, "Maine and Wisconsin".

"Maybe there is something, after all, in Mr. Fred K. Owen's reiterated assertions that attempts are being made to 'Wisconsinize' Maine. Out in the Badger State, Philip, second son of the late Sen. Robert M. La Follette, has just won the Republican gubernatorial nomination, over Walter J. Kohler, the present governor—which means election in November. Thus with Robert M. La Follette (Junior) in the U. S. Senate, that mid-western commonwealth is about to have a United States senator and a governor, both sons of a recent Wisconsin senator. In Maine, we are about to have two United States senators who are respectively a son and a grandson of former Maine United States senators. Still, Maine initiated the hereditary habit. Perhaps it would be more correct to speak of 'Maineizing' Wisconsin."

Sen. Frederick Hale of Maine is the son of the late Sen. Eugene Hale of Maine and grandson of the late Sen. Zachariah Chandler of Michigan.

Another member of the Hale family, Robert Hale, is speaker of the Maine House of Representatives and prospective candidate for governor two years hence. There are Hales who are judges, too, in Maine.

The Hale family has long been a governing factor in Maine. Like the La Follette family, it, too, has a woman member who, behind the scenes, has been important in the state's politics. Mrs. Eugene Hale, widow of the former senator and mother of the present senator, is one of only two women who have been the daughters, wives, and mothers of United States senators. She is now far past 80 years old and no longer figures as a dictator of Washington society or of Maine politics, as she is in virtual retirement at her home in Sixteenth street here, but for many years she was a social and behind-the-scenes political leader—abler by far than her son.

The force of tradition is such in Maine that although Sen. Hale is not regarded even in his own bailiwick as an outstanding and able senator, he is held unbeatable for "the Hale seat in the Senate." Tradition in Maine, however, keeps the conservatives rather than the liberals in power, and, as the Gruening editorial comments, it was Maine which started the hereditar ytradition, indicating a "Maineizing" of Wisconsin rather than the "Wisconsinizing" of Maine which the conservative newspapers in the state have been fearing.

MAYOR THOMPSON BACK WITH BIG FISH STORY

"I am feeling better than I have in years," Mayor Thompson said. He brought home a fish story: The capture of 150 pounds of blue fish off Nantucket, Mass., in three hours by means of a hairpin hook fashioned by Mrs. Thompson after regulation hooks proved worthless because of the tangle of weeds.
